Title: Marital Instability Over the Life Course [United States]: A Six-Wave Panel Study, 1980, 1983, 1988, 1992-1994, 1997, 2000

ICPSR Study Number: 3812

Funding Agency: United States Department of Health and Human Services. National Institute on Aging

Grant Number: 1-RO1-AGO4146

Summary: To examine the causes of marital instability throughout the life course, six waves of data were collected between 1980 and 2000 from married individuals who were between the ages of 18 and 55 in 1980. Information collected in 1980 (Wave I) focused on the effects of wives' participation in the labor force on marriage and marital instability. Measures predicting marital instability and divorce and assessing marital quality were developed. Variables include information on earnings, commitment to work, hours worked, and occupational status. The focus of Wave II, conducted in 1983, was to link changes in factors such as economic resources, wife's employment, presence of children, marital satisfaction, life goals, and health to actions intended to dissolve a marriage, such as divorce and permanent separation. Information on adjustment to marital dissolution, relationship with in-laws, size of home, parents' employment, use of free time, club membership, child-care arrangements, and responsibility for chores was gathered. Wave III, collected in 1988, further examined the impact of changes in employment, economics, and health on marital relationships. Questions were asked about divorce and remarriage, investment of energy and resource use in the care of aging parents and dependent offspring, asset value, awareness of aging, mental health issues, and history of disease. In 1992, Wave IV data were collected to look at changes in employment, economics, and health. Questions were asked about retirement issues, family structure, and the impact of caring for aging parents while at the same time caring for dependent offspring. Data were also collected in 1992 and 1994 from adult offspring who were living in the household in 1980 and had reached age 19 by 1992, thus providing parallel measures with their parents regarding the quality of parent-child relationships, attitudes, and support along with exploring the impact of childhood experiences on the transition to adult life. In 1997, the fifth wave was collected and interviews were conducted with a second sample of adult offspring (N=202) along with second interviews of offspring selected in 1992 (N=606). Wave V also examined the relationship between marital quality and stability and how it relates to changes in marital quality later in life. In 2000, Wave VI data were collected. Included with the adult panel was a panel obtained from the offspring who participated in 1992 or 1997, a replicate of the original cross-section study completed in 1980 (comprised of currently married persons between the ages of 19 and 55), along with a comparison sample made up of persons who were married in 1980 and were between 39 and 75 years old. The investigators examined whether there were changes in marital quality between 1980 and 2000, identified factors that might have accounted for these changes, and sought to determine their impact on the health and longevity of older persons. New questions included in Wave VI covered whether the respondent thought he/she had an organized lifestyle, alcohol and tobacco use, health problems, physical limitations, and mattering (the level of concern expressed for and received from spouse). Among the variables included in all six waves are age, sex, educational attainment, marital status and history, attitude toward divorce, number of children, religious affiliation, and income level.

Universe: All intact marriages in the continental United States with partners between the ages of 18 and 55 in 1980 and living in households with telephones.

Sample: National probability sample. The sample was selected using a random-digit dialing cluster technique. Data were weighted to adjust for underrepresentation in metropolitan areas.

Date of Collection: fall 1980, fall 1983, spring 1988, 1992, 1994, 1997, 2000

PREFACE

The purpose of this report is to provide information on the technical aspects of the data collected in 2000. Four data sets were collected in 2000: (1) sixth wave of interviews (referred to as the adult panel) with a national sample of persons who were married in 1980 and interviewed in 1980, 1983, 1988, 1992, and 1997, (2) a short mail survey (referred to as the offspring panel) administered to the offspring panel respondents who participated either in 1992 or 1997, (3) a nationwide random digit dialing (RDD) cross-section of currently married persons between the ages of 19 and 55, (referred to as the cross-section) designed as a replicate of the original cross-section study completed in 1980, and (4) a comparison sample of persons who would have been eligible for the original panel study conducted in 1980, (referred to as the comparison sample) eligible respondents for this group had to be persons married in 1980 and between the ages of 39 and 75.

Entitled “Marital Instability Over the Life Course 1980-1998,” data and methodology reports on the first five waves are available from Data Archivist, Population Research Institute, Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802 (darragh@pop.psu.edu) and Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, MI 48106. The sixth wave was funded, in part, by grant number 1 R01 AG16346-02 from the National Institute on Aging.

The theoretical framework guiding the sixth wave of investigation may be found in the proposal in Appendix A. The purpose of the sixth wave was to continue examining the relationship between life course and marital instability. The study focuses on three issues. First, considerable debate centers on the question of whether marital quality has changed in recent decades. The present study informs this debate by examining changes in marital quality between 1980 and 2000 and identifying factors accounting for these changes. Second, changes in marriage and family life have consequences for the health and longevity of the middle-aged and elderly; however, only a few aspects of marriage and family life have been studied in this context, and the mechanisms are not well understood. The results of this study will provide a comprehensive picture of the impact of family and marital history on health. Third, the number of family and life course scholars employing longitudinal designs has increased in recent years, yet we know little about the ways in which panel attrition affects the accuracy of findings. The present study will compare cross-sectional and longitudinal data to gain a better understanding of panel attrition, as well as how biases resulting from attrition might be corrected. The remainder of the report describes the following activities in detail: tracking procedures, selecting the cross-section sample, interview schedule construction and pretest, obtaining the interviews, response rates, representativeness of the 2000 interview, and management of the study.

RESEARCH PROCEDURES

Tracking Members of the Panel. To maintain the integrity of the panel, respondents were tracked in the fall of 1999. Letters were sent to all respondents giving them a progress report on the study (Appendix C). The letters were sent with “Address Correction Requested” so that study staff were informed of address changes and bad addresses where the letter could not be delivered. Those individuals were tracked and lists of addresses and telephone numbers updated.

All offspring respondents that participated in either 1992 or 1997 were sent a letter in the spring of 2000 updating them on the study. Also included was a short survey asking about changes in their work/family life since 1997. A postcard reminder followed by an identical survey were sent to those respondents who had not yet returned the short survey (Appendix C). Several surveys came back unopened due to incorrect addresses; therefore, a substantial amount of tracking was conducted. Tracking consisted of searching the internet for updated addresses and telephone numbers, contacting references offered by the respondent in the last wave of data collection, and contacting the offspring respondent’s parent who participated in the adult panel survey.

Selecting respondents for the cross-section sample. A random digit dialing (RDD) procedure was utilized to select the 2000 cross-section and comparison samples. The sampling frame for the cross-section was designed to replicate the selection of respondents used in 1980. To be eligible for the cross-section, respondents had to be 19-55 years old, currently married and living with their spouse. The comparison sample was designed to select respondents who would have been eligible for the original 1980 study. To be eligible for the comparison sample, respondents had to be 39-75 years old, married and living with their spouse in 1980. The comparison sample screening was omitted from waves 8 and 9 because a large enough sample of people married in 1980 was already obtained from waves 1-7.

When a household was contacted, the interviewer asked how many adults between 19 and 75 years of age permanently resided in that household. (This screening process was changed for waves 8 and 9, where households were asked how many residents were between 19 and 55.) Once the interviewer entered the number of adults, the computer randomly selected the designated respondent. This person was then designated as the only person in that household to be interviewed. Once the designated respondent was on the telephone, a few screening questions were asked. Respondents were asked which age category they belonged, then based on that answer they were asked if they were currently married and living with their spouse (asked if between 19-55) and/or if they were married and living with their spouse in 1980 (asked if between 39-75). If the respondent fit into either category, they were administered the survey (the cross-section and comparison sample were administered the same survey). If they did not fit into either category, they were screened out of the study and that household was considered ineligible.

Interview Construction and Pre-test. Three surveys were created for 2000 data collection. Using most of the scaled individual items from 1997, the 2000 adult panel survey was similar to the 1997 one. Another survey was created for the 2000 RDD cross-section and the comparison sample, a close replicate of the original 1980 survey with some additional items that appeared in subsequent waves. Items included in both surveys are marital quality measures, household division of labor, employment experience, residential mobility, attitudes towards divorce, factors judged to keep the marriage together, extent to which the individual's spouse met his/her expectations, mental/physical health, adjustment among the divorced and permanently separated, locus of control, and items assessing people's evaluation of the timing of their retirement (Appendices F, H, and I). The adult panel survey also includes changes in household composition and fertility, and changes in marital situation. A few new sets of questions were added to the questionnaire in the sixth wave after being pre-tested: organized lifestyle, alcohol and tobacco use, health problems, physical limitations, and mattering (concern for and from spouse). Appendix D lists the questions that were pre-tested. Skip patterns were created and a few items were dropped after analyzing the pre-test data.

A third survey was created for the offspring panel. This survey included a short report of changes that occurred since 1997, demographic questions such as age, income, education, employment, and a few additional attitudinal questions. See Appendix C for the mail survey format and Appendix G for the frequencies.

Computer aided telephone interviewing was used for the adult panel and the new cross-section and comparison sample surveys. Interviewing manuals are found in Appendix J. The offspring survey was created as a mail survey; however, in an effort to increase the response rate, some interviews were collected through telephone calls.

Obtaining the Interview. Every effort was made to re-interview the adult panel respondents. Respondents who had relocated outside the United States were called or sent the interview schedule by mail. Respondents who could not be reached because the telephone was no longer in service or because someone else had been assigned the number were turned over to trackers. We contacted the personal references of respondents who we were unable to track by internet, mail or telephone for forwarding addresses or new telephone numbers. People who initially refused to be re-interviewed were called back by another interviewer. Due to the resistance we found with doing the long interview over the telephone, a mail survey was offered as an option for reluctant respondents. As a result, 105 respondents completed the entire survey via mail. There were still a substantial number of panel respondents who did not return the original mail survey; therefore, a new shorter version of the survey was created. This survey was sent through the mail to all non-respondents (Appendix C). The response to this short mail survey was poor, so additional efforts were made to obtain these interviews. All non-respondents were called and asked to do the short survey over the telephone. If they did not want to complete the survey over the telephone, they were asked to return the mail survey that they had already been sent. The short survey produced an additional 47 interviews (25 by telephone and 22 by mail).

The offspring panel was sent a short survey through the mail (Appendix C). All bad addresses were tracked using the internet, contacting their parents, or personal references provided by the respondent during the last wave. Respondents were offered the option of completing the survey over the internet; however, only one respondent did so. After trying to conduct the mail survey by sending the survey, a postcard reminder, and a follow-up survey, the response rate was less than 60%. In order to improve the response rate, all non-respondents were called and asked to do the survey over the telephone. Collecting additional data over the telephone increased the response rate to 86%. Because the offspring panel is made up of young adults who relocate often, it is likely that the remaining non-respondents are offspring who never received the survey because we could not locate them.

To address the challenges associated with obtaining data from a new cross-section of married persons nationwide, pre-notification incentives were implemented for the cross-section and comparison samples. Pre-notification incentives were not part of the original study design; however, we found that our response rate was low for the first three waves of sample, so we added pre-notification letters to the design in an effort to increase the response rate. Starting with the fourth wave, the sample telephone numbers were reverse matched with the name and address of the person assigned to that telephone number. Pre-notification letters were sent to all names and addresses that matched our sample telephone numbers (Appendix C). Part of the wave four matches were also sent a $2 bill along with their letter as an added incentive (Appendix C). We found that sending the pre-notification letter along with the $2 bill was the most successful at increasing the response rate; therefore, sample waves five through nine were all reverse matched, and all matches were sent a pre-notification letter with a $2 bill incentive. In addition, refusals from the first three waves were also reverse matched. The first set of refusals, which included refusals that occurred during the first month of data collection were reverse matched and then mailed a pre-notification letter. Another batch of refusals that occurred after the first month were also reverse matched, and then they were mailed a pre-notification letter along with a $2 bill incentive. As another incentive, while trying to convert refusals, some were offered $10 upon completion of the interview, but this option was only accepted by 44 respondents.

In addition to offering incentives to respondents, an alternative data collection method was offered. Some respondents were unwilling to do the survey over the phone, but were receptive to the idea of completing the survey on their own time using a computer. The survey was too long and complicated to put on the internet or to make a paper copy, so the survey was put onto a disk and then mailed to the respondents. The respondent was then able to insert the disk into their home computer and complete the survey on the disk and then mail it back to us (Appendix C). Of the 102 disk surveys mailed out, 36 (35.3%) were returned as completed interviews.

Response Rate Estimates. Of the 1,066 people who were interviewed in 1997,* we succeeded in re-interviewing 962 (90.2%) of the adults (Table 1).

* We did not attempt to re-interview respondents who partially completed the 1997 interview, but refused to finish.

All offspring who were interviewed either in 1992 or 1997 were sent a short survey through the mail. Offspring were eligible in 1992 if they lived with their interviewed parent in 1980 and were 7 years of age or older in that year. Offspring were eligible in 1997 if they lived with their interviewed parent in 1980 and were between the ages of 2 and 6 in that year. Table 2 shows the estimated response rates of offspring panel respondents. We succeeded in re-interviewing 595 (86.1%) of the offspring panel. This survey was designed as a mail survey, but calling the respondents and having them do the survey over the phone increased the response rate by 27.9%. Most of the remaining respondents were cases that never returned their survey, which included several respondents that we were unable to track, so several did not receive the survey at all.

Before analyzing the response rates for the cross-section RDD sample, a couple of unique problems associated with the RDD sample used in this study will be briefly discussed. Determining an exact response rate is difficult to produce using an RDD sample because it is sometimes impossible to determine a final outcome for each telephone number included in the sample. Due to the RDD sample design, several numbers in the sample are not working numbers. While many non-working numbers reach a message that explains the status of that telephone number, such as being disconnected or unassigned, a substantial number of non-working numbers remain without a final outcome because they never reach a message recording. The telephone numbers that are not assigned a final outcome typically are numbers that produce a ring with no answer or a fast busy signal. These numbers are called several times, but often remain without a final outcome.

Groves and Kahn (1979) examined these types of telephone numbers and found that a large proportion of the numbers were unassigned. Through researching efforts to determine why these numbers ring, they discovered that many of these numbers were switched to ringing machines rather than voice recording machines (that explain the status of that number), due largely to central offices not being able to afford enough voice recordings to handle all of the unassigned telephone numbers.

In addition to non-working telephone numbers, another problem encountered when determining response rates for this sample is the screening process used to select eligible respondents. Not all working household numbers were eligible to participate in this study. The household member randomly selected had to be either currently married and between that ages of 19 and 55 or married in 1980 and between the ages of 39 and 75. (For waves 8 and 9, the respondent had to fit into the 19 to 55 currently married category.) The cross-section and comparison sample shared the same sample database. Since we do not know which telephone numbers have eligible respondents in which eligibility group, it is impossible to calculate individual response rates, so the cross-section and comparison sample response rates are calculated together.

