

The Division of Literatures, Cultures, and Languages, in conjunction with the Departments of German Studies and English, are pleased to announce a lecture series of distinguished visiting scholars for the Fall of 2001 on the topic of:

Medieval Women: Faith, Love, and Learning

Schedule of Speakers:

October 11, 2001

“Love Songs in Cloth: Women Poets Who Sing and Sew in Medieval France”

E. Jane Burns, Women’s Studies, University of North Carolina

October 25, 2001

“Conquering Love: the Bride of God as Knight Errant”

Barbara Newman, Engl. and Comp. Lit., Northwestern University

November 1, 2001

“Ventriloquizing Hysteria: Reading the Lives of Thirteenth-Century Holy Women,”

Amy Hollywood, Religious Studies, Dartmouth College

November 15, 2001

“Revealing Language: Julian of Norwich as a Vernacular Intellectual”

Nicholas Watson, English, Harvard University

November 29, 2001

“Christine de Pisan’s Visual Legacy in the Renaissance”

Susan Groag Bell, IRWG, Stanford University

TIME: 4:15-5:30

PLACE: History Corner (Bldg.200) Rm. 205