Making Digital Preservation part of the Information Governance Lifecycle

Focus so far has been permanent information retention

Can we move on to support those users that want to keep information for a long time, but not forever

Business record of government & commerce held by records managers or archivists still have a DP risk

Good news for DP community – wider adoption means more investment

New set of technical challenges and new set of CIOs to convince with different messages

Making Digital Preservation part of the Information Governance Lifecycle: Next
Summary

- We’ve come a long way so far, but only just started
- The next generation of users will be different
- Automated links to current information landscape are here
- Technical challenges will be different
- Industrial scale adoption is around the corner
- Vendors still need to add Digital Preservation innovation
Thank you!