Table 3 presents the outcome of all the calls included in the RDD sample. Out of all the telephone numbers included in the sample, 3428 (11.9%) were known eligible households where the randomly selected respondent was eligible for the study. This number only includes those cases that eligibility was determined, which means the respondent answered a few questions to determine eligibility. A few of the other categories (refusals, non-response, and no resolution) also probably include some eligible telephone numbers; however, these households were never asked the screening questions to determine eligibility. Of the cases that were asked the screening questions, 44.7% were found to be eligible for the study. A similar proportion of eligible respondents is expected to be found among the “refusal,” “non-response,” and the “no resolution, working number” categories where eligibility was not determined. The remaining category that may contain some eligible cases, “no resolution, unknown if working number,” falls into the type of telephone numbers investigated by Groves and Kahn (1979). Based on their analysis, our estimate of working numbers in that category is 10%. Of that 10% working numbers, the same proportion of eligible respondents (44.7%) used for the other categories previously mentioned would be applied.

Table 4 presents the dispositions of all households that were determined to be eligible for the study. Of the 3428 known eligible households, 3092 (90.2%) resulted in a completed interview, with an additional 136 (4.0%) resulting in a partially completed interview. Refusals make up most of the remaining eligible households with 153 (4.5%). Most of the initial refusals were called back by another interviewer in an attempt to convert, of which 483 were converted into a completed interview. The 35 “no resolution” cases include eligible respondents who we were still trying to complete the interview with; we had already determined their eligibility, but the data collection period ended before we could conduct the survey with them. Finally, the “non-interview” cases are those in which eligibility was determined, but the respondent was found to be unable to complete the interview because of language difficulties or health problems.

A few different response rates were calculated for the 2000 cross-section/comparison survey. Unfortunately, the sample consists of telephone numbers rather than specific persons; therefore, the response rate can be interpreted in two ways. Table 5 shows the various formulas used to calculate the response, cooperation, and refusal rates; and Table 6 shows the calculated rates.

The first interpretation is considering the response rate of cooperation among all possible working household telephone numbers regardless of eligibility for the study. To calculate this, the total number of interviews (completed, partially completed, and screen-out interviews) is divided by the sum of the number of interviews, the number of non-interviews (refusals, non-response, and no resolution working telephone numbers), and the number of all telephone numbers where working status is unknown. Response rate 1A (51.1%) calculates this rate by estimating that all of the no resolution telephone numbers are possible working household numbers. Response rate 1B (60.9%) is different by assuming that only 10% of the no resolution telephone numbers whose working status is unknown are actually working household numbers. Grove and Kahn (1979) found a large proportion of those type of telephone numbers to be non-working; however an exact proportion was not provided. We believe an estimate of 10% is a relatively conservative estimate of working numbers in this category.

The other interpretation is calculating the response rate only for eligible numbers, that is, working household numbers with an eligible designated respondent. All working household telephone numbers where the designated respondent does not qualify for the study would be considered ineligible. Response rate 2 (58.9%) is calculated by dividing the number of eligible interviews (completed and partially completed) by the sum of the number of eligible interviews, eligible refusals, eligible non-response, eligible no resolution, plus the proportion of eligibility (number of eligible households divided by the number of eligible household plus the number of households determined to be ineligible) multiplied by refusals, non-response, and no resolution cases where eligibility is not known plus the estimate of working numbers falling in the no resolution, unknown working status category.

The cooperation rate determines the rate of cooperation among eligible units (known working telephone numbers in the sample). The cooperation rate (62.2%) is calculated by dividing the number of interviews (completed, partially completed, and screen-out interviews) by the number of interviews plus the number of non-interviews (refusals, non-response, and no resolution working telephone numbers). The cooperation rate is similar to the response rate, but it omits those numbers with an unknown working status.

The refusal rate is calculated similar to the response rates. Refusal rate 1A (23.9%) is calculated by dividing the number of refusals (both eligible and unknown eligibility) by the sum of the number of interviews (completed, partially completed, and screen-out interviews), the number of non-interviews (refusals, non-response, and no resolution working telephone numbers), and the number of all telephone numbers where working status is unknown. Refusal rate 1B (28.5%) is calculated using the estimate that only 10% of the no resolution, unknown working status telephone numbers are valid working numbers.

Analyzing the response rates for the various levels of pre-incentives shows that all approaches increased the response rate. Table 6 also shows the response, cooperation, and refusal rates for each pre-notification incentive group. There is a difference of 15-23% in response rates between those that were sent pre-notification letters with $2 and those that were not sent pre-notification letter or incentive.

Table 7 shows the effects of letters and incentives sent as a method of converting refusals for the first three waves of sample. The pre-notification system was not utilized until wave four of the sample, so after respondents from the first three waves initially refused, their telephone numbers were reverse matched. All of these matches were then sent a pre-notification letter or a pre-notification letter and a $2 bill as an attempt to convert the refusals. Converting refusals was more successful when they were sent some type of pre-notification; there was a 6-20% difference between converting refusals who did not receive any type of refusal conversion pre-notification and those who did. The $2 incentive, however, did not appear to have any more of an effect than the pre-notification letter alone.

Representativeness. To understand how attrition affected our panel sample, the 1980 characteristics of the individuals interviewed in 2000 were compared with the characteristics of the entire sample in 1980. For comparisons with intermediate waves, the reader may consult “Marital Instability Over the Life Course Methodology Report and Code book for Fifth Wave Panel Study, 1998.” The left half of Table 8 shows the comparisons in characteristics among the original 1980 panel respondents and the 1980 characteristics of the panel respondents re-interviewed in 2000. The right half of table 8 shows the comparisons in current characteristics of the remaining panel respondents interviewed in 2000 and the current characteristics of the 2000 comparison sample, made up of persons nationwide that would have been eligible for the original 1980 cross-section.

In general, the characteristics of those we were able to re-interview in 2000 are similar to those in the 1980 sample. Attrition did occur in predictable categories, namely; those who were in the youngest and oldest age categories, blacks, males, renters, those households where the husband did not have any college education, southern residents, and those residing in metropolitan areas. In all cases the differences are very slight, most less than 4%.

The comparison of the 2000 current panel characteristics with the 2000 comparison sample suggests that most basic demographic characteristics are similar in both data sets (Table 8). The characteristic suggesting the greatest bias is single person households; the comparison sample suggests that the number of one person households is 9.2% higher than the panel data suggest. This may suggest that attrition has been highest among panel respondents who are living alone. There are differences in representation of the southern region (9.6%) and metropolitan areas (12.1%); however, it is important to note that the percentages used to characterize the 2000 panel is drawn from the 1980 data because region and metropolitan residence were not determined for panel respondents re-interviewed in 2000. It is possible that some panel respondents have moved during the past 20 years; however, the trend of decreased representation among those living in the southern region and in metropolitan areas was also illustrated in the comparison of the 1980 sample characteristics with the current panel respondents' 1980 characteristics. Similar to the difference in husband's education found in the 1980 characteristic comparison, the 2000 data comparison suggests that the representation of college educated husbands is higher (9%) in the panel data than the comparison sample. Nearly all of the remaining differences between the 2000 panel data and the 2000 comparison sample data are less than 5%.

Logistic analysis was used to test whether some demographic and marital quality variables affect the probability of not being included in the sixth wave of interviews. Two analyses are shown in table 9. The top panel tests whether 1997 demographic characteristics affect the probability of a re-interview in 2000. All of the variables were entered into the equation at the same time. None of the 1997 demographic variables had significant effects on the probability of a re-interview in 2000.

The bottom panel shows the effect of five 1997 marital quality indicators on the probability of being re-interviewed in 2000 while controlling for respondent's age, gender, tenure, and education, as well as whether children were present in the household. Each marital quality variable was estimated separately. None of the 1997 variables significantly predicted a re-interview in 2000. These results suggest that obtained estimates will not be biased against any particular group, and any conclusions made from the sample will, for the most part, be representative of the target population.

To understand the factors that influenced whether or not an offspring interview was obtained, we used logistic regression to test whether 1997 parent demographic and marital quality variables affected the probability of a re-interview. The top panel of table 10 shows the influence of the demographic factors and in the bottom panel, the influence of the quality of the parent's marriage. Again, each of the marital quality variables were estimated separately.

Variables that had a significant effect on re-interview were age of interviewed parent, parental marital interaction, and parents' marital instability. Based on offspring's parental characteristics, we were less likely to obtain an offspring interview of younger adult panel respondents, adult respondents with less marital interaction, and adult respondents with more unstable marriages.

The new cross-section sample was intended to be representative of married persons (living with their spouse) between the ages of 19 and 55. The sample was limited to persons living in households within the contiguous United States and having telephones. This representation is a replicate of the designated population in the original 1980 cross-section. Weighting was applied to the original 1980 sample with regard to region and metropolitan residence; however, since we were able to access more accurate representations of people fitting in this population for 1980, a new weight was created for the 1980 sample to make it more accurately represented. In addition, a weight was created for the 2000 cross-section. Table 11 shows the representativeness of U.S. married persons under the age of 55 according to the Current Population Surveys for both 1980 and 2000. In addition, the table shows the representativeness of both the 1980 and 2000 cross-sections samples before and after weighting.

The samples were evaluated on the following characteristics: age, race, sex, household size, tenure, education, region, presence of children, and metropolitan residence. To make the 1980 cross-section more accurately representative, a new weight was created. The final weight consisted of weighting by the number of adults in the household, sex of respondent, race of respondent, education of respondent, metropolitan residence, age of respondent, household size, and then by race again. A weight was also created for the 2000 cross-section; it consisted of weighting by the number of adults in the household, sex of respondent, race of respondent, education of respondent, presence of children in the household, region, age of respondent, race a second time, household size, and then by region again. After applying the weights, all characteristics are within 2.9% of the representations offered by the Current Population Survey, with most characteristics within 1%.

Management of the Study. The procedures for managing the study were almost identical to those used in 1997 and 1992. Computer aided interviewing was again used in 2000. The process of managing the interviewers and the interviews, the quality control measures through verification, methods for data cleaning, data entry and coding were the same, as were the procedures for merging the adult and offspring data with the first five waves. The reader may want to consult the wave four methodology report for details.

Lists of responses to open ended items are shown in Appendix K. Scales for key variables were constructed in much the same manner as in prior years. How they were constructed can be found in Appendix L, and their frequency distributions appear in Appendices F, G, H, and I. Appendix E shows the skip patterns used for the adult panel and cross-section/comparison surveys by showing the eligibility requirements for each question included on the surveys. A list of the variables in the merged panel file and in the cross-section/comparison files is contained in Appendix M, and a list of study staff may be found in Appendix B.

RESEARCH PLAN

A. SPECIFIC AIMS

A generation ago, marital change was reaching its stride. Over the last 20 years, some aspects of family life have stabilized (such as the high divorce rate), while others have continued to change (such as the employment of married mothers with young children). Considerable debate centers on whether this flux has influenced the quality of American marriages. The results of the proposed study will inform this debate. The first aim of the proposed study is to evaluate whether marital quality has remained the same, improved, or declined between 1980 and 2000, and to delineate the factors that account for this change. Preliminary evidence suggests that marital and family changes have the potential to affect the health and longevity of the middle-aged and elderly--a rapidly growing segment of the U.S. population. However, only a few aspects of marriage and family life have been studied, and the mechanisms at work are not well understood. The results of the proposed study will provide a comprehensive picture of the impact of family and marital history on health. The second aim is to assess the extent to which family-of-origin characteristics and marital history erode or enhance people's physical health and psychological well-being over the life course, and to specify the mechanisms at work. Much of our knowledge of the life course comes from longitudinal research. Yet, we know relatively little about how panel attrition affects the veracity of our findings, or how to correct for attrition bias. The third aim is to understand how differences in people's histories affect whether they leave longitudinal studies, assess the extent to which attrition affects study findings, and develop ways to adjust for attrition bias. Finally, the proposed investigation builds on a unique research asset. The Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study is one of the longest running national studies of marriage in existence, and the only one with detailed information on marital quality and interaction. By expanding the period of study to 20 years, the addition of a sixth wave of data will significantly increase the value of this public use data set. Consequently, the fourth aim is to enhance the value of the Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study by collecting additional data.

To achieve these aims, we propose to build on the Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study, which began in 1980 as a national survey of 2,033 married persons under age 55 (Booth et al., 1991). These individuals were interviewed four additional times between 1983 and 1997. To achieve the first aim (studying changes in marital quality), we will replicate the original 1980 survey in the year 2000; this will require interviewing a new cross-section of 2,000 married persons under the age of 55 in that year. To achieve the second aim (understanding how family and marital history affects health), we will interview the original sample a sixth time. In addition to repeating the core of longitudinal questions, we will add new items dealing with health to the interview schedule. To achieve the third aim (understanding attrition bias in longitudinal research), we will supplement the new cross-section with additional respondents between the ages 38 and 75 who had been married in 1980. Comparing the sixth wave of data with the new cross-section will allow a detailed analysis of attrition bias. Finally, our focus on health (aim 2) is but one of many topics that researchers could investigate with 6-wave panel data. In general, the availability of six waves of data over a 20-year period, combined with a new cross-section, will achieve our fourth aim (to enhance the value and usefulness of our data set for other researchers).

B. BACKGROUND AND SIGNIFICANCE

Theoretical Orientation

The life course perspective is a major theoretical orientation in family studies, and provides an organizing framework for our research. This perspective is concerned not only with changes that occur as people age, but also with the manner in which historical change in the larger society affects the lives of individuals (Bengtson and Allen, 1994). According to Elder (1994), the life course perspective has four central themes.

First, the life course perspective considers families in their historical context. In the proposed study, by comparing a new cross-section of married individuals in the year 2000 with the original 1980 cross-section, we will be able to estimate the effects of large-scale social change on the quality and stability of marriage. Between 1980 and 2000, the proportion of wives and mothers in the paid labor force grew (U.S. Bureau of the Census, 1996), women experienced real increases in earned income (Spain and Bianchi, 1996), the percentage of poor families increased (Zill and Nord, 1994), and attitudes toward divorce became more accepting (Thornton, 1989). Yet, we know surprisingly little about the impact of these changes on the quality and stability of marriage. It is possible, for example, that as the number of dual-earner couples has increased, work-family conflict has raised the overall level of tension in marriage. Another possibility is that the growing social acceptance of divorce has lowered the threshold of marital happiness required for people to think about and initiate steps toward divorce. In our research, we plan to relate the behavior and experiences of married individuals to changes in the larger society during this 20-year period.

Second, the life course perspective focuses attention on the timing and sequencing of events. In relation to the new cross-section, we intend to see how changes in the timing and sequencing of events, such as cohabitation, first birth, and age at marriage between 1980 and 2000, have affected the quality and stability of marriage. Compared with earlier marriage cohorts, recent cohorts are more likely to cohabit prior to marriage, have a child prior to marriage, and marry at older ages. It is not clear, however, how changes in the timing and sequencing of family events, taken together, have affected marriage.

In relation to the longitudinal component of the proposed study, we also plan to examine the timing and sequencing of events, such as divorce. Divorces that occur when individuals are in their 20s, compared with divorces that occur when individuals are in their 40s, may have less effect on the quality of second marriages and on later life health and well-being. People divorcing in their 20s are likely to be dissolving short-term marriages and have good remarriage prospects, whereas people divorcing in their 40s are likely to be dissolving long-term marriages and have poorer remarriage prospects. Moreover, whether the divorce follows the birth of children determines if the second marriage entails a stepfamily relationship—a factor known to affect the quality of family relationships and the stability of remarriages (White and Booth, 1985).

