

Men You

Needfinding Report

Meet the Team!

Joseph Ngo

'24

Fox Lake, IL

Faith Zhang

'24

San Diego, CA

Kaitlin Peng

'24

Naperville, IL

Melissa Lee

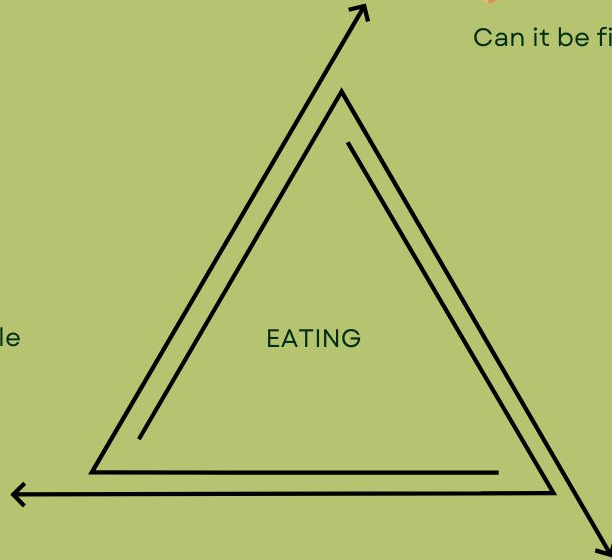

'24

Sunnyvale, CA

Domain Selection

what is an everyday struggle we face?

Can it be fixed?

is this a universal experience?

Looking for Participants

Everyday people

Diversity

Those with allergies / dietary restrictions

Who We Spoke to

Ophny / Jenna

Couple
52 y/o, 51 y/o
Palo Alto, CA

Jason

Student
21 y/o
Cupertino, CA

Gustavo

Gott's Roadside
Assistant General Manager

Guiding Questions

Everyday People

Can you walk me through a typical dining experience?

How do you currently discover and decide on specific dishes to order when dining out?

How do you go about deciding where to eat and what to order?

How do images of food contribute to your decision-making process?

Do you have any dietary preferences or restrictions? How do these impact your dining choices?

What would make your ordering experience even better?

Interviewer: Faith
Notetaker: Melissa
Tools: Otter.ai (transcription)

“So you can read reviews and reviews... but it's a crapshoot”

Ophny / Jenna

“Foodies” | 40 min. in person interview at Town and Country

Ophny + Jenna

Ophny + Jenna

"We read Eater everywhere we go"

Melissa Lee

Says

Thinks

Does

Feels

Enjoys taking photos but never knows what to do with them

Melissa Lee

Adventurous about trying new places

Melissa Lee

Sometimes misled by online reviews

Kaitlin Peng

"So you can read reviews and reviews [...] It's a crapshoot, but it's fun to do"

"We usually go with like specials"

"It's kind of like the wave of the future" (referring to membership clubs)

"We're not young, we're in our 50s. So we know enough, we've seen it. We've been around long enough to know that we like what we like"

"We have an Amex platinum, so they book us stuff if we ever really need help."

"We read Eater in every area that we go to"

Just go and we sit down. And that's what we call a good experience."

But just like"

"Yes, that's our go to and we just become regulars at the bar"

"15 types of wagyu and they all had certificates"

"I think just from growing up from knowing I mean, those are word of mouth. You don't see them on Instagram" (referring to hole in the walls)

"Sometimes we'll go to LA or New York to try different things"

They be service the bar develop persons with the Dining out is an integral part of their relationship

Melissa Lee

While they frequently ask for recommendations from the bartender, they question when they say x is their favorite if it's actually their favorite.

Dining out is an intimate experience which is why they appreciate keeping the details of their meals private

They have eaten and experienced so much food that they usually trust their own opinions over others' reviews

They think about optimizing their dining experiences by carefully researching restaurants and menus in advance

While they frequently ask for recommendations from the bartender, they question when they say x is their favorite if it's actually their favorite.

