Critical Conversations
a one-day conference exhibiting graduate work in science studies at Stanford and reflecting on the excitement and anxieties of interdisciplinary exchange

Friday, May 18, 2007
9:30 am - 5:00 pm
Levinthal Hall, Stanford Humanities Center

Keynote Speaker

Naomi Oreskes Professor of History and Science Studies at the University of California, San Diego “Pragmatic Interdisciplinarity (or, Against Disciplining Interdisciplinarity)”

Responding Andrew Pickering
Professor of Sociology at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Roundtable Discussion with Paula Findlen, Sarah Jain, David Magnus, Thomas Mulaney, Robert Proctor, Jessica Riskin, Thomas Ryckman and Londa Schiebinger

Poster Session and Reception honoring undergraduate honors projects in Science and Technology Studies and History and Philosophy of Science

http://www.stanford.edu/dept/cisst/CriticalConversations.html

Organized by the Graduate Student Science and Technology Studies Writing Group at Stanford University, with support from the Center for the Interdisciplinary Study of Science and Technology, the Program in History and Philosophy of Science, the Stanford Humanities Center, and the Program in Modern Thought and Literature.