VIOLENCE AND THREATS OF VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN AND MEN IN THE UNITED STATES, 1994-1996 (ICPSR 2566)

SUMMARY: To further the understanding of violence against women, the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) and the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control (NCIPC), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), jointly sponsored the National Violence Against Women (NVAW) Survey. To provide a context in which to place women's experiences, the NVAW Survey sampled both women and men. Completed interviews were obtained from 8,000 women and 8,005 men who were 18 years of age or older residing in households throughout the United States. The female version of the survey was fielded from November 1995 to May 1996. The male version of the survey was fielded during February to May 1996. Spanish versions of both the male and female surveys were fielded from April to May 1996. Respondents to the NVAW Survey were queried about (1) their general fear of violence and the ways in which they managed their fears, (2) emotional abuse they had experienced by marital and cohabitating partners, (3) physical assault they had experienced as children by adult caretakers, (4) physical assault they had experienced as adults by any type of perpetrator, (5) forcible rape or stalking they had experienced by any type of perpetrator, and (6) incidents of threatened violence they had experienced by any type of perpetrator. Respondents disclosing victimization were asked detailed questions about the characteristics and consequences of victimization as they experienced it, including injuries sustained and use of medical services. Incidents were recorded that had occurred at any time during the respondent's lifetime and also those that occurred within the 12 months prior to the interview. Data were gathered on both male-to-female and female-to-male intimate partner victimization as well as abuse by same-sex partners. Due to the sensitive nature of the survey, female respondents were interviewed by female interviewers. In order to test for possible bias caused by the gender of the interviewers when speaking to men, a split sample was used so that half of the male respondents had female interviewers and the other half had male interviewers. The questionnaires contained 14 sections, each covering a different topic, as follows. Section A: Respondents' fears of different types of violence, and behaviors they had adopted to accommodate those fears. Section B: Respondent demographics and household characteristics. Section C: The number of current and past marital and opposite-sex and same-sex cohabitating relationships of the respondent. Section D: Characteristics of the respondent's current relationship and the demographics and other characteristics of their spouse and/or partner. Section E: Power, control, and emotional abuse by each spouse or partner. Sections F through I: Screening for incidents of rape, physical assault, stalking, and threat victimization, respectively. Sections J through M: Detailed information on each incident of rape, physical assault, stalking, and threat victimization, respectively, reported by the respondent for each type of perpetrator identified in the victimization screening section. Section N: Violence in the respondent's current relationship, including steps taken because of violence in the relationship and whether the violent behavior had stopped. The section concluded with items to assess if the respondent had symptoms associated with post-traumatic stress disorder. Other variables in the data include interviewer gender, respondent gender, number of adult women and adult men in the household, number of different telephones in the household, and region code.

UNIVERSE: All men and women in the United States 18 years of age or older.

SAMPLING: The sample was drawn as a national, random-digit dialing (RDD) sample of telephone households in the United States. The sample was stratified by U.S. Census region, and within regional strata a simple random sample of working, residential, "hundreds banks" phone numbers was drawn. A randomly generated two-digit number was appended to each randomly sampled hundreds bank to produce the full 10-digit phone number. Nonworking and nonresidential numbers were screened out. The most-recent-birthday method was used to systematically select the designated respondent in households with multiple eligible respondents.

NOTE: (1) Additional reports based on these data are expected to be published by the Center for Policy Research through the support of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or the National Institute of Justice. Users are encouraged to connect to these government agencies' websites for information on obtaining future reports. (2) The user guide, codebook, and data collection instruments are provided as Portable Document Format (PDF) files. The PDF file format was developed by Adobe Systems Incorporated and can be accessed using PDF reader software, such as the Adobe Acrobat Reader. Information on how to obtain a copy of the Acrobat Reader is provided through the ICPSR Website on the Internet.

RESTRICTIONS: To preserve respondent anonymity, specific geographic variables in both data files are restricted from general dissemination. The original, unmasked data are available from ICPSR. Requests for such data must be submitted in writing, including specific reasons for the request. All decisions regarding public release are made by the Criminal Justice Archive Advisory Committee.