Third, the life course perspective emphasizes the interdependence of lives over time. Although early research tended to emphasize the influence of parents on children, it also is true that children influence parents—an idea we intend to explore in our study. For example, in relation to the new year 2000 cross-section, we intend to see if factors such as increases in premarital fertility and the presence of stepchildren in families are responsible for shifts in marital quality during the last 20 years.

The longitudinal component will allow us to consider whether parents' decisions to divorce have consequences for offspring that persist across the entire life course. We know that young adult children of divorced parents are more likely to see their own marriages end in divorce, attain lower levels of socioeconomic status, and have poorer psychological well-being (Amato and Booth, 1997). However, it is not clear if the consequences of parental divorce persist into offspring's later years. Our research will examine various dimensions of respondents' health and well-being in the middle and later years in relation to their childhood family structure.

Finally, the life course perspective views individuals as being active rather than passive. Consequently, we do not see peoples' marriages as being shaped in a deterministic fashion by forces beyond their control. Instead, we see large-scale changes (such as shifts in the economy or the law) as contextual variables that create opportunities as well as constraints. Within this context, people make choices about marriage and family life at pivotal points in their lives. Indeed, many of the factors noted above, including those relating to the timing and duration of events (premarital cohabitation, age at marriage) result from the choices people make. Because we have always been guided by this assumption, we include a large number of items in our study that measure people's attitudes, perceptions, preferences, and decisions.

Moreover, although individuals may grow up in troubled families, they often manage to have healthy marriages and satisfying personal lives. In contrast, others growing up in troubled families have a lifetime of unhappy marriages and transitory cohabitation experiences. In the later years, long-term outcomes may be related to whether individuals have made good decisions about forming intimate relationships and have acquired useful relationship skills. The longitudinal component of the proposed study will allow us to explore these ideas.

Aim One: Changes in Marital Quality Between 1980-2000

Following a period of stable divorce rates during the post-World War II period and the 1950s, the divorce rate began to increase during the early 1960s. It doubled during the 1970s, then leveled off during the 1980s at a historically high level. Currently, about one-half of all first marriages are expected to end in divorce (Cherlin, 1992). The increased rate of divorce may reflect the fact that it is easier now than in the past to leave unhappy marriages due to increasingly tolerant community attitudes, the introduction of no-fault divorce, and the growing economic independence of women. Alternatively, it is possible that the increase in divorce reflects a deterioration in the quality of marriage since the early 1960s.

Marital quality may have declined during this historical period for several reasons. First, marital relationships may have been affected by the drop in men's real wages since the early 1970s. This drop was due to declines in manufacturing, mining, and construction industries and corresponding increases in unemployment and underemployment (Hernandez, 1993; Zill and Nord, 1994). Second, dramatic increases in labor force participation among mothers of young children have increased the potential for work-family conflict (U.S. Bureau of the Census, Fig. 21, 1992). The employment of both spouses creates difficulties in managing time and finding suitable child care. Moreover, conflict over the household division of labor is a cause of tension in many marriages (Hochschild, 1989). Third, both women and men--but particularly women--have become less traditional in their gender role attitudes since the late 1960s (Thornton, 1989); this change has increased the likelihood of disagreements over gender roles within marriage. Fourth, expectations for marriage have risen at the same time that the number of single people in the population has increased (due to later marriage and divorce). Unmet expectations, combined with the availability of alternative partners, may undermine people's commitment to making their current marriages work (Glenn, 1996). Finally, some observers argue that there has been a growth of individualistic values and a decline in support for the norm of life-long marriage in American culture (Bellah, Madsen, Sullivan, Swidler, and Tipton, 1985; Popenoe, 1988). Because divorce is readily available, spouses with an individualistic orientation may invest relatively little effort in resolving disagreements, thus eroding relationship quality. Each of these factors may have made marriage a more difficult and less secure arrangement than it was several decades ago.

However, other changes since the 1960s, such as increases in education, increases in age at first marriage, and declines in marital fertility (Bumpass, Martin, and Sweet, 1991; U.S. Bureau of the Census, 1992) may have improved marital quality. Indeed, these changes may have offset some of the decline suggested above, or even resulted in a net improvement in the quality of marriage.

How has marital quality changed, overall, during the last few decades? Some limited evidence supports the argument that marital quality has declined. Using merged data from the General Social Survey, Glenn (1991) demonstrated that the percentage of people reporting that their marriages were "very happy" dropped gradually from 1973 to 1988. This is the opposite of what one would expect if the rise in divorce were due only to the more frequent ending of unhappy marriages. If divorce removes poor marriages from the pool of married couples, then remaining marriages should be happier now, on average, than in the past.

Similarly, using data from the Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study, Rogers and Amato (1997) compared data from two groups: the sample of original respondents (interviewed in 1980) and the sample of adult offspring of the original respondents (interviewed in 1992). Two samples were constructed for the analysis: 914 married individuals from the original sample who were between 20 and 35 years of age in 1980 (mean age = 27.2), and 154 married individuals from the offspring sample who were between 20 and 35 years of age in 1992 (mean age = 27.2). These two groups represented distinct marriage cohorts: Those in the older cohort had married between 1969 and 1980, whereas those in the younger cohort had married between 1981 and 1992. The samples were constructed so that none of the individuals in the older cohort were parents of people in the younger cohort. For the older sample, all variables were measured in 1980; for the younger sample, all variables were measured in 1992.

Rogers and Amato (1997) found significant differences between the two marriage cohorts in three of five dimensions of marital quality. The younger cohort, compared with the older cohort, reported lower levels of marital interaction and higher levels of marital conflict and marital problems. (The younger cohort, however, did not report lower levels of marital happiness or greater divorce proneness.) Controlling for age at marriage and education did not change the pattern, suggesting that increases in age at marriage and education did little to offset the cohort difference. Additional analyses were carried out in which explanatory variables were entered into regression models. These analyses indicated that much of the decline in marital quality could be accounted for by increased economic hardship (as reflected in greater use of public assistance), greater work-family conflict (due to a rise in the number of dual-earner couples with preschool- aged children), less traditional attitudes toward gender roles among wives (but not among husbands), and more premarital cohabitation. Overall, these results are consistent with the belief that recent marriage cohorts are experiencing more difficulty than earlier marriage cohorts in adapting to a rapidly changing social climate.

In the proposed study, we will compare marital quality in the 1980 and 2000 cross-sections. Scales are available to measure five dimensions of marital quality: happiness, interaction, problems, disagreements, and divorce proneness. These data will contribute to four separate but related research projects.

Changes in the level of marital quality. The first project will focus on changes in the level of marital quality between 1980 and 2000. We will begin by comparing the mean scores across the two time periods. (For exploratory purposes, we will analyze the data for husbands and wives separately.) Assuming that differences in marital quality are observed, the next step will be to explain these differences. We will begin by controlling for age, age at marriage, number of children, education, race, and marriage order. It may be that marriages in 1980 and 2000 differ in quality, but only because the two groups are differently constituted. Assuming that differences in marital quality persist, the next step will be to assess the role of several explanatory factors, including economic stress (men's and women's earnings, periods of unemployment, use of public assistance, perceptions of economic hardship), work-family conflict (dual-earner couples with preschool children), husband's and wife's gender role attitudes, the proportion of housework and child care performed by husbands, prior cohabitation, premarital births, and attitudes toward the acceptability of divorce. These variables will be introduced into regression models to determine the extent to which they account for differences in marital quality across the two groups.

Changes in the determinants of marital quality. The second project will focus on changes in the determinants of marital quality between 1980 and 2000. Social change during this time suggests that certain features of marriage may have become more or less important in affecting marital quality. For example, as wives have entered the labor force, many people's views about marriage have become more egalitarian (Thornton, 1989). Many employed wives now expect their husbands to share family work equally--an expectation that many husbands fail to meet. Consequently, the household division of labor has become a salient and contentious issue among many married couples (Hochschild, 1989). These considerations suggest the hypothesis that husbands' share of housework and child care is a better predictor of wives' marital quality in 2000 than in 1980. A second example refers to wives' income. Earlier, wives' income posed a threat to many husbands--especially traditional men who accepted the breadwinner ethic (Blumstein and Schwartz, 1984). More recently, however, as dual-earner families have become normative and as people have come to recognize that two incomes are necessary to raise a family in comfort, it is likely that wives' income has become more highly valued by husbands. Indeed, studies show that women's education, employment, and income increase their chances on the marriage market (Oppenheimer, 1994). Consistent with this reasoning, Greenstein (1990) found that wives' income was negatively associated with divorce, presumably because it eased economic strain. These considerations suggest the hypothesis that wives' income is negatively associated with marital quality in 1980 but positively associated with marital quality in 2000. These and other hypotheses will be tested by including interaction terms in regression models. For example, the first hypothesis described above would involve three variables--decade of survey, husbands' housework, and decade x husbands' housework--to predict dimensions of marital quality.

Changes in the relationship between marital quality and subjective well-being. The third project will focus on changes in the relationship between marital quality and subjective well-being between 1980 and 2000. Some observers have argued that marriage is becoming a weaker institution (Popenoe, 1988), and one less able to meet people's needs for happiness (Glenn, 1996). Consistent with these ideas, Glenn and Weaver (1981) found, using repeated cross-sections from the annual General Social Survey, that the association between marriage and personal happiness is becoming weaker. Similarly, Hochschild (1997) found that as family life has become more hectic and stressful, many people are now viewing the workplace as a refuge from family life. These considerations suggest the hypothesis that marital quality is a poorer predictor of subjective well-being in 2000 than in 1980. Correspondingly, we will be able to test the hypothesis that employment and work satisfaction are better predictors of subjective well-being in 2000 than in 1980. To assess subjective well-being, our survey includes data on life happiness, psychological distress, and perceived health.

Changes in the association between marital happiness and commitment to marriage. The fourth project will focus on changes in the association between marital happiness and commitment to marriage. During the last several decades, people's expectations for marriage appear to have changed (Amato and Booth, 1997; Glenn, 1996). In the past, marriage offered many benefits to people: a desirable social status, a specialized division of labor between husbands and wives, and a secure environment in which to raise children. Given these benefits, it is likely that many people remained committed to their marriages even if they were unsatisfied with certain aspects of the marital relationship. Their commitment was almost certainly reinforced by the negative views toward divorce held by most people. Today, however, the status of marriage is lower, most spouses share the breadwinner role, and childbearing and child rearing frequently take place outside of marriage. In contrast to earlier eras, many people now marry primarily for personal reasons-- that is, to attain a high level of self-fulfillment and emotional intimacy with their partners. In addition, during the last several decades, attitudes toward divorce have become more liberal (Thornton, 1989). Higher expectations for the marital relationship, combined with wider acceptance of divorce, suggest that the threshold of marital unhappiness at which people begin to think about and initiate steps toward divorce has become lower in recent decades. We will test this notion by examining associations between our marital happiness scale and items dealing with people's divorce-related behavior, including thinking about divorce, talking with one's spouse about divorce, discussing divorce with friends or family, and having a trial separation. Our hypothesis is that a lower level of marital happiness is required to trigger divorce-related behaviors in 2000 than in 1980.

Aim Two: Family-of-Origin, Marital History, and the Health and Well-being of the Middle-Aged and Elderly

The availability of six waves of data makes it possible to answer a large number of questions about marriage and family over the life course. In this proposal, we develop a set of questions dealing with the influence of family and marital history on the health and subjective well-being of the middle-aged and elderly. We focus on these two stages of the life course because almost all of our original respondents (first interviewed in 1980) will have reached age 40 by the year 2000, and our oldest respondents will be 75. We focus on health because concerns about physical well-being become increasingly salient as people age. In addition, the elderly, compared with young adults, are somewhat more likely to experience depression and some other psychological problems. Our data set contains rich information about the quality and stability of people's marriages, as well as their parents' marriages. Consequently, we will use this opportunity to investigate the manner in which characteristics of the family-of-origin and people's marital histories are related to health and well-being in later life.

In relation to the family of origin, parental divorce is associated with lowered offspring longevity by as much as four years (Schwartz et al., 1995; Tucker et al., 1997). There is also evidence suggesting that parental divorce adversely affects offsprings' marital quality and psychological well-being in early adulthood (Amato and Booth, 1991, 1997). Low marital quality among continuously-married parents appears to have similar effects (Amato and Booth, 1991). In relation to one's own marital history, divorce appears to have an adverse effect on men's and women's longevity, even if they remarry (Tucker et al., 1996). This appears to be true with predivorce health status controlled. Some studies suggest that the effects of divorce on depression and anxiety are short-lived (Booth and Amato, 1991). In contrast, other studies suggest that adjustment to divorce occurs primarily among those who remarry or repartner; the psychological consequences of divorce may linger indefinitely among those who remain single (Johnson and Wu, 1997). Among those who are married, poor marital quality is associated with low subjective well-being (Benin and Nienstedt, 1985; Glenn and Weaver, 1981). And although rarely considered in previous research, a history of vacillating marital happiness also may be problematic. In addition, other life course events, such as premarital childbearing, premarital cohabitation, and age at marriage, may have long-term consequences for people's health and well-being. These considerations suggest that a new analysis of known stress points in people's family and marital histories has the potential to add to our knowledge about physical health and psychological well-being. Previous research, however, has rarely addressed these issues among older populations.

The life-course model guiding our study is shown in Figure 1. The family-of-origin may have a direct long-term effect on health and psychological well-being. In addition, some of the effect may operate through individuals' own marital histories (including the quality and stability of their marriages). For example, parental divorce and remarriage not only increase the chances of divorce among adult offspring (Amato, 1996), but also predict low marital quality (Amato and Booth, 1991, 1997). Another indirect path may operate through income and financial well-being. For example, studies show that parental divorce and stepfamily formation predict lower educational attainment and income in adulthood (Amato and Booth, 1997). Educational attainment and income, in turn, are related to health and mortality (Crimmins et al., 1996; Hayward et al., 1997; ) The proximate mechanisms through which family-of-origin history, marital history, and financial well-being are thought to influence health are (a) an orderly life style and (b) "mattering." (We describe these two constructs below.)

Family-of-origin history. As noted earlier, a history of parental divorce increases the risk of a variety of negative outcomes for adult offspring, including poor marital quality, divorce, and psychological problems. A recent analysis indicates that divorces that occur when children are younger (prior to the teen years) have more negative implications for socioeconomic attainment and psychological well-being than those that occur when children are older (Amato and Booth, 1997)--a factor we will take into account in our analysis. In relation to remarriage, children who live in stepfamilies leave home earlier, often for reasons of family conflict (White, 1994). Moreover, they are less likely to attend college, less likely to receive assistance from parents if they do attend college, and more likely to marry early (White, 1994). We assume that living in a stepfamily as a child lowers educational achievement. When early age at marriage is a consequence of living in a stepfamily, we expect it to increase the risk of offspring divorce (Booth and Edwards, 1985). Another relevant family-of-origin characteristic is the quality of the parents' marriage. Conflict between parents, even in marriages that do not end in divorce, appears to lower offsprings' later marital quality (Amato and Booth, 1997). In addition, interparental conflict is related to less community integration and social support among adult offspring (Amato and Booth, 1997), and research indicates that low social support is associated with less cardiovascular, endocrine, and immune system robustness (Uchino et al., 1996).