Faith Zhang

Read reviews and

The best dishes are found through trial and error

Rarely leave reviews but read them a lot

Don't really ask

Love taking photos of food but avoid

Enjoy trying new restaurants and always trying to stay on top of what's open and new in the area

Sometimes skeptical about recs from the restaurant but still usually listen

Feels it's a hassle eating with a larger group of people

Ophny takes pride in the photos they takes

Love eating out

Enjoys taking photos but never knows what to do with them

Melissa Lee

Adventurous about trying new places

Melissa Lee

Sometimes misled by online reviews

Kaitlin Peng

Order with the intention of sharing their food with each other

Use different membership programs (e.g. Dorsia, Cita) to get reservations

Occasionally posts food photos on IG, thinks it would be cool to have photos posted on Bay Area Buzz into "pay-to-order" frameworks are they purchase reservation online prior to the meal

Like to read reviews about what to order but usually order based on their own opinions

Adventurous and enthusiastic about their dining experiences, as they frequently dine out to explore new restaurants and join exclusive "foodie" communities

Feel more with restaurant experience people are good rather than the food itself

Jenna is the chair of the Ophny community and she's the president

Confident in their own food opinions good

Most captivated by a dining experience's ambience and the conversations they have with waiters / bartenders / other patrons

insights

Food enthusiasts are picky about what they choose from a menu, and even more selective about the tools they use to help them decide.

need

People need a way to easily combine restaurant recommendations, fan favorites, and personal preferences all into one.

insights

Restaurant recommendations are valued, but customers may sometimes be skeptical of the bias and intent behind the recommendation.

need

People want to receive personalized expert recommendations in a transparent and objective manner.

Interviewer: Faith
Tools: Otter.ai (transcription)

Jason

Stanford student with many allergies | 40 min. in person interview at Tresidder

“If I tend to not eat a lot from a restaurant, it just becomes less memorable”

Jason

Says

Thinks

Does

Feels

"I would say I dine out like twice a week"

Kaitlin Peng

"I don't think I'm that careful when it comes to selecting food"

Kaitlin Peng

"If I'm in a new location, I want to try like the best thing nearby"

Kaitlin Peng

Very passionate when talking about bad pizza from restaurant in Jackson Hole (expensive vacation spot)

Kaitlin Peng

Nicer areas should have better food/service

Kaitlin Peng

It's easier to just avoid cuisines w his allergens all together

Faith Zhang

Feelings and who he's with also impact what he orders

Faith Zhang

(Talking about Panda Express) "I like how I can see the foods... I'm like, okay, I want that"

Kaitlin Peng

"I am allergic to eggs, soy, shellfish, and nuts"

Kaitlin Peng

"I like to order the same thing every time"

Kaitlin Peng

"I'm always very, very receptive to try new restaurants, like I go onto Yelp all the time"

Kaitlin Peng

Being able to tangibly see menu item makes him desire it more

Faith Zhang

Rating and pictures are the most important

Faith Zhang

"I like stalls too, because they highlight the food and you can kind of pick what you want, and have like a tangible image of it"

Kaitlin Peng

"I think it's when they don't have that little symbol indicating whether or not they have nuts or eggs is what really deters me"

Kaitlin Peng

I went to a few restaurants where something's already pre made, so they weren't able to extract it. So kind of understand from a logistics standpoint, like they can't really take things out"

Kaitlin Peng

"If I tend to not eat a lot from a restaurant, it just becomes less memorable. So I just tend to not go to restaurants that I have those experiences with"

Kaitlin Peng

Usually asks to substitute ingredients but has still gotten allergic reactions for something that was supposed to be substituted

Kaitlin Peng

"It's like a whole social thing where I'm like, oh, sorry, like I have these allergens. And it's like a little bit of that confrontation. So I try to avoid that."

Kaitlin Peng

Menu photos are a big factor in deciding where to eat

Kaitlin Peng

it's exciting to be able to explore new restaurants and the best food in the area

Faith Zhang

A bad experience needs to be shared publicly on reviews

Faith Zhang

Hidden allergen info deters him from going to a restaurant

Faith Zhang

most restaurants are good with substituting ingredients

Faith Zhang

When going to new restaurants, still tends to eat dishes he's more familiar with

Kaitlin Peng

Eats chicken base dishes a lot more than other kinds of dishes

Kaitlin Peng

Frequents restaurants that have little to no nuts on their menu as a whole

Kaitlin Peng

Doesn't normally leave reviews, but if he does he only leaves bad reviews

Kaitlin Peng

Relieved when restaurants have allergen information for items online

Kaitlin Peng

Very disappointed by pizza restaurant experience in Jackson Hole

Kaitlin Peng

More adventurous with new restaurants but less adventurous with new food

Kaitlin Peng

Somewhat uncomfortable with trying out new restaurants

Kaitlin Peng

Frustrated by the additional efforts he has to put in if allergen info is not super transparent

