Guidelines

1) Eligibility for the Concerto Competition is open exclusively to current Stanford undergraduate or graduate students.

2) Current private study with a member of Stanford’s performance faculty is highly encouraged.

3) Eligible works include concertos or concert pieces of any duration specifically composed for solo instrument(s) or voice and orchestra. Works for more than one solo instrument (such as Brahms’s Double Concerto) are also eligible. Single concerto movements or excerpts of longer works, however, are ineligible. Transcriptions of solo pieces for alternate instruments are ineligible unless specifically approved by the Director of Orchestral Studies (DOS); inquiries from prospective entrants regarding works of this kind should be submitted to the DOS no less than one week before the registration deadline. In the case of unusual or unpublished works, the entrant must clearly establish to the DOS that score and parts of the work are readily available for performance, through purchase or rental, before being allowed to enter the competition.

4) Concertos or concert pieces performed by the SSO and SP during the previous four years will be ineligible for that year’s competition. This list of works will be updated annually and published on the SSO/SP website each year in June at the end of the Spring Quarter.

5) All entrants are required to have their work fully mastered by the date of the competition.

6) Memorization of the concerto or concert piece is highly encouraged but not required.

7) The concerto or concert piece played in the competition will be the work performed with orchestra, in its entirety, if the competitor is chosen as a winner.

8) The competition will consist of a Preliminary Round (8 minutes of playing per entrant) and Final Round (generally 15-30 minutes per entrant, but longer if required). Judges will be instructed to hear each finalist play the entire concerto or concert piece (or at least substantial parts of all movements) to determine, to their satisfaction, that each winner is fully prepared to perform the entire concerto.

9) In the Preliminary Round, each entrant will perform the first 5 minutes* of the first movement followed by a 3-minute portion of another movement or contrasting section of the work (if a one-movement piece). In the Final Round, any portion of the work may be requested by the judges. For the competition, accompanists should cut lengthy introductions and connecting passages. [*If the opening solo section is longer than 5 minutes, then the entrant may continue for up to 6 minutes as long as the total of both portions in the Preliminary Round does not exceed 8 minutes.]

10) Entrants are required to have an accompanist for both rounds of the competition.

11) No entrant may enter on more than one work per competition.

12) Players of orchestral instruments, pianists, vocalists, and players of guitar, saxophone, and other less common solo instruments will be eligible to enter the competition. While not required, membership in Stanford’s orchestras or other ensemble programs, including chamber music, is encouraged for participants in the competition.
13) Judges will be instructed to choose the winner(s) based primarily on the ability to give the most compelling musical performance. While other factors, such as:
   a) the degree of technical difficulty;
   b) the length of the concerto;
may be taken into consideration by the judges, these are secondary to the primary criterion of delivering a compelling musical performance. The judges should not base their decisions on:
   c) preference for one kind of instrument or musical style over another;
   d) the level of difficulty for the orchestra (except in extreme cases).

14) The competition will be adjudicated by two outside judges with broad musical knowledge of the concerto repertoire, impeccable judgment and integrity, and, ideally, no personal connections to any of the participants. The DOS, serving as the third judge, will determine how many winners (as ranked by the other judges) can be chosen based upon the length of their pieces and viable programming options.

15) At the end of the Preliminary Round, the judges will determine and announce who will compete in the Final Round (ca. 4-6 finalists). They will also be available for ca. 20-30 minutes, before the final round takes place, to provide verbal feedback to those participants not chosen as finalists.

16) Based on an estimate of 20-24 entrants in the preliminary round, the approximate schedule would be:

   9:00am-1:00pm    Preliminary Round (@ 6 entrants per hour)
   1:00-3:00pm      Determination of Finalists, Judges’ Feedback, Lunch
   3:00-5:30pm      Final Round, Determination of Winner(s)
   5:30pm           Announcement of Winner(s)

17) There will be no set number of winners nor any honorary mentions. If multiple winners are chosen, they will be regarded as equal co-winners.

18) If a winner becomes unavailable to perform on the concert date(s) due to injury, illness, or some other circumstance beyond their control, efforts will be made to reschedule the performance at a later date. If a winner decides to study abroad or take time off from Stanford, thereby preventing that winner from performing on the originally scheduled date(s), the opportunity to perform as soloist with the SSO or SP may be forfeited, although the DOS may, under certain circumstances, attempt to reschedule the concerto on an alternate concert.

COMPETITION DATE and APPLICATION PROCESS

19) The 2018 Concerto Competition will take place on Sunday, 29 April 2018. Subsequently, it may take place earlier in the academic year.

20) Students wishing to enter the competition must apply online by Wednesday, 18 April 2018 at 4:00pm at http://web.stanford.edu/~aramir/concertocomp2018.fb, listing their name, email, phone, student ID#, major, instrument, composer and title of work to be performed, duration of work, name of accompanist, name of sponsoring faculty member, and other background information.

21) Students with questions about eligible works [see Paragraphs 3 and 4 above] should address them to the DOS by Wednesday, 11 April 2018.

22) Each competitor will be required to provide a copy of the work being played in the competition if so requested by the judges. Generally, this will be the case only with obscure or contemporary compositions.
