CFLP Acquires New Identify

With the passage of SB 612 (Steinberg), the California Foreign Language Project’s (CFLP) name was changed to the California World Language Project (CWLP). That we had already embraced this change was acknowledged many years ago when CLTA, which vigorously advocated for SB 612 during its different phases of becoming a bill, had already removed the term foreign from its title years earlier. But the impetus for this most-welcome change is the fact that there are no foreign languages in California. The most formal move for this change occurred when State Board of Education member Yvonne Chan proposed that the new standards be called World Language Content Standards and recommended that, from then on, every time new educational legislation is enacted that pertains to foreign language, that the term foreign be replaced by world. The fact that SB 612 also provides for the California World Language Project to be a fully authorized California Subject Matter Project under the provisions of the new law is also a most welcome news to our profession. We thank Senator Steinberg, CLTA, CFLP/CWL affiliate staff, teacher leaders and participant and the many other teachers throughout California who supported the passage of SB 612 by writing letters, sending email messages and calling their representatives in Sacramento in order to make all of this possible.

CFLP/CWL is Celebrating its 25th Anniversary

CFLP was formally created as a California Subject Matter Project (CSMP) in 1987 and this year is commemorating its 25th anniversary of collaborating with CLTA and many other educational organizations and agencies to strengthen the teaching and learning of World Language in California. Originally the Foreign Language Curriculum Implementation Center (FLCIC), it was started to build networks of teacher leaders throughout California, many of who are still active members of the CWLP today. It was the extraordinary efforts of these initial networks of incredibly committed and dedicated language educators that led the FLCIC to be invited to join the CSMP network that, at that time, only consisted of the California Writing, Mathematics and Science Projects. Today we stand proud to offer professional learning programs to over 1000 participants annually and to provide an array of other services to the professional, most of them in collaboration with CLTA and the California Department of Education as well as the higher education institutions that host CWLP sites and the statewide office. We plan to host several events this coming year to commemorate CFLP/CWL’s 25th anniversary and hope that you will be able to join us for some of these events. Meanwhile, we are looking forward to observing all of you wearing the CFLP/CWLP anniversary ribbon on your nametags and be sure to stop by booth 7 to visit with us when you are in the Exhibit Hall or on our website at: http://csmp.ucop.edu/projects/view/cflp/

The Santa Barbara Summer Seminar is Back!!!!!!

CLTA and CWLP are proud to announce that the Summer Seminar for Language Teachers is back and will be held once again at the University of California, Santa Barbara from July 22-27, 2012. The Seminar’s theme is Standards-based Instruction in the Context of 21st Century Skills and will feature an array of presentations and workshop strands focusing on how to more effectively engage and teach 21st Century learners in acquiring world languages and cultures and linking the process to their academic and career goals. Please look for the Seminar’s flyer and registration information in your CLTA conference registration packet or on-line at www.cltanet or at http://www.stanford.edu/group/CFLP/summerseminar

CWLP Sites’ Professional Development Programs for Spring/Summer 2012

During the spring and summer of 2012 the California World Language Project (CWLP) and its regional sites are offering a range of professional development opportunities to support World Language educators in strengthening their professional practices. For further registration information or to contact staff member about these programs, please consult the reverse side of this report, visit the CWLP booth to acquire flyers for the different programs or visit the CWLP website at: http://www.stanford.edu/group/CFLP

CWLP Invited to Participate in California’s First Digital Learning Day

CWLP was invited to feature its STARTALK Mandarin program that employed the iPad and an especially developed app as primary tools for introducing Chinese to novice learners at the first Digital Learning Day that was held in Sacramento on February 1, 2012. Ying Jin, a teacher of Chinese at Cupertino High School who taught the pilot course along with Norman Masuda last summer and James Lin, Chief Executive Officer Chief at Better Chinese and the chief app designer for the program, made the presentation. To view a short video that includes students’ reflections on this learning experience, please logon to: http://vimeo.com/31562965. For additional information on the program, please download an article that features more information about the program at: http://ed.stanford.edu/news/ipads-become-learning-tools-teens-learning-mandarin.