Faith Zhang

Tends to visit restaurants he's already familiar with

Kaitlin Peng

Looks at review photos a lot when deciding where to eat

Kaitlin Peng

Tends to avoid certain cuisines like Thai food because of nut allergy

Kaitlin Peng

Tends to order food that have pictures more than food that doesn't

Kaitlin Peng

Takes photos of food and will post on Instagram if it's really good

Kaitlin Peng

Visuals highly impact his menu-selection decisions

Faith Zhang

experimental with restaurant specialities

Faith Zhang

Slightly uncomfortable when asking waiter what ingredients are in menu item

Faith Zhang

Inclined to post bad reviews because good experience normalize and average out

Faith Zhang

Generally accommodated for at restaurants

Faith Zhang

Doesn't use many digital tools to discover restaurants, mostly discovers them through word of mouth

Kaitlin Peng

When looking for new restaurants to try, first focuses on those that have a rating of 4+

Kaitlin Peng

When people post food on Instagram that looks good and tag the location, he adds the location to his list of places to try

Kaitlin Peng

Checks restaurants' menus on Yelp before going

Kaitlin Peng

Jason

"I would say I dine out like twice a week"

Kaitlin Peng

"I don't think I'm that careful when it comes to"

"It's like a whole social thing where I'm like, oh, sorry, like I have these allergens. And it's like a little bit of that confrontation. So I try to avoid that."

Kaitlin Peng

[Talking about Panda Express] "I like how I can see the foods. I'm like, okay, I want that"

Kaitlin Peng

"I like stalls too, because they highlight the food and you can kind of pick what you want, and have like a tangible image of it"

Kaitlin Peng

"If I'm in a new location, I want to try like the best thing nearby"

Kaitlin Peng

"I'm always very, very receptive to try new restaurants, like I go onto Yelp all the time"

Very passionate when talking about bad pizza from restaurant in Jackson Hole (expensive vacation spot)

Kaitlin Peng

"I like stalls too, because they highlight the food and you can kind of pick what you want, and have like a tangible image of it"

Kaitlin Peng

I went to a few restaurants where something's already pre-made, so they weren't able to extract it. So I kind of understand from a logistics standpoint, like they can't really take things out."

Kaitlin Peng

stitute still tions was

"It's like a whole social thing where I'm like, oh, sorry, like I have these allergens. And it's like a little bit of that confrontation. So I try to avoid that."

Kaitlin Peng

Nicer areas should have better food/ service

Kaitlin Peng

Menu photos are a big factor in deciding where to eat

Kaitlin Peng

it's unnecessary to leave reviews unless it was a bad experience

Melissa Lee

Feelings and who he's with also impact what he orders

Faith Zhang

most restaurants are good with substituting ingredients

Faith Zhang

Says

Thinks

Does

Feels

When going to new restaurants, still tends to eat dishes he's more familiar with

Kaitlin Peng

Tends to visit restaurants he's already familiar with

Kaitlin Peng

Doesn't use many digital tools to discover restaurants, mostly discovers them through word of mouth

Kaitlin Peng

Eats chicken base dishes a lot more kinds of

Tends to order food that have pictures more than food that doesn't

Kaitlin Peng

try, first focuses on those that have a rating of 4+

Kaitlin Peng

When people post food on Instagram that looks good and tag the location, he adds the location to his list of places to try

Kaitlin Peng

Frequents restaurants that have little to no nuts on their menu

When going to new restaurants, still tends to eat dishes he's more familiar with

Kaitlin Peng

Doesn't normally leave reviews, but if he does he only leaves bad reviews

Takes photos of food and will post on Instagram if it's really good

Kaitlin Peng

Relieved when restaurants have allergen information for items online

Kaitlin Peng

Visuals highly impact his menu-selection decisions

Faith Zhang

Likes being experimental but also plays it safe with restaurants because of fear

Melissa Lee

somewhat comfortable with trying out new restaurants

Kaitlin Peng

Frustrated by the additional efforts he has to put in if allergen info is not super transparent

Faith Zhang

Generally accommodated for at restaurants

Faith Zhang

insights

People with dietary restrictions may want to explore unfamiliar foods but can be uncomfortable confronting a waiter about their dietary needs.

need

People want to feel confident exploring new foods and be able to easily access information about the menu items.

insights

Pictures and visuals play a large role in a customer's decision-making process when selecting a menu item.

need

People want to make informed choices that will guarantee satisfaction with their menu choices.

Guiding Questions

Domain Expert

How do you go about designing your menu?

What are the most common factors that customers consider when selecting items from your menu?

Can you walk me through a typical customer ordering experience?

How does your restaurant process customer feedback?

In what ways do you think the customer order experience could be improved?