 ICPSR CODEBOOK NOTES **

- (1) Users may notice slight differences between question references and codes in the survey instruments and variable names and codes as listed in the codebook. The codebook is the source of information on all variables and code descriptions as recorded in the data files.
- (2) The offender grid in the victimization sections (Sections F to I) establishes the offender type of the perpetrator that corresponds with the information in the detailed report sections (Sections J to M). Offender types include many specific marital, cohabitating, or familial relationships, as well as boyfriend/girlfriend/date, acquaintance, and stranger. For example, the type of perpetrator identified in F32A "A:OFFENDER GRID FOR RAPE - COMPOSITE" will correspond to the "T1" perpetrator in Section J. This approach allows researchers to track victimizations by the same type of perpetrator.
- (3) The number of subvariables for some questions in the detailed report sections indicates the number of perpetrator types for that question as reported by the respondent. The order of the offender types as numbered does not necessarily indicate the order of the reported incidents by offender type. For example, J2T1-J2T5 indicates that the respondent reported a sexual assault by five different types of perpetrators. (Information is also recorded on the number of times the respondent was forced to have sex with each offender type.) A detailed rape report was administered for each type of perpetrator identified in the offender grid in Section F. If the respondent reported being raped by more than one boyfriend/girlfriend or date, male stranger, female stranger, male acquaintance, or female acquaintance, the referent offender for Questions J11-J79 was the most recent of these offenders.

Several iterations of subvariables in the detailed report sections refer to multiple responses per perpetrator type. For example, Variable J12T1 gives the respondent's answer to Question J2 for the first offender type identified in the offender grid in Section F. Variables J12T1A-J12T1D gives the four verbatim responses that the respondent gave for Question 12 about the first offender type as recorded in the offender grid in Section F.

- (4) Sections A to E also contain subvariables for several questions. These subvariables record the multiple responses that the respondent gave to that question.
- (5) The definition of stalking used in the analysis of the NVAW Survey data closely resembles the one provided by the congressionally-mandated "Project to Develop a Model Anti-Stalking Code for States," a research report developed by the National Criminal Justice Association, and published by the National Institute of Justice, October 1993 (NCJ 144477).

According to this definition, stalking is "a course of conduct directed at a specific person that involves repeated visual or physical proximity, nonconsensual communication, or verbal, written or implied threats, or a combination thereof, that would cause a reasonable person fear," with repeated meaning on two or more occasions. Similar to the model definition, the NVAW Survey did not required stalkers to make a credible threat of violence against victims, but did require victims to feel a high level of fear ("fear of bodily harm"). See Appendix A for the algorithms used by NVAW project staff to produce their published estimates.

Users should note that the stalking variables in Section A (A7-A11E) were not used by the Center for Policy Research to compute their published estimates of stalking victims. Rather actions that may be included in a definition of stalking and the reoccurrence of these actions were asked of respondents in Section H: Stalking Victimization. A Section L: Detailed Stalking Report was completed for each perpetrator identified by respondents in Section H (H3=1). By selecting the appropriate variables, users can replicate the project's estimates or produce other estimates based on their own criteria of what constitutes their definition of stalking.

- (6) In the B29 series of variables in the female questionnaire, respondents were asked to list their children starting with the oldest, but they did not always do so. The computer was not programmed to detect or correct for situations when the respondent may have begun with the youngest or a middle child.
- (7) Additional reports based on these data are expected to be published by the Center for Policy Research through the support of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or the National Institute of Justice. Users are encouraged to connect to these government agencies' websites for information on obtaining any future reports.
- (8) System missing in the original data files were recoded by ICPSR to numeric values and labeled as 'Missing.' The majority of the system missing cases correspond to cases where the question was not applicable, to low case counts for some variables from recording multiple responses by each respondent, or to inapplicable cases that resulted from using one record layout for both data files. For most categorical variables, the numeric value used was the next available 9-code (e.g., 9 for a 1 column-wide variable, 99 for a 2-column wide variable, etc.). If code 98 or code 99 was already used by the principal investigator's coding pattern, then code -1 was used as the 'Missing' code. For continuous variables, code -1 was used. Only the codes labeled as 'Missing' are declared as missing values in the SPSS and SAS data definition statements.

- (9) The information for three variables, ZIP (Zip Code), FIPS (FIPS code, and STATE (State Code) have been blanked in the public use version of the data files. These variables are available in the private use version of the data files obtained through the NACJD Private Use / Restricted Use Archive. Data in this restricted use archive are provided to the requestor only upon receipt of a completed, legally-binding transfer agreement form through which the requestor promises to maintain the confidentiality of the data and use the data only for research purposes. The form must be accompanied by a letter proposal or brief written proposal that explains why the restricted variables are needed for the requestor's research project. An institutional signature is also required. The data transfer agreement form can be requested from NACJD staff or downloaded in an PDF file from the NACJD website at:

<http://www.icpsr.umich.edu/NACJD/private.pdf>

- (10) The date of the interview is provided in three variables of month, day, and year. The year is recorded as a two-digit value in the data. Users interested in using this variable for analysis of duration will want to convert the year to a four-digit value. Users can use one of the following examples after the SPSS or SAS syntax files have been used to read the ASCII data file into SPSS or SAS, respectively. A display format is given but users can elect to use a format of their choice. A listing of the original values and created values is shown after the conversion.