Marital history. Under the general category of marital history, we include events such as premarital birth and premarital cohabitation. Some research has shown premarital childbearing to lower the stability of subsequent marriages (Teachman, 1983), mostly because of its relation to limited education, early age at marriage, and cohabitation (Bumpass et al., 1991). Premarital cohabitation is negatively related to marital quality and positively related to divorce (Booth and Johnson, 1988). Cohabitators are more likely than noncohabitators to engage in risky or deviant behavior, and hence, may be poor marriage material. Furthermore, cohabitators tend to have a lower commitment to the norm of life-long marriage (Thomson and Colella, 1992). However, there is also evidence that the experience of cohabitation may lower people's commitment to marriage even more (Axinn and Barber, 1997). We anticipate that premarital childbearing and premarital cohabitation, through affecting the quality and stability of later marriages, have long-term implications for health.

Another relevant factor may be whether the individual marries into a stepfamily. People who marry into a stepfamily are more likely to have weak ties with parents and in-laws, are more willing to leave the marriage, and are more likely to be in age-heterogamous marriages; each of these factors is associated with lower marital quality and a greater likelihood of divorce (Booth and Edwards, 1992). However, the remarriage of a middle-aged or elderly person may have salubrious effects. The first few years of marriage, in particular, are typically characterized by high marital quality, which may convey positive health benefits (VanLaningham et al., 1997).

In general, having children does not improve parents' marital quality. In fact, the relationship between number of children and parents' marital quality is generally negative (Abbott and Brody, 1985); this is partly because children delay the divorce of unhappy couples (White et al., 1986). If there is a divorce, parent-adult child relations are often characterized by estrangement (Booth and Amato, 1994), especially between children and their fathers. Single parenting can be particularly stressful (McLanahan and Sandefur, 1994). Later in life, adult children's instrumental support of parents is strongly related to the quality of parent-child relationships while offspring are still in the home (Whitbeck et al., 1994). Finally, the number of children is related to the amount of support parents provide to children when they are young; in general, the more children, the lower the level of help given (Hogan et al., 1993). Whether parent-child relationships are related to the quality of parents' marriages in later life is not clearly established. However, there is evidence that stressful parent-child relations increase elderly parents' depression, a major indicator of well-being (Pillemer and Suitor, 1991).

Marital quality is integral to health and well-being (Gove et al., 1983; Loomis and Booth, 1995). Marital satisfaction is known to be associated with high morale in later life (Lee, 1978), and older persons who confide in their spouse have higher levels of marital satisfaction and score higher on indicators of emotional well-being (Lee, 1988). The effects of variation in marital quality over time, however, are not well understood. In the Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study, among those who started with high marital quality in 1980, about two-fifths remained high over the next 12 years. In contrast, about one-third reported a substantial decline that persisted over two or more waves. The remaining respondents reported vacillating marital quality. Among those who started with low marital quality in 1980, about one-third increased the quality of their marriage and hung on to the improved ratings through 1992. Another third remained low, and the remaining third vacillated. With the additional data from the next wave, we will be able to fine-tune these patterns of change. We hypothesize that a protracted period of low marital quality will reduce health and well-being, as will vacillating patterns. Whether couples who experience increases in marital quality for an extended period realize health benefits is an open question. Finally, our analysis will be mindful of the possibility of the reverse ordering of these factors--declines in health can erode feelings of mattering and thereby marital quality (Booth and Johnson 1994; Friedman 1991).

Economic well-being. A third set of variables reflect economic well-being. In relation to the family of origin, growing up in a single-parent family or a stepfamily can decrease opportunities for education; a low level of education, in turn, decreases later life income. In relation to one's own marital history, divorce can lower personal income, especially for women (McLanahan and Sandefur, 1994). It is also true, however, that low income is sometimes a cause of divorce (White, 1990), so the relationship between economic well-being and marital history is reciprocal. Low income, even if it is only temporary, interferes with the accumulation of assets, which may adversely influence economic resources available during the middle and later stages of the life course. Furthermore, research has consistently shown income to be positively related to health (Kessler, 1982) and mortality (Lillard and Waite, 1995).

Proximate mechanisms. Research on the relationship between marital status and health suggests relational qualities as potential mechanisms worth exploring. Married persons enjoy greater physical health and psychological well-being than divorced or single individuals (Joung et al., 1997; Umberson, 1987; Verbrugge, 1979). They are less likely to rate their health as being poor, report fewer chronic and acute conditions, and have fewer days of activity restricted due to health (Anson 1989). Moreover, they are less likely than single people to report depression and symptoms of psychological distress (Gove et al., 1983). What is it about marriage that translates into better health and well-being? We believe that Rosenberg and McCullough's (1981) concept of mattering may help to explain the link between marriage and health. Two components of mattering hold the most promise: importance and dependence. Importance is the extent to which individuals believe that their spouse cares about what they want, think, and do. Dependence is the extent to which individuals believe that their spouse is dependent upon them and have a sense of responsibility for their welfare. Rosenberg and McCullough present data showing that mattering is positively related to self-esteem, and negatively related to depression and deviance in adolescents. Ross and Mirowsky (1989) find that adults who believe that their spouse cares for them have lower depression and fewer psychological symptoms--a finding consistent with the concept of mattering. Research showing that psychological well-being enhances physical health is extensive (Aneshensel and Huba, 1983), so we assume that if mattering explains the marriage-mental health link, then it will play a similar role in the marriage-physical health relationship.

A second mechanism suggested by the marital status and health literature is that marriage results in health benefits because spouses provide an organized lifestyle. This lifestyle includes getting enough sleep, a balanced diet, and exercise; it also involves fewer behaviors that are detrimental to health, such as drinking, using drugs, driving fast, and failing to wear seat belts (Gove, 1973; Umberson, 1987). Through monitoring one another's behavior, spouses ensure that their partners engage in behaviors that maximize health and minimize risk. Spouses can also give care when individuals are recovering from an illness (Waltz et al., 1988; Waltz, 1986).

Although not included in the model in Figure 1, there is always a possibility that selection may be at work. In particular, some individuals may have personality features that make them incapable of forming sustained intimate relationships. For example, Booth and Edwards (1992) found that remarried individuals have more personality traits that create problems in marriages than do people in first marriages. (These traits include getting angry easily, having feelings that are easily hurt, and being jealous, domineering, or critical.) Furthermore, these personality features are the only qualities found to carry over from one marriage to the next among people who divorce and remarry (Johnson and Booth, in press). McLeod (1995) found that men and women with psychiatric disorders (alcohol or drug dependence and anxiety disorders) were much more likely than those without those ailments to marry individuals who had the same disorder. These marriages are likely to be unstable and unhappy--the type least likely to be characterized by mattering and an orderly lifestyle. One study found that people who marry at a young age (18 and under) are twice as likely as those who marry at an older age to have psychiatric disorders (Forthofer et al., 1996). Early personality problems may be carried forward into adult life through a process of cumulative continuity whereby individuals create environments that reinforce and sustain these characteristics (Caspi et al., 1987). All of these studies suggest the possibility of a selection effect that would predispose people to be part of problematic families and marriages that would affect their later life health and well-being. The selection mechanism may operate directly or through mattering. In this analysis, we will attempt to account for selection effects by controlling for personality attributes (noted above) that can erode family and marital relations.

Analytic strategies. Our analytic strategy will be to estimate the impact of family-of-origin experiences and work forward in time. We will examine the association between variables such as parental divorce, parental remarriage, and parents' marital quality, and our measures of health and psychological well-being. We will then consider the extent to which these associations are mediated by aspects of marital history, financial well-being, mattering, and an orderly lifestyle. For example, do parental divorces have a direct effect on health in the middle and later years, or is their effect mediated by marital quality and stability in the second generation? When a relationship or a pattern of relationships is observed, we will systematically examine the role of the linking mechanisms described earlier to determine which ones account for the relationship.

Throughout the course of the longitudinal study, we have obtained four measures of physical health and five measures of psychological well-being which will enable us to assess whether health deteriorates faster among those with adverse family and marital backgrounds than those without. However, to fully explore the hypotheses, we will add a number of other health measures to the 6th wave interview. Moreover, information on the respondents' parents' age at death (if deceased) and the respondents' ratings of their parents' health (if living) will allow a rough adjustment for genetic factors that influence the respondents' health. Finally, we estimate that by the year 2000, 110 respondents will have died. This will allow us to examine the effect of family and marital experience on mortality.

There is ample evidence that women suffer economically while men go relatively unscathed following divorce (McLanahan and Booth, 1989). Moreover, while women live longer than men, they report poorer general health, more chronic conditions, and more long-term limitations on their activities due to health reasons; in contrast, men report more injuries (Verbrugge, 1988). In an extensive study of sex differences in depression and other indicators of psychological well-being, Mirowsky and Ross (1995) report that women's higher reports of distress are not due to measurement or other methodological problems, but the fact that women are actually more distressed. Therefore, in the proposed analysis we will continuously check for gender differences in the relationship between marital/family history and health/well-being.

The product of this phase of the proposed research is a delineation of features of the family-of-origin and marital experiences (singly and in concert) that adversely affect physical health and psychological well-being. Our goal is to assemble family life trajectories that are most damaging as well as those that are most beneficial. Furthermore, we will pay special attention to those individuals whose experiences put them at risk but are in good health. As a final step, we will compare the health and well-being of the married persons in the sample with those who are divorced, permanently separated, or widowed--people identified prior research by as least healthy. Our interest is in seeing if the health of married persons with poor family and marital histories reach the levels of these subpopulations.

Aim Three: Sample Attrition and the Integrity of Results in Family Research

Multiple wave panel studies provide a number of advantages for the family researcher studying how marriages change over the life course. These include the ability to follow changes in the same individuals over multiple life transitions and to develop models of patterns of life course changes at the individual level that would not be possible with cross-sectional or two-wave data. The data from such studies also fit well into the recently developed analysis methods such as pooled time-series models, latent growth curve models, and hierarchical linear models which can provide powerful and valid inferences about the patterns of change.

A major problem with multiple-wave studies that extend over many years is panel attrition. If this attrition is differential relative to important variables in the substantive problems being investigated, then there is a real possibility of biased results. While methodological tools have been developed to assess the degree of attrition bias and correct for it, these tools have been found to have statistical problems when applied to the type of data available in many research applications involving survey data. Because no single tool for assessing attrition bias is free of problems, a strategy that has been proposed is to use a variety of different approaches to evaluate the extent to which the findings are biased by attrition (Stolzenberg and Relles, 1997). A major aim of the proposed research is to apply several approaches to identifying and adjusting for possible biases in the multiple-wave Marital Instability panel study.

The Marital Instability panel study extends over a large portion of the marital life course, is based on a national sample of individuals, and includes detailed information on marital quality and process. For these reasons, it is an important resource for family researchers. It is important, therefore, that the consequences of sample attrition be evaluated as completely as possible. The objective of this research will be to collect additional data and apply a series of techniques to the panel data to evaluate the extent of selection bias from several different perspectives. Making these data and findings available to other family researchers will allow them to more accurately assess the presence, nature, and extent of bias introduced by attrition in this and similar multiple-wave panel studies.

Over the 17 years of the Marital Instability panel study, there has been substantial attrition (see Table 1). By 1997, 53% of the respondents to the first wave completed a 5th wave interview. The table below documents the attrition history across the four follow-up waves. The most common sources of attrition were refusal (22%) and being unable to locate the respondent (17%). The attrition was greatest in the first follow-up interview (around 22%) and has decreased in subsequent waves with a loss of less than 10 % from the previous wave in the 1997 follow-up. Based on our experience with the panel, we estimate that the percent of completed interviews in a 6th wave conducted in 2000 will fall below 50% of the original 1980 panel. The presence of this attrition does not necessarily mean that the findings from the study will be unrepresentative or biased, but it does mean that a careful evaluation of the adequacy of the sample is needed to identify and adjust for differential attrition relative to variables important in the analyses of marital quality and instability over the life course.

It is difficult to evaluate whether the degree of attrition in this panel study is higher or lower than in comparable studies. Since the inception of the panel study, we have used rigorous, state-of-the-art panel tracking methods and survey techniques to maintain the highest quality and most complete sample possible (Booth and Johnson, 1985). While attrition may be slightly lower in some other panel studies, other studies have not involved long periods between waves, used a nationally representative sample of households (obtained from random-digit-dialing techniques), or focused on interviewing the same individual (rather than an informant for the household). Our largest period of attrition--between the first and second waves--largely reflected the problem of locating respondents who refused to provide us with their names or addresses in 1980, making them difficult to track (Booth and Johnson, 1985). Since the 1983 wave, we have been able to locate all but 83 of the respondents. Generally, we believe an analysis of the attrition data demonstrates high compliance, considering the nature of the sample, a national trend towards greater refusals, and the length of the study.

Over the course of the study we have performed a number of analyses to evaluate the differential attrition. Following the collection of each wave of data, we used logistic regression and probit analyses with attrition as the dependent variable to assess the characteristics of the respondents that may be related to their dropping out of the study. Table 2 of Appendix A shows the percentage distributions of the respondents by 1980 background characteristics for the 1980 and 1997 waves. The distributions are very similar even though certain categories have shown more attrition than others. Table 3 of Appendix A shows the results of logistic regressions predicting non-interview through 1997 with selected demographic and marital quality characteristics. The most consistent predictors of attrition have been background variables such as educational attainment, gender, minority status, renter status, and metropolitan residence, all of which are significantly related to sample attrition. None of the marital quality measures in 1980 were significantly related to attrition over the 17-year period. Not until the 4th wave did we note a tendency for greater attrition since the previous wave among persons with poorer marital quality. These effects were modest in magnitude and were only noted for marital happiness and divorce proneness. This effect may reflect greater attrition rates among individuals who divorced since their last interview, either because they were more difficult to locate or less willing to continue in the study. The extent to which the effect of divorce proneness on attrition between recent adjacent waves has accumulated over several waves to produce a substantial loss of persons with low marital quality or disrupted marriages is not known and cannot be adequately estimated with available data.

We also have done some preliminary analyses to evaluate whether the rate of marital dissolution observed in the panel approximates the rate that would be expected in the general population in the same age groups. Life table analyses of divorce for persons in their first three years of marriage in 1980 found an estimated dissolution rate of around 35% over the period of the study, similar to what might be found in the general population for this marital duration group (Johnson and Booth, in press). Direct comparison with vital statistics data is limited by differences in comparison groups and the fact that in the 1980 sample, persons in the first three years of marriage would have already been selective because of the marriages that terminated before the first three years. A better comparison group is needed to evaluate the bias in the relative dissolution rates in this and other marital duration cohorts found in the panel.