Interviewer: Joe
Notetaker: Kaitlin
Tools: Otter.ai (transcription)

Gustavo

Assistant General Manager |
30 min. in person interview at Gott's Roadside

“Most people usually think about the price then look if it’s organic”

Gustavo

Says
Thinks
Does Feels

"We don't really respond to Yelp, we respond more to website submissions"

Melissa Lee

"The menu has remained the same since I started here"

Melissa Lee

"The culinary director makes sure we get new specials every month or two"

Melissa Lee

"People use it to order online, sit down & start working, then go up to pick up the food when they're notified it's ready"

Faith Zhang

"Menu has basically remained the same since I started here"

Joseph Huang Ngai

Customers have all the information they need to make the right decision about what to order

Melissa Lee

Yelp doesn't provide an honest picture of customer reviews. Those submitted to the website are better.

Melissa Lee

Trusting the culinary director is what has worked for us in the past, so why change it?

Melissa Lee

People with allergies are well-accommodated already, no changes have to be made on our end

Melissa Lee

Customers are happy enough with server recommendations and the provided samples

Melissa Lee

"Mostly young people" use the digital menu

Faith Zhang

"Most people usually think about the price then look if it's organic, but it mostly just depends on their mood"

Faith Zhang

"Customize recommendations to each person"

Melissa Lee

"We have a physical allergy book that lists every potential allergy in an item"

Melissa Lee

"POS system tells what customers ordered and how long it's been since they ordered it"

Melissa Lee

Offering samples is a good way to give recommendations

Faith Zhang

All restaurants should properly accommodate those with allergies/dietary restrictions

Melissa Lee

Gift cards and other forms of compensation are the best ways to please unsatisfied customers

Melissa Lee

Gustavo thinks that Google reviews and Yelp are less important than reviews through website

Joseph Huang Ngai

Even with customer feedback, the menu should stay the same

Faith Zhang

Gott's has a physical allergy book that lists every potential allergy in a menu item

Faith Zhang

Menu specials are dependent on seasonal ingredients

Faith Zhang

Collects customer feedback through Yelp and website

Faith Zhang

Will customize recommendations to each person

Faith Zhang

Gott's uses the book to give recommendations to people w dietary requests

Faith Zhang

Will give compensation in form of gift card for unhappy customers

Faith Zhang

Reviews person notifies location if particularly good or bad review shows up

Faith Zhang

Offered Joe and Kaitlin something to drink for free after the interview

Kaitlin Peng

People use digital menu to order online, sit down and work, and the pick up their food

