The Graduate School of Business provides graduate education for careers in management, research, and teaching.

The two-year Master of Business Administration (M.B.A.) degree program is designed for the student preparing for a general management career. No specific undergraduate major or courses are required for admission, although prospective applicants are encouraged to have two or more years of managerial experience and to include some mathematics and economics in their undergraduate programs. Curricular options within the M.B.A. program include a certificate in Public Management or Global Management, the joint J.D./M.B.A. degree, the joint M.Ed./M.B.A., and dual master’s degrees in business and engineering.

The Stanford Sloan Program is an intensive one-year course of study for midlevel management executives leading to the degree of Master of Science in Management. Participants must be sponsored by their company and have demonstrated superior achievement.

Those interested in college teaching and research are served by the Doctor of Philosophy program.

For detailed information on programs, curricula, and faculty, write to the Graduate School of Business, Stanford University, Stanford, California 94305-5015 for the current bulletin.