Attrition in panel studies can lead to biased estimates of effects if attrition is related to both the independent and dependent variables (Heckman, 1979). For example, having higher attrition among men than women would not bias the effect estimates in regression models that include gender as a control and test for the presence of interaction effects between gender and the major independent variables of interest. Bias in the effect of gender on marital happiness would arise, for example, if men in unhappy marriages had higher attrition than those in happy marriages and this effect was not found for women. Since some important predictor and outcome measures have been found to be associated with attrition, the possibility of bias in the Marital Instability panel is present. The usual tool to adjust for this bias in regression type models is the Heckman two-step procedure (1979). However, recent work points out the limited utility of this method for adjusting for selection bias (Stolzenberg and Relles, 1997). When sample sizes are relatively small, the selection effect is modest, and the selection variables are highly correlated with (or the same as) the independent variables in the prediction models, the two-step method will more likely produce estimates that increase rather than decrease the overall error in the estimates. Because many of these conditions are present in empirical social survey models (similar to the type of models used with the Marital Instability panel data), Heckman's procedure has not been found to be an adequate tool by itself to deal with attrition bias.

Long-term panels pose additional selection problems that cannot be resolved by techniques such as Heckman's, which compare measured characteristics of respondents in the first wave who did or did not drop out in subsequent waves. The nature of long-term panel studies increases the odds of selecting for persons who lead geographically stable and maritally stable lives. They are more likely to be living in the same place and the social and psychological context that lead them to agree to participate in an initial wave is likely to be in place at later waves. For example, Johnson, Amoloza, and Booth (1992) found, when controlling for measurement error, high stability over a 12-year period in marital quality. Some of this stability may reflect a bias towards more stable individuals remaining in the sample. It is possible that the relationships among the variables observed may be different than those found in a sample that did not select for more stable individuals. For example, measuring the consequences of divorce on mental health may be biased if the individuals undergoing the most traumatic changes stemming from the divorce were least likely to continue in the study. This effect could not be estimated using differences in measured characteristics of respondents and dropouts, because the critical variables (in this case, the nature of the divorce) are unknown and unmeasured, since the disruption occurred following the last interview with the respondents. Because the variables that may best predict attrition are not measured in earlier waves, selection bias cannot be modeled adequately by the first stage of the Heckman procedure; alternative methods of estimating and adjusting for attrition bias are needed.

We propose to do an extensive analysis of the attrition problem using a multiple method approach. Each approach has its limitations but combined should give a reasonably complete picture of the nature and degree of bias that may be present in the Marital Instability panel. The first set of approaches involves a comparison of the respondents in the 6th wave (to be conducted in 2000) with a new cross-sectional sample of respondents (also interviewed in 2000) selected to represent the same cohort interviewed in the first wave of the panel in 1980. Extensive comparison of these two groups will enable us to evaluate if the approximate half of the original study who are still active in the panel are different from a similar group from the same population. One outcome of this comparison may be a set of case weights that investigators can use in weighted analyses that adjust for attrition effects. Another outcome will be the development of age-specific divorce/dissolution rates and marital survival curves for the panel and cross-sectional respondents making use of hazard (life table) models. These will assess the extent to which the panel may have underestimated the dissolution rate and provide evidence of which groups may be most affected by this bias. The second approach involves use of the analytic tools proposed by Stolzenberg and Relles (1997) to investigate the adequacy of the Heckman technique for adjusting for certain types of attrition bias. This should yield a set of guidelines on the efficacy of the Heckman procedure in adjusting for possible attrition bias in the sample for this study.

The comparison sample. We will compare the 6th wave of the panel with a new sample of respondents who represent the same population as the original panel respondents. This new comparison sample is different from the new cross-sectional sample that will be used to assess changes in marital quality between 1980 and 2000 (the first aim), although it will overlap with it. The comparison sample will be drawn from the population of persons in households with a telephone who were married and living with a spouse in 1980 and were under 55 years of age in 1980. In 2000, these persons will be age 38 through 75, and they may not be currently living with a spouse or the same spouse they had in 1980. We plan to interview approximately 1,500 persons meeting these characteristics. We will compare this sample with the 6th wave panel respondents. The only differences between these two samples should be due to random and non-random sampling error and attrition bias. It is possible that the response rate in the 2000 comparison sample will be different than the response rate we obtained in 1980 because of the observed decrease in response rates to telephone surveys over the last two decades. We are planning to use monetary incentives to increase the response rate in 2000 (among those who initially decline to be interviewed), but differences in the kinds of persons who choose not to participate may still exist. A comparison of the demographic make-up of the sample with census data will be made to evaluate any such bias due to differential response rates. Assuming the sampling errors are random, any significant differences in characteristics and relationships between the two samples should reflect attrition effects. Overall comparisons of the means and distributions of a number of demographic and social psychological measures will be generated, but the focus will be on comparing some of the findings that relied on later waves of the panel data to examine marital and individual outcomes.

Specific cross-sectional and panel comparisons. The substantive problems we plan to examine will depend on the differences we observe in the means and distributions of the variables, but one likely research problem that would benefit from a comparison of the results in the two samples is the effects of marital dissolution/divorce and remarriage on psychological distress (Booth and Amato, 1991; Johnson and Wu, 1997). Using later waves of the panel data, these studies found that psychological distress decreased with time following a divorce, although this decline occurred primarily among individuals forming new relationships and remarrying. Since divorced persons were only present in later waves (all initial respondents in the panel were married) and the possibility exists that the persons going through the most stressful disruptions may have been disproportionately selected out of the later waves, this would be a critical comparison to evaluate this type of attrition bias. Of course, only those components of the analysis of the panel data that do not involve measures of psychological distress before the disruption occurred could be compared, since that data would not be available in the cross-sectional group. Two other research studies that could be partially replicated with the new cross-section are the effects of retirement on marital quality (Myers and Booth, 1996) and the relationship between perceived health of the respondent and spouse on marital quality (Booth and Johnson, 1994). Both make primary use of later waves of the panel and may be affected by attrition of less stable married persons from the panel.

Comparison of marital disruption rates. Multiple decrement life table methods will be used to develop duration-specific disruption rates from the panel and the cross-sectional comparison group. Since we have information on whether and when disruptions occurred in the panel and will have a marital history on individuals in the cross-sectional comparison, these rates can be computed from both samples. This comparison will provide valuable information on the extent to which the degree of marital disruption may be underestimated in the panel data. If differences are found, then hazard models can be used to evaluate whether the determinants of divorce in both samples are similar or different and identify where the largest differences occur.

Development of case weights to adjust for bias. It is quite common in survey samples for researchers to develop a series of post-stratification case weights to bring a sample back to proportionality relative to population characteristics (Winship and Grabill, 1994). While it is currently possible to do this for some characteristics in the panel by developing weights that are the inverse of the attrition rate of selected background characteristics (e.g., gender, age, race) it is not possible with many of the characteristics that are likely to vary considerably over time and may not be closely related to their level in 1980, such as the various measures of marital quality, social psychological measures such as psychological distress, and measures of household composition, division of household labor, etc. It may be possible, for example, to find higher levels of marital happiness in the panel than in the comparison cross-sectional sample, even though we know from previous analysis that 1980 levels of marital happiness do not predict attrition. This could occur if panel participants were a more stable group and a long period of stability was associated with increased marital happiness. Developing case weights from comparisons with the new cross-sectional sample would allow us to identify such effects and provide weights to adjust for them. These case weights would correct for bias in measures of central tendency (such as means and percentage distributions), but their value in estimating effects, such as in regression models, depends on whether the weights are related to the independent or dependent variables. Generally, use of weights that are related only to the independent variables are not necessary in regression type models, as the regression coefficients are not biased (Winship and Grabill, 1994). The use of weights will reduce bias when they are related to characteristics typically endogenous in analysis models, such as marital and personal outcome measures and indicators of family and marital processes. Regression type models can use these weights related to the dependent variables to reduce bias, but as in any analysis of weighted data, care must be exercised in using the appropriate statistical procedures to estimate the standard errors (Winship and Grabill, 1994). We plan to do comparisons of weighted and unweighted data for several substantive problems to evaluate the efficacy of these weighting methods. Our initial focus will be on the studies discussed above, involving (a) the effects of divorce and remarriage on mental health, (b) retirement and marital quality, and (c) health and marital quality.

Analysis of the components of the Heckman correction in the Marital Instability panel data. The final strategy for assessing and correcting selection bias is to explore more completely the use of the Heckman correction. This technique typically involves two steps. In the first step a probit analysis is run in which the dependent variable is whether people in the sample responded to a survey item. In the case of correction for panel attrition, it is whether or not the person participated in the panel wave. The independent variable(s) in the probit equation are selected characteristics of all respondents (usually measured in the first wave when all persons responded) that are expected to predict attrition. The results of the probit analysis are used to generate for each person who responded to the panel a probability called the Mills Ratio. The inverse of the Mills Ratio is then included as a predictor in an OLS regression equation estimated for the panel respondents. Stolzenberg and Relles (1997) present an analytic technique to partition the bias due to selection into six components which, when multiplied together, equal the selection bias effect. These components include a measure of the adequacy with which the variables in the selection equation account for selection, the explained variance in the regression model, the relation of the inverse Mills Ratio to the regression dependent variable and independent variables, and estimates of correlations among error terms in both equations. These components provide information about the conditions under which selection bias is likely to result. While the components are designed to apply to a specific regression model with a designated set of selection variables and independent variables in the regression equation, some of the quantities, such as a coefficient from the probit analysis which indicates how well the predictors in the probit model account for selection, can be generalized to a wide variety of regression models. In making use of these analytic techniques, we will evaluate whether Heckman's procedure would be appropriate to adjust for selection bias in this data set and to specify those situations where it is found to be appropriate.

Products of the study. The consequences of panel attrition from long-term panel studies of marriage and family variables are generally unknown. While our previous analyses with limited information and analytic tools suggest that the degree of bias is minimal, the additional studies and data planned here will allow us to assess the bias in a more rigorous manner. Our results will provide comparisons, weights, and guidelines for future researchers making use of the data to evaluate and adjust for attrition bias. We plan to include this information not only in research papers submitted for publication but also in a set of materials that will be provided with the public domain release of the data. The procedures developed here also can be generalized to other long-term panel studies.

Aim Four: Building a National Family Research Asset

In addition to meeting the three aims noted previously, adding a new cross-section and a 6th wave of data will greatly enhance the scientific value of this public use data set for other researchers. The Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study has many valuable features. Indeed, it is one of the longest-running, longitudinal, national studies of marriage and family life in existence. While some other studies have a longer history (such as the Panel Study of Income Dynamics and the National Longitudinal Survey of Youth), they do not have the same breadth and depth of questions on marriage and family life. Similarly, although the General Social Survey encompasses a wider period of cross-sectional studies, it does not contain the detailed information on marriage and family covered by our study. Furthermore, in 1992 and 1997, we interviewed nearly 700 young adult offspring from these marriages. These data allow us to match the circumstances of parents' lives (as early as 1980) with outcomes for their children in early adulthood. The combination of longitudinal data from two generations creates many possibilities for answering important questions about intergenerational relations and influence.

Funding a 6th wave of data collection, along with a new cross-section, will give the Marital Instability panel substantial new strengths. Specifically, we would have enough data points to (1) separate age, period, and selection effects; (2) better separate long-term trends in marriage from temporary variations; (3) better differentiate linear from nonlinear trends; (4) directly cover a 20-year period of the life course (as much as 75 years when retrospective data is included); (5) study people who move from early adulthood into middle age, as well as study people who move from middle age into the older years; and (6) make better use of powerful analytic procedures that have been developed to study repeated measures, such as pooled time series analysis and latent growth curve analysis.

The Marital Instability panel study also includes a substantial amount of data on employment, income, assets, positive and negative life events, psychological well-being, health, social support, and gender roles. Consequently, researchers can use this data set to answer a variety of questions that do not specifically deal with family. Indeed, researchers in 89 institutions now use our data, which is available from the American Family Data Archive and the University of Michigan ICPSR. What has become a national research asset will become even more valuable with the proposed additional cross-sectional and longitudinal components.

C. PRELIMINARY STUDIES

The proposed study has the advantage of building on a longitudinal study that began in 1980. Extensive efforts were employed to maintain the integrity of the panel. Respondents who had relocated outside the U.S. were called. Respondents who had obtained an unlisted phone were sent a letter requesting continued participation. Reluctant respondents were given the option of completing the interview schedule by mail. Between waves we regularly contacted respondents twice by mail and telephone to avoid losing track of them. The tracking procedures used are reported elsewhere (Booth and Johnson, 1985). Spanish-speaking interviewers were used as needed. In 1997, a special letter was sent to minorities, indicating that their voice is especially important to the study.

The cross-sectional survey data from 1980 and longitudinal data up through 1997 serve as a basis for carrying out the aims of the proposed study. In fact, there is no other data set upon which we could build in order to meet the demands of the proposed study. The preliminary studies have resulted in a team of researchers with excellent working relationships. The project has led to more than 50 publications (mostly in refereed journals) and a book published by Harvard University Press. The list of publications may be seen in Appendix B. The published studies have contributed much to the development of the proposed projects, and this contribution is reflected in the frequent citation of these studies in the proposal.

D. RESEARCH DESIGN AND METHODS

Data Collection Needs

To achieve the aims of the study we will build on the Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study which began in 1980. We propose to (1) exactly replicate the 1980 national survey of married persons under the age of 55 who have telephones, (2) interview a supplementary random sample of people between the ages of 38 and 75 who were married in 1980, and (3) re-interview persons who were part of a sample of married persons first interviewed in 1980 who were subsequently re-interviewed in 1983, 1988, 1992, and 1997. The replication of the 1980 survey is necessary to assess changes in marital quality that have occurred since 1980. Not only will the new cross-section include the measures of marital quality that may have changed, but also will include a wide range of variables that may explain observed changes.

We plan to interview a total of 2,900 people in the cross-sectional survey. From these, 2,000 will meet the requirements necessary for the replicate sample, 1,500 will fit the definition for inclusion in the comparison sample, and approximately 600 will be included in both groups (the overlap group). We estimated these proportions using the most recent Census age and marital status data, as well as data from the NSFH cross-sectional survey, which has more detail on marital history.

The interview supplement of people under 75 years of age who were married in 1980 is essential to carry out the third aim of the study. The original survey of people under 55 will have aged 20 years by 2000. In order to assess the effect of selection due to attrition we need to interview a sample of people who are under 75 but over the age of 38 (to reflect the current age of people who are representative of those in the original survey) who were married in 1980. The supplementary sample would represent the contemporary marital status of people who were married in 1980 but are no longer married due to divorce, permanent separation, or the death of a spouse. Some of those interviewed for the supplemental sample (those between 38 and 55 who are married) will also serve as respondents in the replication survey. We estimate that 909 additional interviews will be needed for the supplemental sample.

To carry out the second and third aims of the study, the original sample needs to be interviewed for a sixth time. In relation to the second aim, the 6th wave will capture a considerable number of respondents moving into older age categories. Between 1997 and 2000, we estimate that 54 people will shift into the over 40 category, 121 people will shift into the over 60 category, and 85 people will shift into the over 70 category. New questions on health will be added to the sixth interview, as will items needed to measure key explanatory mechanisms. Finally, the 6th wave of data will increase the number of marital changes (such as divorce and remarriage) which have the potential for affecting health. We expect to interview about 952 people in this wave.

