The School of Humanities and Sciences (H&S) is Stanford University’s largest school, awarding nearly 40 percent of Stanford’s undergraduate degrees. H&S provides basic research training in the liberal arts and sciences and participates in multi-disciplinary initiatives that span all seven schools. The school’s mission is to attract and train the best and brightest people to the heart and soul of Stanford University, where excellence in research and teaching is the foundation of the university’s commitment to excellence in all its endeavors.

H&S is home to Stanford University’s basic science departments and across all of its schools. As Stanford University’s largest school, awarding nearly 40 percent of Stanford’s undergraduate degrees, H&S provides basic research training in the liberal arts and sciences and participates in multi-disciplinary initiatives that span all seven schools. The school’s mission is to attract and train the best and brightest people to the heart and soul of Stanford University, where excellence in research and teaching is the foundation of the university’s commitment to excellence in all its endeavors.

H&S OFFICE OF THE DEAN

Dean of the School of Humanities and Sciences
Sharon R. Long
The Vernon R. and Lysbeth Warren Anderson Dean of Humanities and Sciences and the William C. Steere Jr.–Pfizer Inc. Professor in Biological Sciences

Vice Dean for Academic Planning
Iain M. Johnstone
Professor of Biology
The Marye W. Williams Fair Professor in Quantitative Science and Professor of Health Research and Policy (Biostatistics)

Senior Associate Dean for Undergraduate and Graduate Studies
Susan Stephens
Professor of Classics

Senior Associate Dean for the Humanities
Arnold Rampersad
Professor of English
The Sara Hart Kimball Professor in the Humanities

Senior Associate Dean for the Natural Sciences
Martin M. Fejer
Professor of Applied Physics

Senior Associate Dean for the Social Sciences
Ian H. Gotlib
Professor of Psychology

Executive Dean
Kären N. Nagy
Director, H&S Office of the Dean

The School of Humanities and Sciences (H&S) is Stanford University’s largest school, awarding nearly 40 percent of Stanford’s undergraduate degrees. H&S provides basic research training in the liberal arts and sciences and participates in multi-disciplinary initiatives that span all seven schools. The school’s mission is to attract and train the best and brightest people to the heart and soul of Stanford University, where excellence in research and teaching is the foundation of the university’s commitment to excellence in all its endeavors.

H&S OFFICE OF THE DEAN

Dean of the School of Humanities and Sciences
Sharon R. Long
The Vernon R. and Lysbeth Warren Anderson Dean of Humanities and Sciences and the William C. Steere Jr.–Pfizer Inc. Professor in Biological Sciences

Vice Dean for Academic Planning
Iain M. Johnstone
Professor of Biology
The Marye W. Williams Fair Professor in Quantitative Science and Professor of Health Research and Policy (Biostatistics)

Senior Associate Dean for Undergraduate and Graduate Studies
Susan Stephens
Professor of Classics

Senior Associate Dean for the Humanities
Arnold Rampersad
Professor of English
The Sara Hart Kimball Professor in the Humanities

Senior Associate Dean for the Natural Sciences
Martin M. Fejer
Professor of Applied Physics

Senior Associate Dean for the Social Sciences
Ian H. Gotlib
Professor of Psychology

Executive Dean
Kären N. Nagy

The School of Humanities and Sciences (H&S) is Stanford University’s largest school, awarding nearly 40 percent of Stanford’s undergraduate degrees. H&S provides basic research training in the liberal arts and sciences and participates in multi-disciplinary initiatives that span all seven schools. The school’s mission is to attract and train the best and brightest people to the heart and soul of Stanford University, where excellence in research and teaching is the foundation of the university’s commitment to excellence in all its endeavors.
In the School of Humanities and Sciences, the faculty are engaged in a diverse range of disciplines, including sciences, technology, and society. The School offers a wide array of undergraduate programs, including majors and minors, and it is home to over 500 distinguished faculty members. The school offers a variety of programs and centers, including the Multicultural Graduate Student Services Office, which works in partnership with departments and other campus units to establish a supportive and thriving intellectual environment for students.

The School of Humanities and Sciences is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive community, and it offers a range of programs and centers to support this mission. These include the Stanford Language Center, which offers language instruction and cultural enrichment activities, and the Stanford Language Center Development Center, which provides funding for language programs.

The School of Humanities and Sciences is also committed to providing financial support to students. The school offers a range of financial aid programs, including scholarships, grants, and loans, to help students finance their education.

In addition to its academic programs and financial aid support, the School of Humanities and Sciences is also committed to fostering a strong sense of community. This includes the creation of student organizations and events, as well as the development of a range of programs and resources designed to support students as they navigate their academic and personal journeys.