Faith Zhang

Prioritizes reviews submitted through the website over Yelp reviews

Melissa Lee

Never looks at ratings or reviews from Google

Faith Zhang

Confident in culinary director's choices

Kaitlin Peng

Comfortable with the workflow of the kitchen

Joseph Huang Ngai

Unbothered by negative customer feedback

Melissa Lee

Happy to talk to customers about their experience

Joseph Huang Ngai

Satisfied with current ordering / recommendation system

Melissa Lee

Happy to see families and regulars enjoy the food

Joseph Huang Ngai

Hesitant to adopt new apps / digital systems because current setup is functional

Melissa Lee

Responsible for anything that might go wrong during his shift

Joseph Huang Ngai

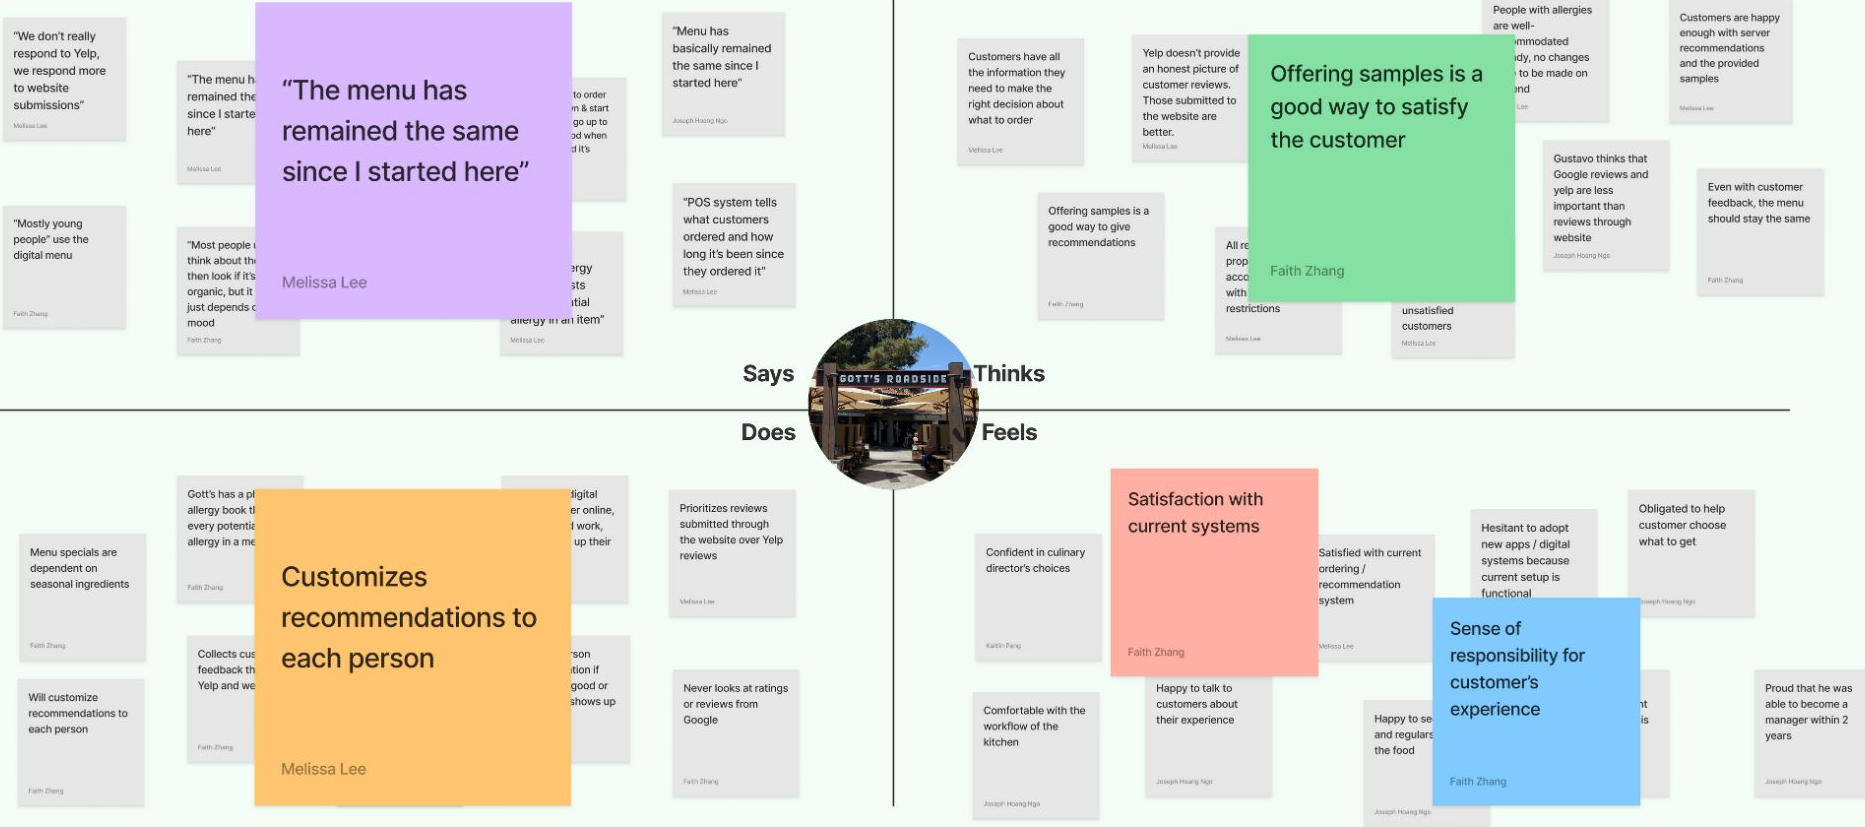

Obligated to help customer choose what to get

Joseph Huang Ngai

Proud that he was able to become a manager within 2 years

Joseph Huang Ngai

Gustavo

insights

People in the food service industry feel a strong sense of responsibility for the customer's experience.

need

Workers want comprehensive guidelines and feedback to ensure positive customer experiences.

Key Learnings

Selective Decision-Making

Customers often weight a multitude of different factors when making their menu choices.

Discovery + Exploration

Dining is an Experience

that is shaped by more than just the quality or taste of the food.

Transparency

Personalization

Digital Influence

Next Steps

- Continue interviewing a diverse range of people
- Continue analyzing and synthesizing interview data
- Narrow down problem domain within dining experiences
- Define specific problem statements

Thank You!

Appendix

(Additional Picture Artifacts)

Ophny + Jenna

Environment of interview

Environment of interview

Gustavo

Gott's Menu