Sampling Procedures

The sampling for the 2000 cross-section will replicate as much as possible the sampling procedures used in the 1980 survey with changes reflecting improvements since 1980 in telephone interviewing technology and sampling methods that should yield a more efficient sample. Both cross-sectional components of the survey will be generated from a single sample of households that will be interviewed with a short screening instrument. The population administered the screener will consist of all persons living in households with a telephone in the continental United States (excluding Alaska and Hawaii—these were excluded in 1980). The screener interview will ascertain whether the person in the household falls into the categories of the characteristics necessary for the two samples. For the cross-sectional replication, the screener will determine if anyone in the household is currently married, living with their spouse, and age 55 or under. If there is more than one person in this category in the household, a random number on the screener will determine which one will be selected to be interviewed. For the comparison sample, the screener will determine if any adults in the household are between the ages of 38 and 75 and were married and living with a spouse in 1980. If more than one person meets these criteria a random number will be used to select one of them.

A random-digit-dialing sampling frame will be used to generate the numbers called. The sample will be purchased from either Survey Sampling, Inc. or Genesys. While we generated our own sample in 1980, purchase of a sample provides a more efficient and accurate sampling frame, given the increased complexity of the phone system with changes in area codes, cellular numbers, etc. Several alternative RDD designs are available to increase the call hit rate, yet insure a representative sample of all households with telephones. We plan to use a design that screens out random numbers selected in 100's blocks that have no listed numbers. (All numbers with the same first 8 digits make up a 100's block.) This procedure increases the percentage of numbers called that are good while only eliminating a very small fraction of potential respondents with telephone numbers recently added to previously unused 100's blocks. To insure that persons in these zero-listing blocks are not completely excluded from the sample, numbers will also be sampled from them but with a much lower sampling fraction (1/10 of the normal fraction). Our experience with this design in a number of surveys conducted by the Bureau of Sociological Research finds that the proportion of the sample that falls in the zero-listing 100's blocks is usually less than 1 percent. Compared with the clustered RDD design used in 1980, the proposed design provides more efficient samples, since any potential clustering effect on standard errors is removed. In addition, the numbers in the sample will be geographically stratified to insure proportional representation in all regions.

The interviews will be conducted by the Bureau of Sociological Research, which has more than 30 years experience in fielding local, statewide, and national interview surveys and has collected the data for the first five waves of the Marital Instability Over the Life Course Study. The telephone interviews are conducted with state-of-the-art computer-assisted telephone interviewing software (CASES). For the new cross-sections, unresolved numbers will be called a minimum of 15 times, and conversion of soft first-time refusals is routinely attempted three or more weeks after the first call. For the panel, continued attempts will be made to contact unresolved numbers until the end of the study period. Many of the interviewers employed by the Bureau have worked on multiple projects over a number of years, and all interviewers go through an extensive training process. Spanish-speaking interviewers are on staff to cover situations in which the selected respondent mainly speaks Spanish, or is most comfortable with a Spanish interview. Other languages also can be accommodated when needed.

The re-interview of the panel respondents will follow a set of procedures we have used in the previous waves. We have maintained a database of panel respondents in which address and telephone number information is recorded and maintained. A number of panel respondents have graciously informed us on their own of changes in address or telephone number and these have been added to the database. Approximately six months before the re-interview is to begin, we will begin the tracking process. Respondents will be sent a first-class letter with a forwarding address request so the post office will inform us of the address to which the letters may be forwarded. The respondents will be asked to call our toll-free 800 number to let us know of any changes in telephone number or address. Undeliverable letters and forwarding information will be sent through the tracking process, in which a number of procedures will be used to locate the respondents. These procedures have been successful in the past, and since the 1983 wave, we have been able to locate all but 83 of the respondents. (The attrition rate was considerably lower among respondents who gave their names and addresses in any of the previous waves.) About one month before the interviewing will begin, we will send another letter informing respondents that we will be contacting them soon to interview them.

Interview Schedules

The cross-section interview. The interview schedules for the cross-sectional replication sample and supplement sample will be very similar to the 1980 interview schedule. About 10% of the questions will be dropped. We will exclude these questions either because they had little utility in prior analyses, or because they would contribute little to the current aims of the proposed study. The Langner (1962) depression scale was not included until 1983, but we will add it to the year 2000 interview schedule because of its value in understanding change and attrition. A draft of the interview schedule can be found in Appendix C. The format of the interview schedule will be somewhat different because the Bureau of Social Research has since adopted computer-aided interviewing.

The 6th wave interview. The 6th wave interview will include the core questions found in the previous five waves, including items dealing with marriage, family life, employment, income, social support, gender roles, psychological well-being, and health. The measures of health included in prior waves refer to (1) five common diseases (diabetes, arthritis, heart trouble, cancer, high blood pressure), (2) health or physical conditions that restrict everyday activity, (3) a self-rating of health as excellent, good, fair, or poor, and (4) awareness of aging as indicated by recent declines in eyesight, hearing, teeth, energy, hair, skin, and body shape. In relation to psychological well-being, previous waves included a measure of distress symptoms, a self-esteem scale, a single item measure of overall happiness, a life satisfaction scale, and a "life regrets" scale.

The 6th wave interview will strengthen the health measures. First we will add questions dealing with respiratory diseases (chronic bronchitis or emphysema) and a measure of injuries that required a physician's care. In addition, we will add an extensively-used scale of 54 disease symptoms (Wickrama et al., 1997; Wyler et al., 1968;). These symptoms appear to serve as valid indicators of the seriousness of an individual's health from the standpoint of prognosis, duration, threat to life, degree of disability, and degree of discomfort. Information on height and weight will be collected to construct the Quetelet index, which is a measure of obesity. We also will add an item that asks individuals to compare their current health with their health one year ago; this will serve as an indicator of perceived change. Finally, we will include items on parent's health to control for health conditions that respondents might have inherited from their parents.

Few measures are available of the causal mechanisms that are proposed to link marital and family history to health--in particular, having an orderly lifestyle and mattering. Consequently, we will construct an orderly lifestyle scale with items that tap getting enough sleep, eating balanced meals, getting regular exercise, wearing a seat belt, and engaging in fewer risky behaviors, such as drinking, drug use, and smoking. In addition, the scale will assess the extent to which individuals engage in behaviors such as driving fast, having accidents, and getting into fights outside the household. We also will construct an instrument to measure mattering, which will consist of two components: the extent to which the individual believes (1) her/his spouse cares for and values her/him, and (2) her/his spouse is dependent upon her/him. A preliminary set of items has been developed for each scale. A draft of the items (not yet complete) that will make up these scales appears at the end of the 1997 interview schedule (see Appendix D). The items will be pretested and checked for dimensionality and reliability. The items on mattering will be factor analyzed with the existing marital quality scales to ensure that they are measuring independent constructs.

Plan of Analysis

Aims one, two, and three (as outlined earlier) each subsume several related projects. The complexity of the methods needed to conduct each of these projects precludes describing all of the relevant analyses. Therefore, we present one detailed example of an analysis for each of the three aims.

Changes in marital quality between 1980-2000. This analysis will utilize the 1980 and 2000 cross-sections to focus on changes in the level of marital quality between these periods. Five scales of marital quality were included in the 1980 interview schedule: happiness, interaction, disagreements, problems, and divorce proneness. We will administer these scales again in 2000. Confirmatory factor analysis with the 1980 data indicated that the scales reflect two latent variables: positive marital quality (happiness and interaction) and negative marital quality (disagreements, problems, and divorce proneness) (Johnson, White, Edwards, and Booth, 1986). Our first step will be to use structural equation methods to create similar latent variables for the 2000 data. Loadings of each observed indicator (the marital quality scales) on the latent variables will be fixed across the two cross-sections (1980 and 2000) to ensure that the latent variables are measured on the same scale in both groups.

The next step will be to use a multigroup model to see if there are significant differences in latent means across the two periods. Assuming that differences in marital quality means are significant, the next step will be to explain these differences. We will begin by adding age, age at marriage, number of children, education, race, and marriage order to the model as predictors of marital quality. It may be that marriages in 1980 and 2000 differ in quality, but only because the two groups are differently constituted. With these demographic variables in the model, we will see the extent to which differences in latent means are attenuated (or strengthened).

Assuming that significant differences in marital quality persist, the next step will be to assess the role of several explanatory factors, including economic stress (men's and women's earnings, periods of unemployment, use of public assistance, perceptions of economic hardship), work-family conflict among dual-earner couples with preschool children, husband's and wife's gender role attitudes, the proportion of housework and child care performed by husbands, prior cohabitation, premarital births, and attitudes toward the acceptability of divorce. These predictors will be introduced into a series of models (one for each explanatory variable or set of explanatory variables) to determine the extent to which they account for marital quality, not only within each period, but also across the two periods. For example, if the gap in marital quality between 1980 and 2000 decreases when we enter the block of variables measuring economic stress, then this would suggest that changes in economic factors account for some of the change in marital quality. As a final step, we will enter all the explanatory variables into a single model to see if we can account completely for any changes in marital quality between the two periods.

Family and marital history, and the health and well-being of the middle-aged and elderly. To assess the impact of family and marital history on health and well-being, we will draw on the proposed 6th wave of interviews, as well as the preceding five waves of data. The sixth interview will yield approximately 952 people between the ages of 38 and 75. Of these, 85% will be married, 10% will be divorced or separated, and the remaining 5% will be widowed. We also estimate that 32% will be age 60 or older. There appears to be sufficient variability in people's family and marital history to meet the needs of the proposed investigation. For example, we estimate that 98 of the currently married individuals will have experienced a parental divorce prior to reaching age 19. (Of these, 65 will have mothers who remarried.) Among respondents whose parents remained married, 372 will report some unhappiness in their parents' marriage and 80 will report severe unhappiness. With respect to parent-child relations, 186 will report not being close to their mothers, 259 will report not being close to their fathers, and 97 will report not being close to either parent. Eighty-nine will have had a premarital birth, and 113 will have experienced premarital cohabitation. A number (137) will report marrying before the age of 19. Another substantial portion (161) will report being a stepparent. Over their life times, 218 respondents will report a divorce followed by a second marriage, and 40 will report multiple marital dissolutions and remarriages. There also is sufficient variability in marital quality to conduct the proposed investigation. As indicated in an earlier section, there are large numbers of continuously married individuals who have experienced substantial fluctuations in marital quality during the study.

As example, one analysis uses a measure of the respondents' health as the dependent variable. Independent variables include family-of-origin characteristics (parents' marital quality, divorce, and remarriage), the respondents' current marital quality, and respondents' experiences with divorce, remarriage, and stepfamilies. We will begin by regressing indicators of health on family-of-origin variables (singly and collectively) while controlling for age. The attrition analysis may identify additional variables that would need to be controlled to minimize selection bias. If weights are used to adjust for bias, then robust regression methods in STATA will be substituted for OLS to produce more accurate standard errors. The next step will add premarital and marital history variables (such as the number of marital disruptions, levels, and variability in marital quality across the previous waves) to the equation to see if family-of-origin effects are operating through subsequent marital events and marital quality. We will then check to see if family-of-origin effects are moderated by the respondent's gender or marital duration by including appropriate interaction terms in the model. Finally, we will check for a possible selection effect by including, as a control variable, a scale that taps behaviors that reflect problematic personality traits (such as being in trouble with the law, substance abuse, and violence). These analyses would be repeated for measures of both physical and mental health.

Sample attrition and the integrity of results in family research. The analysis example for this phase of the study focuses on the research procedure to be used to evaluate the effects of sample attrition on findings from the panel sample. In this example, we will focus on the relationship between length of time since a divorce and the degree of psychological distress. This task will be accomplished by comparing the results in the 2000 panel and the cross-sectional comparison sample. The panel and cross-section samples will be pooled together with a binary indicator of sample type (panel=0, cross-section=1). Only people experiencing a marital disruption will be included in the sample. Variables in the model will include the scale of psychological distress, time since disruption in decimal years, whether the person has remarried or cohabited since the disruption, and a set of control variables. We will carry out an OLS regression model with psychological distress as the dependent variable and decimal years since the disruption and type of sample as the primary independent variables. An interaction term between years since disruption and type of sample will be included to evaluate if adjustment to divorce is similar in both samples. Models with and without remarriage and cohabitation since the divorce will be compared, and interaction effects with the type of sample will be added for these factors as well. These models will allow us to see if patterns of adjustment to marital disruption and the level of psychological distress among persons experiencing a disruption were the same in both samples. For example, if the additive term for sample type is significant and positive, then it would suggest that there is a higher rate of psychological distress in the cross-section sample, which would provide evidence for the selection out of the panel of persons experiencing more difficult divorces. Similarly, if the interaction term involving sample type is significant, then it would suggest that attrition has affected the nature of the relationship between the predictors and divorce adjustment.

Timetable

Year 1. The interview schedules will be further developed and pretested, and the new measures will be analyzed for dimensionality and reliability. The sample of telephone numbers will be drawn, and interviews for the two cross-sectional components and the panel component will commence. It is estimated that two-thirds of the survey work will be completed. Year 2. Interviewing will be completed and the data will be transformed into SPSS system files. Variables will be defined, scales constructed, and data checked for errors and cleaned. Data analysis will commence. Year 3. Data analysis and report writing will continue.

E. HUMAN SUBJECTS

1. The research outlined in this proposal involves interviews with 952 adults in the United States interviewed by telephone five times previously in connection with this study. In addition, we plan to interview a cross-section of 2000 married individuals under the age of 55 another 909 people between the ages of 38 and 75 who were married in 1980. Respondents in the cross-sectional surveys will be selected through a random digit dialing procedure. If there is more than one eligible individual, another random procedure will be used to select the respondent.

Every effort is made to ensure that women and minorities are included in the survey in proportion to their number in the population. When we started the panel study of married persons under the age of 55 in 1980, 4.8% of the sample consisted of African-Americans which was very close to the proportion they represented in the U.S. population at that time. The proportion of the sample which consisted of other minorities (not including Hispanics) was 1.8% of the sample, a figure also very close to their representation in the population. In the 1996 wave of interviews African-Americans consisted of 2.8% of the sample and other minorities 1.2% of the sample. Further analysis shows that being an African-American male is not a predictor of attrition. Rather it is females who divorce that account for the greatest attrition among African Americans. While the decrease in minorities is of great concern, the loss is not due to a lack of effort on our part to maintain the integrity of the panel. We use state-of-the-art methods at every point in the study to keep attrition at a minimum. Respondents who relocate outside the U.S. are called. Respondents who obtain an unlisted phone number are sent a letter requesting the new number and continued participation in the study. Reluctant respondents are given the option of completing the interview by mail. Between waves we contact respondents twice a year by mail and phone to avoid losing track of them. Spanish-speaking interviewers are used as needed. In 1996 a special letter will be sent to minorities indicating that because they are a minority, their voice is especially important to the study. The letter will emphasize the responsibility they have to remain in the study so that the results accurately reflect their views and circumstances. We treat attrition among minorities very seriously and after each wave of interviews we do extensive analysis of a wide range of factors that predict attrition and send the results of our analysis to other users of the data set.

The same procedure that were used in obtaining a reproductive cross section in 1980 will again be used in 2000. This would include having African-American interviewer call number with area code that have many minority representation. Other procedures that help to ensure minority representation are described in the sampling procedures section of the proposal.