Example to convert to a MMDDYYYY format using SPSS:

compute intwyr=year+1900.
compute intwdte=date.mdy(mon,day,intwyr).
format intwdte (adate10).
```

```
list mo day year intwyr intwdte.
```

```
MO DAY YEAR INTWYR INTWDTE
1 3 96 1996 01/03/1996
```

Example to convert to a MMDDYYYY format using SAS:

intwyr=year+1900;
intwdte=mdy(mon,day,intwyr);
format intwdte mmddy10.;
```

```
put mo day year intwyr intwdte;
1 3 96 1996 01/03/1996

WAVE 29

★Because of the large number of interviews to be completed, the survey was fielded as a series of replicate samples, or waves. In addition, two sets of rape and stalking screening questions were fielded in the first two waves (A&B). Results from Wave A and Wave B were analyzed and the questionnaire revised to incorporate the most useable screening questions. The revised version of the questionnaire was fielded in subsequent waves (C,D,E,F, Spanish, and callback conversions).

SECTION F: RAPE VICTIMIZATION

Two different sets of rape screening questions were fielded during Wave A and Wave B of the survey. Wave A respondents (N=500 women) were asked Version A rape screening questions and Wave B respondents (N=501) were asked Version B.

Version A consists of two questions:

Has a man or boy ever made or tried to make you have sex by using force or threatening to harm you or someone close to you? Just so there is no mistake, by sex we mean putting a penis in your vagina, anus, or mouth?

Has anyone, male or female, ever put or tried to put their fingers, tongue or objects in your vagina or anus against your will by using force or threats?

Version B consists of four questions:★

Has a man or boy every made or tried to make you have sex by using force or threatening to harm you or someone close to you? Just so there is not mistake, by sex we mean putting a penis in your vagina?

Has anyone, male or female, ever made or tried to make you have oral sex by using force or threat of harm. Just so there is no mistake, by oral sex we mean that a man or boy put his penis in your mouth, or someone, male or female, penetrated your vagina or anus with their mouth or tongue?

Has anyone ever made or tried to make you have anal sex by using force or threat of harm? Just so there is no mistake, by anal sex we man that a man or boy put his penis in your anus?

Has anyone, male or female, ever put fingers or objects in your vagina or anus against your will by using force or threats?

Results from Wave A and Wave B were analyzed to determine which set of rape screening questions was more useable. Version C of the questionnaire, which was administered during subsequent waves of the survey, consists of all four of the questions in Version B, plus one question pertaining to attempted rape (see below). Lifetime prevalence estimates for attempted and completed rape reported by the Center for Policy Research are derived from data generated by Version C of the questionnaire

★These questions were used in The Women Study. See Rape in America: A Report to the Nation, National Victim Center and the Crime Victims Research and Treatment Center, 211 Wilson Boulevard, Suite 300, Arlington, VA 22201, April 23, 1992.

SECTION H: STALKING VICTIMIZATION

Two different sets of stalking screening questions were fielded during Wave A and Wave B of the survey. Wave A respondents (N=500 women) were asked Version A stalking screening questions and Wave B respondents (N=501) were asked Version B.

Version A consists of one composite question:

Has anyone, male or female, ever frightened you on more than one occasion by following you, spying on you, communicating with you against your will, or engaging in other harassing acts?

Version B consists of a checklist of behaviorally specific questions and a follow-up question about whether the behavior happened on more than one occasion:

Now I'm going to read you a list of other frightening or harassing things someone may have done to you. Not including bill collectors, telephone solicitors, or other sales people, please tell me if anyone, male or female, has ever done any of these things to you. Has anyone, male or female, ever...

*Followed or spied on you?
Sent you unsolicited letters or written correspondence?
Made unsolicited calls to you?
Stood outside your home or place of work or recreation?
Showed up at places you were even though he or she had no business being there?
Left unwanted items for you to find?
Tried to communicate with you in other ways against your will?*

IF YES: Has anyone done any of these things to you on more than one occasion?

Results from Wave A and Wave B were analyzed to determine which set of stalking screening questions was more useable. Version C of the questionnaire, which was administered during subsequent waves of the survey, consists of a modified Version B.

Prevalence estimates for stalking reported by the Center for Policy Research are derived from data generated by all versions of the questionnaire. However, to be counted as stalking victims, respondents had to report being very frightened of their assailant's behavior or fearing they or someone close to them would be harmed or killed (see L4 and L17).

H1 Now I'd like to ask you some questions about following or harassment you may have experienced on more than one occasion by strangers, friends, relatives or even husbands and partners.