2. The information will be obtain by telephone interviews that are carried out by staff members of the University of Nebraska Bureau of Sociological Research.

3. Informed consent will be implied if the subject answers the questions after having been informed about the goals and sponsors of the study and reminded of his/her participation in it. Therefore, formal informed consent will not be obtained. Agreeing to be interviewed is assumed to give informed consent. Their action will be recorded by the interviewer at the time of the call. Respondents will be advised that the only possible risk, lack of confidentiality, will be carefully guarded.

4. The chief risk to the respondent would be embarrassment in the situation where his or her responses became publicly known. Great care is taken that no response can be identified with a particular individual.

5. Arrangements to protect the rights of individuals who choose to take part in our study will be extensive and occur at many points throughout the course of the project. Efforts begin with the employment and training of interviewers. Each interviewer is carefully screened and trained before beginning work on the project. Any indication that they might discuss information given to them in confidence with persons other than project staff, or otherwise violate the rights of the respondent, is grounds for dismissal. Considerable training time is devoted to teaching interviewers how to protect the rights of respondents and to impressing them with the importance of confidentiality. Interviewers receive 20 hours of training before beginning the project.

People who are contacted for an interview have an opportunity to decline to participate at any time. Furthermore, no sanctions are attached to refusing to participate. Interviewers are not allowed to use coercion of any type to obtain the respondents cooperation. The respondent is advised that the information is held in strict confidence, is reported only in summary form, and is never attached to his or her name. They are also told that the fact they are a participant in the study is also held in strict confidence.

Following the interview, names and other identifying information are removed from the protocols. Only an identification number serves to link the records with individuals. The list linking numbers with names is kept under lock and key, the only access to which is by the Principal Investigator. The list is seen only by the Principal Investigator and the Bureau secretary who assists in keeping the records.

The history of the Bureau of Sociological Research in protecting the rights of respondents is excellent. They have conducted dozens of studies over the last 30 years and so far as we know, the confidence of the respondent has never once been violated.

Because the quality of marital relations is a sensitive topic, each interviewer will undergo an in-depth interview by the supervisor to determine whether they are capable of maintaining a thoroughly neutral posture with respect to marital relations. Interviews will also be prepared to give the telephone number of a competent referral service should the respondent request information on social services.

6. We are aware that survey research asks much of the people who consent to be interviewed, but offers little in return of direct benefit. Respondents who ask are always given copies of reports generated by the study. Those seeking information on social services will be provided a means whereby they can get in touch with competent help. However, we believe the proposed study will provide more indirect benefits than most. The study deals with a matter of direct concern to the respondent. The study will increase understanding of the sources of change in marriages and the consequences of those changes. The results will be used to alter the character and distribution of human social services of which people with marital difficulties could avail themselves. In this way the respondent and his fellow citizens will benefit from the survey.

H. CONTRACTUAL ARRANGEMENTS

The University of Nebraska Bureau of Sociological Research is the logical unit to carry out the re-interviews of the panel and the interviews with adult offspring. The Bureau has done the first four waves of data collection and the staff are very familiar with the project. The key staff and many of the interviewers have worked on the project since data were first collected in 1980. The records, procedures, and equipment are in place to do the fifth wave. The letter of agreement from the Bureau Director and institutional representative, along with the budget sheet and lobbying certification, follow.

Dear Participant in the Work and Family Life Study,

Since 1980 we have interviewed you five times. You have been very generous with your time, and we appreciate your interest in the study. From time to time we like to write and tell you about some of our findings. There are three studies we thought might be of interest to you.

Based on answers from people in the study, we have found that:

- * High marital happiness serves as a buffer from unsatisfactory jobs. Although low job satisfaction generally results in depression and low morale, this is not the case when people have a good marriage.
- * We know that marital happiness is good for children and leads to parents being more satisfied with parenting. What we didn't know is that satisfaction with parenting has a positive effect on marital satisfaction. Parents who are happy with their children and feel close to them tend to have happier marriages.
- * Mothers' employment does not seem to have negative long-term effect on children's lives. Offspring whose mothers were employed obtain as much education and are as well adjusted as offspring whose mothers stayed at home full time.

These findings and many others from the study have been widely used by counselors, social workers, judges, legislators, and others who work with families or who make decisions that affect families. The results of our study have been published in scientific journals, newspapers, magazines, a book (A Generation at Risk: Growing up in a Period of Family Upheaval) and have been the subject of television and radio broadcasts. Our research has helped to inform the national debate about family values. Because the information that you have provided has been so valuable, we have decided to call on you one more time.

Just before we interviewed you in 1997, we indicated that it would be your last interview. We will honor our statement and will not pressure you to take part in the study any longer. Nevertheless, when we started the study in 1980, many of you were young or middle aged and are now middle aged or late middle aged. Your long-term perspective is especially valuable because you know how things have changed in your life. The information will help all of us better understand how families are doing at the beginning of the next millennium. Because of the usefulness of the study, we hope you will elect to take part in what "really is" the last interview, but we will understand if you decide not to take part.

As an added incentive for you to take part, we offer to answer any question you might have about families after you complete the interview. While we cannot guarantee that we will be able to answer your question, we have many years of combined experience in doing family studies. If you send us a question in a letter, on a post card, or by e-mail, then we will answer your question in writing within a few weeks of receipt. You can contact us on the web at www.unl.edu/bosr. While we cannot give you advice about your particular family, we can give you information about overall trends that you may find useful.

If you have moved recently or are planning to move in the near future, we would appreciate a call telling us your new address. If your phone number has changed, we would appreciate hearing about that as well. Call us toll-free at 1-800-480-4549 or e-mail us at familylife@unl.edu.

Dear FIELD(first),

Thank you for your interest in the Work and Family Life Study. You have been very generous with your time over the past 20 years, and we appreciate your interest in the study. Your participation is needed to make the study representative of all people living in the United States, and we truly appreciate your willingness to contribute to this important study. Your long-term perspective is especially valuable because you know how things have changed in your life. The information you provide will help all of us better understand how families are doing at the beginning of the next millennium.

Per your request, enclosed is a mail version of our survey. Because the research scientists are interested in so many aspects of your own work and family life, this paper copy of the survey may seem rather long and complicated. There are detailed instructions throughout the survey guiding you through the instrument; please read them carefully. If you would like assistance in filling out the survey, please be sure to call me toll free at 1-800-480-4549, or send an email message with your questions or comments to familylife@unl.edu. Once you have completed the survey, please place the survey in the enclosed return envelope (the postage is already paid) and return it in the mail to us.

If you would prefer to be interviewed by telephone, the survey can be completed in one or more sessions totaling about 45 minutes. Call 1-800-480-4549 or send an email message to familylife@unl.edu, and we will have a professional interviewer call you when it is most convenient to complete the interview.

Your responses to the questions will be kept completely confidential, and your name, address, and any other identifying information will be removed from the interview once it is received in our office. Thank you again for your interest and willingness to cooperate in this important Work and Family Life study.

Dear FIELD(first),

It has been brought to my attention that you do not wish to participate in the Work and Family Life study that you have participated in since we first interviewed you by the telephone in 1980. We are grateful for the time you have given to this important study and understand that situations may arise which make continued participation undesirable option for you. Because we are still interested in your continued participation, we have created an overview of findings from the Work and Family Life study to illustrate how the results have been used. We hope that by reading this overview, you will find something of interest and choose to assist us one more time.

We realize that we indicated the interview in 1997 would be your last interview, but your long-term perspective is so valuable that we decided to do one final interview. These findings and many others from the study have been widely used by counselors, social workers, judges, legislators, and others who work with families or who make decisions that affect families. The results of our study have been published in scientific journals, newspapers, magazines, a book (A Generation at Risk: Growing up in a Period of Family Upheaval) and have been the subject of television and radio broadcasts. Thank you again for your participation in the study over the last 20 years. The results of the study have been put to good use. As a result of this study, we know much more about changes in marriages and families since 1980. If you have any questions about your study, please feel free to write us at the above address, send us an e-mail at familylife@unl.edu, or call us toll-free at 1-800-840-4549.

Dear FIELD(first),

A few months ago, at your request, we mailed you a version of the Work and Family Life survey that you could complete yourself. We have not yet received a completed questionnaire from you. Several of our study participants have indicated that the form of the questionnaire we sent was too long and difficult to answer. To make it easier for you to report to us on important changes that have taken place in your life since we last interviewed you, we have enclosed a short form of the survey that is easier and less time consuming for you to answer.

The information you provide about your work and family life today is very important because it allows researchers to look at changes in work and family life over a twenty year period. Findings from this study have been widely used by counselors, social workers, judges, legislators, and others who work with families or who make decisions that affect families. In addition to the survey, we have enclosed a review of some articles that have been published using findings from this study.

Once you have completed the survey, please place the survey in the enclosed return envelope (the postage is already paid) and return it in the mail to us. If you completed any part of the longer survey that we sent you earlier, please return that also.

If you would prefer, we can have an interviewer call you and complete the short form of the survey over the telephone. Over the telephone, the short form should only take 10 to 15 minutes of your time. Call 1-800-480-4549 or send an e-mail to familylife@unl.edu, and we will have a professional interviewer call you to arrange a time when it is convenient for you to complete the short interview.

Dear FIELD(first),

You have been a long term participant in the Work and Family Life study. We understand when our interviewer contacted you that you declined to continue to participate in this study. We understand that participation in the relatively long telephone interview does involve a commitment of your time and effort and respect your desire not to go through that again. If the lengthily telephone interview was the reason you declined to continue to participate, then we have a shorter and less time consuming option. We have enclosed a short questionnaire with a selected set of items from our larger telephone survey. This information will tell us important information on how your life has changed since we last interviewed you. If you choose to do so, please complete the survey and return it to us in the postage-paid envelope provided. Your answers will help us understand how families have changed over the last 20 years and into the next millennium.

OVERVIEW OF PUBLISHED FINDINGS FROM THE WORK AND FAMILY STUDY

Parents who are in constant disagreement with one another or who divorce are less able to provide the ingredients for a healthy and warm child-parent relationship. Adult offspring of such marriages report that during their teen years, parents were less apt to help them with school work or with personal problems. Parents and children had fewer talks together, and parents were less likely to show affection toward the child. Journal of Marriage and the Family, 1994.

Today's non-traditional families, with both parents juggling careers and domestic chores, are just as capable of producing well-adjusted, successful offspring as the traditional family of the 1950s. Those from non-traditional homes are just as likely to have high self-esteem, attend college, be married, and parent children as are individuals from traditional homes. Journal of Marriage and the Family, 1995.

Children of divorce suffer far more when parental conflict is low, than offspring whose parents have serious quarrels. They report less happiness, more psychological distress, fewer close friends and relatives, and lower quality in their own marital relationships than individuals whose parents quarreled bitterly before the divorce. For children from low pre-divorce conflict homes, divorce represents an unwelcome event, a loss of resources with no compensating gain. Those who escape high-conflict families through divorce do nearly as well as offspring who grow up in intact low-conflict homes. For these individuals, divorce is a relief since it rescues them from a hostile, dysfunctional and perhaps abusive environment. Social Forces, 1995.

Husband's retirement can have both negative and positive effects on marriage. When retirement leads to a reversal of bread winning roles, marital quality declines. Men who retire and fail to help still employed wives with house or yard work strain the marriage. On the other hand, if husbands have an unpleasant, low-status job that absorbs many hours a week or interferes with family life, they may be delighted to retire with the result that their marriage is happier than before. Husbands with a rewarding and prestigious job may find the loss of status upon retirement so stressful that marital quality suffers. Journal of Family Issues, 1996.

Most children benefit from mothers' participation in the labor force. Daughters and sons of mothers in the labor force enjoy greater education achievement and more challenging jobs than those whose mothers are not in the labor force. Daughters are spurred to higher educational attainment and more challenging jobs by the strong role model of self-sufficiency no matter how many hours mothers work. Working overtime (45 hours or more) does not carry the same benefits for sons as it does for daughters. Sons whose mothers worked overtime do not do as well as those whose mothers work part-time or full-time. Unlike daughters, sons do not benefit from identification with a strong female role model and, hence, have more to lose when mothers are away for long hours.

The increase in educational achievement among parents has strengthened the American family over the past three decades. Parents' education provides multiple benefits to adult offspring. Not only do children have greater income and higher status jobs, but they enjoy larger friendship networks and belong to more organizations. They have higher self-esteem, are happier, and are more satisfied with life. Best of all, they have happier marriages and are less likely to divorce. Generation at Risk: Growing Up in an Era of Families Upheaval, Harvard University Press, 1997.

Despite the psychological trauma of a broken home, adult children of divorced parents are more likely to consider a divorce for themselves than are children from intact families. This increases the probability that they too will choose to exercise that option in their own marriages, regardless of their initial commitment to the relationship. Journal of Family Issues, Gender Roles, 1991.

Sharing many friends and organizational memberships tends to discourage divorce. Within the first seven years of marriage, socially isolated couples are three times more likely to divorce than couples sharing relationships outside the marriage. Friends and organizations buffer the immense changes that take place early in a marriage. Marriages beyond seven years are less likely to be sustained by shared relationships than by mutual investment in children, home ownership, and the accumulation of joint assets. Social Forces, 1991.

Divorced people who remarry are more likely to divorce than people married for the first time. Previously divorced marriage partners are more willing to accept divorce as an option. Having been through it once before, they feel they can weather a second divorce emotionally and financially. In addition, their tolerance for marital problems seems to be much lower than that of first married people. They tend to put up with less before considering divorce. Journal of Family Issues, 1992.

Health problems in a marriage, especially if they cramp social activities or change a spouse's behavior, can damage the relationship and even cause divorce. When the health of one marriage partner breaks down, the spouse may feel pressures and irritations that place the marriage at risk. When one of the partners becomes ill, this often means a drain on resources, financial and otherwise. Also, sick or disabled spouses can no longer carry their share of the everyday work load. These factors can generate resentment on the part of the healthy partner. Nevertheless, many marriages continue to be happy despite the fact that one of the partner is in poor health. Journal of Marriage and the Family, 1994.

Clips from recent articles in Time Magazine and USA Weekend:

"Divorce actually can be better for the children if there has been a great deal of conflict in the marriage, or if the household is disorganized and chaotic, say sociologists Paul R. Amato and Alan Booth of Pennsylvania State University, who followed 2,000 families for nearly two decades. They found that the kids of high-conflict families whose parents divorce wind up just as happy and do just as well as others their age who grow up with happily married parents."

Marano, Hara Estroff. 2000. "Children of Divorce: 25 Years Later." USA Weekend, Sept. 15-17, p.2. Retrieved November 8, 2000 (http://www.usaweekend.com/00\_issues/000917/000917divorce.html).

"Paul Amato, a sociology professor at Penn State, has researched divorce and children for 20 years, casting the sort of wide statistical net that hardheaded academics favor... 'What most of the large-scale, more scientific research shows is that although growing up in a divorced family elevates the risk for certain kinds of problems, it by no means dooms children to having a terrible life.'"

Dear study participant,

As you may recall, in 1992 and 1997 you were interviewed as part of a national study dealing with families. You were very generous with your time, and we appreciate your assistance. From time to time we like to write and tell you about some of our findings.

One of the topics that we are interested in is education. Our study shows that parents' education provides multiple benefits to adult offspring. Children with well-educated parents tend to get better jobs and earn more money in adulthood. In addition, adult offspring with well-educated parents have larger friendship networks, belong to more organizations, have higher self-esteem, are more satisfied with their lives, and tend to have happier marriages. The level of a father's education appears to be important for sons and daughters, but a mother's education appears to be especially important for daughters. The educational levels of parents have risen substantially during the last 30 years. This rise in parental education has helped to strengthen the American family.

We also are interested in the employment of mothers. Our study shows that children do not suffer, in general, if their mothers were employed while they were growing up. In fact, daughters with employed mothers tend to enjoy a high level of educational achievement. Educational achievement, in turn, translates into higher status jobs, more income, and higher self-esteem. When mothers worked unusually long hours, however, (that is, 45 or more hours per week) their children (especially sons) do not share these benefits.

We hope that you have found this brief information to be of interest. More detailed information from this study has already been supplied to teachers, researchers, counselors, therapists, and policy makers, so your earlier effort is making a continued contribution to our understanding of families.

We are very interested in finding out a few things that may have happened in your life during the last three years. Please fill out the enclosed questionnaire and return it to us in the stamped envelope. It takes about five minutes to complete, so we suggest you take a few moments now to do it send it back. As always, the information you provide is held in strict confidence and will not be revealed to anyone (including your parents). Dear Study Participant,

A few weeks ago we sent you a short questionnaire (The 2000 Work and Family Life Survey) asking you to tell us about changes in your life that occurred since your participation in our study in 1997. To the best of our knowledge, it's not yet been returned.

As you may recall, in 1997 you also participated in this national study of families and work. Because we are interested in how families change over time, we periodically send out questionnaires to find out about changes that have occurred. We have received responses from a number of study participants but need to hear from nearly everyone to insure that the results are representative.

We are writing again because of the importance your questionnaire has for helping us to get accurate results. We enclose another copy of the short questionnaire in case you misplaced the copy we sent you before. There is no need to respond at this time if you have already returned the survey you received a few weeks ago.

We want to again assure you that your answers are confidential. The identification number at the top of the form is only used to link your answers to the answers you provided before. Your name will not be used in any way.

We hope that you will fill out and return the questionnaire soon. We have included a postage-paid envelope for your convenience. If you have any questions about the study, please feel free to contact us. Dear FIELD(last) household member,

In the next few weeks you will receive a call from one of our interviewers asking you to participate in an important study being conducted by researchers at the Pennsylvania State University and the University of Nebraska. Your household has been randomly selected to be part of a study of work and family life that began 20 years ago. We will be talking to people all over the country to determine how individuals are coping with the demands of work and family, as well as how these demands have changed during the last 20 years. Your telephone number was selected by a computer as part of a scientifically representative sample of all residents of the continental United States.

Most people who have participated find the interview interesting and the questions easy to answer. Participation in the study is voluntary, and if you do decide to participate your responses to the questions will be completely confidential. The telephone survey itself may take as little as 2 or 3 minutes to over 30 minutes. Some people will be selected by the computer to answer more detailed questions than others. If you are selected for the longer interview and find it inconvenient to answer the questions in one call, we can easily arrange to have you complete the interview in shorter calls over a period of time.

We are writing because we have found that many people like to know ahead of time that they will be called. Please show this letter to other people in the household who may answer the telephone when we call. The results of the study will be used by professionals who work with families and should be of interest to individuals who read news articles about the study's findings. Thank you in advance for your help.

DESCRIPTION OF WORK AND FAMILY LIFE STUDY

The work and family life study originated in 1980 when a group of researchers was interested in explaining why wife's employment may affect the quality of family life. The original sample consisted of about 2,000 currently married respondents who were selected from across the nation (United States) using an RDD (Random Digit Dialing) method. Since then, we have spoken to the respondent in 1983, 1988, 1992, 1997, and we are, with this wave, talking with them for the 6th time, as well as interviewing a new cross-section sample.

The study focuses on three issues. First, considerable debate centers on the question of whether marital quality has changed in recent decades. The present study will inform this debate by examining changes in marital quality between 1980 and 2000 and identifying factors that account for these changes.

Second, changes in marriage and family life have consequences for the health and longevity of the middle-aged and elderly. However, only a few aspects of marriage and family life have been studied in this context, and the mechanisms are not well understood. The results of this study will provide a comprehensive picture of the impact of family and marital history on health.

Third, the number of family and life course scholars employing longitudinal designs has increased in recent years. Yet, we know little about the ways in which panel attrition affects the accuracy of findings. The present study will compare cross-sectional and longitudinal data to gain a better understanding of panel attrition, as well as how biases resulting from attrition might be corrected.

This study will build on the Marital Instability Over the Life Course individuals which began in 1980 as a cross-section of 2,033 married people under the age of 55. This study will replicate the original 1980 survey in the year 2000 by interviewing a new cross-section of 2,000 married people under the age of 55. The survey will be supplemented by interviewing an additional sample of 909 people between the ages of 39 and 75 who had been married in 1980.

A sixth interview with the respondents originally interviewed in 1980 will also be conducted. These new data will allow us to assess how (a) marital quality has shifted between 1980 and 2000, (b) marital and family history affect health among the middle-aged and elderly, and (c) sample attrition affects the results of longitudinal family research.

In addition, the last two waves (1992 and 1997) interviewed the panel respondents' adult offspring. This allowed the researchers to examine information on the quality of the parents' marriage (from the parent's point of view) while the offspring was still in the household and under the age of 19, as well as information from adult offspring about a variety of factors that might be affected by parental divorce and marital quality. For the current study, we will not be conducting telephone interviews with the offspring; however, we are conducting a mail survey for the offspring. All of the offspring included in either 1992 or 1997 will be mailed a short survey to be returned, which is the only data we will be collecting from the adult offspring.

DESCRIPTION OF WORK AND FAMILY LIFE STUDY

IRB# 98-03-272-EP

The work and family life study originated in 1980 when a group of researchers was interested in explaining why wife's employment may affect the quality of family life. The original sample consisted of about 2,000 currently married respondents who were selected from across the nation (United States) using an RDD (Random Digit Dialing) method. Since then, we have spoken to the respondent in 1983, 1988, 1992, 1997, and we are, with this wave, talking with them for the 6th time, as well as interviewing a new cross-section sample.

The study focuses on three issues. First, considerable debate centers on the question of whether marital quality has changed in recent decades. The present study will inform this debate by examining changes in marital quality between 1980 and 2000 and identifying factors that account for these changes.

Second, changes in marriage and family life have consequences for the health and longevity of the middle-aged and elderly. However, only a few aspects of marriage and family life have been studied in this context, and the mechanisms are not well understood. The results of this study will provide a comprehensive picture of the impact of family and marital history on health.

Third, the number of family and life course scholars employing longitudinal designs has increased in recent years. Yet, we know little about the ways in which panel attrition affects the accuracy of findings. The present study will compare cross-sectional and longitudinal data to gain a better understanding of panel attrition, as well as how biases resulting from attrition might be corrected.

This study will build on the Marital Instability Over the Life Course individuals which began in 1980 as a cross-section of 2,033 married people under the age of 55. This study will replicate the original 1980 survey in the year 2000 by interviewing a new cross-section of 2,000 married people under the age of 55. The survey will be supplemented by interviewing an additional sample of 909 people between the ages of 39 and 75 who had been married in 1980.

A sixth interview with the respondents originally interviewed in 1980 will also be conducted. These new data will allow us to assess how (a) marital quality has shifted between 1980 and 2000, (b) marital and family history affect health among the middle-aged and elderly, and (c) sample attrition affects the results of longitudinal family research.

In addition, the last two waves (1992 and 1997) interviewed the panel respondents' adult offspring. This allowed the researchers to examine information on the quality of the parents' marriage (from the parent's point of view) while the offspring was still in the household and under the age of 19, as well as information from adult offspring about a variety of factors that might be affected by parental divorce and marital quality. For the current study, we will not be conducting telephone interviews with the offspring; however, we are conducting a mail survey for the offspring. All of the offspring included in either 1992 or 1997 will be mailed a short survey to be returned, which is the only data we will be collecting from the adult offspring.

A. WORK SCHEDULE

The clerical assistants (most likely Lori) will arrange your calling schedule with you. If you are assigned a time on a given day, it is extremely important that you are there. If you cannot be there for any reason, it is your responsibility to find a replacement. A list of other interviewers and their telephone numbers will be provided to you for this purpose. If it is impossible to schedule another interviewer, call your supervisor as soon as possible. Failure to follow these procedures can lead to your termination from the project.

B. DAILY PROCEDURES

1. Checking In

The first thing you should do each time you come into the office to work is to sign yourself in (be sure to indicate the office or phone number you will be working at either on the sign in and/or the sign out sheet). Check your file folder. Memos to the entire staff as well as individual notes concerning problems will be placed in your folder. Don't forget to sign out too!

2. Preparing to Interview

Each time you come in to interview, be sure you have with you:

1. Your Interviewer's Manual
2. CI log (Green 1/2 sheet)
3. Refusal log (Purple)
4. Reference sheet (Yellow)
5. Scheduled call-back sheet (Tan)

C. CONVINCING RESPONDENTS TO PARTICIPATE

1. The computer will determine the appropriate respondent. On the computer screen, you will be directed to ask about the number of 19- to 75-year-olds in the household. After you have entered the number of eligible respondents, you will be prompted as to which adult to ask for (the oldest, youngest, middle, etc). You may only complete the interview with the designated respondent. If the designated respondent is not available, the next question will ask you to get the R's first name only. Then, when we make our call-backs, we will know who to ask for.

2. If you get an answer, ask to speak to the respondent. If the respondent is available, read the statement on computer screen. Make it as conversational as possible. Add additional information to reduce suspicion, if necessary. This phase of the telephone interview is most important in securing a successful interview. Be your most convincing and as persistent as possible.

3. The following are points you may want to make:
  - "... This is the only study of its kind. This study has been conducting interviews since 1980, so information from people in the year 2000 is very important because it allows researchers to look at changes in work and family life over a twenty year period."

  - "... Findings from this study have been widely used by counselors, social workers, judges, legislators, and others who work with families or who make decisions that affect families."

  - "... The results of our study have been published in scientific journals, newspapers, magazines, a book and have been the subject of television and radio broadcasts."

  - "... This study has helped to inform the national debate about family values."

  - "... Some findings discovered thus far from the study are that marital happiness serves as a buffer from unsatisfactory jobs, and that marital happiness is good for children and leads to parents being more satisfied with parenting, and that mothers' employment does not seem to have negative long-term effects on children's lives."

“ . . . It may seem like a long time to talk on the phone, but we can complete it in 2 or 3 different sessions if we need to. Let’s just get started on it and you can stop me when you need to go.”

“ . . . The study is sponsored by the NATIONAL INSTITUTE ON AGING, Penn State University, and the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. It is directed by Dr. Alan Booth, Dr. Paul Amato, Dr. David Johnson, and Dr. Stacy Rogers . You are welcome to call Dr. Johnson or the Bureau of Sociological Research at 1-800-480-4549 for more information, or you may call the Office of University Information at (402) 472-6965 to verify the validity of this study.”

4. If R asks, "How did you get my telephone number?" Tell them that the telephone numbers were randomly generated by a computer, “Your number was selected from the randomly generated numbers to be a household which participates in this research.”

D. INTERVIEWING THE RESPONDENT - GUIDE TO GOOD INTERVIEWING

This interview should average around 40 minutes. It is designed so that much of the material is pre-coded; only a few questions are open-ended or require probing. Most questions should be asked verbatim unless otherwise indicated. There is a wide variety of questions and we think both you and the respondent will find it interesting. The interview schedule has been extensively pre-tested and we do not believe you should have significant difficulty with any of the items. Any problems or questions you do have, however, should be reported immediately to any of the supervisors or supervisory staff. If you are not completing the interviews correctly, we may request you to return to correct your mistakes--often at your own expense! A certain proportion of your interviews will be verified by Bureau staff. This means that your supervisor will contact the respondent again and verify that the interview was actually taken and all of the questions asked. Any evidence of fabricated respondents or responses will lead to immediate termination of employment. Accuracy and completeness are absolutely essential for a good, reliable interview. If you follow instructions carefully and are attentive in the training session, we believe you will find the interview task a rewarding and enjoyable experience.

E. FILLING OUT THE HARD COPY LOGS AND SHEETS - All logs and sheets are in the Work and Family Life folder positioned by the sign-in sheet.

1. Daily CI Log (Green 1/2 Sheet)

After finishing a Completed Interview fill out the CI Log sheet. Include the record number, the respondent number, your interviewer ID number, the date, the day of week, the respondent's name, if it's a refusal conversion, and any other additional notes.

2. Daily Refusal Log (Purple Sheet)

When the respondent refuses to participate in the survey fill out the Refusal Log. Include the record number, respondent number (if available), your interviewer ID number, the date, the day of week, the respondent's name, if it's a second refusal, where you were in the survey when they refused, and any other additional notes. In addition, try to get their gender, marital status, and age group.

3. Scheduled Callback (Tan)

When a callback is needed, whether due to a partially completed interview or respondent not available, fill out the Scheduled Callback sheet. Include the record number, your interviewer ID number, the date, the day of the week, and the time for the callback to take place, the phone number to call, the respondent's name, and any other additional notes that might be helpful for the callback. After filling out the callback sheets, put them in the appropriate time slot in the folder by the sign-in sheet. If the callback is scheduled for Tuesday at 6:00 p.m., be sure to put it in the "After 5:00 p.m. Tuesday" folder.

4. Reference Sheet (Yellow)

At the end of the interview, a question will appear telling you to read to the respondent and fill out the reference sheet. The text to read is at the top of the sheet. After reading the first paragraph, fill in the name and address information, and then read the following paragraph, which asks respondents for references. Record the information as completely as possible. We ONLY need the husband's name as extra information when talking to female respondents; this is needed because many women are listed under their husband's name in telephone records (we do not need the wife's name when talking to male respondents). Don't forget to include the respondent number!

SPECIAL POINTS TO CONSIDER:

1. This is a very interesting study to which all of us can relate. We are all members of families, and family life is largely what is being studied. However, it is VERY important that you refrain from sharing your own marriage, family, and work life experiences. Try to avoid engaging in conversations about your own upbringing, family life, marital status, etc.

Because we are calling across the U.S., you might find yourself calling a town or city in which you have friends or relatives in or near. Do not share the names of anyone you know with any of the respondents. You breach our code of ethics and promise of confidentiality when you present potential ties to yourself and the BOSR to the respondent or a respondent's offspring.

Be an active listener, but keep your own family and work life a mystery to the person you are talking to.

2. If at anytime during the survey the R asks their spouse for the answer, say, "We're really looking for YOUR opinions and answers."
3. This is a replication of the 1980 study, so many questions may seem to be worded a little awkward, but we need the survey items to be just like they were in 1980.
4. In 1980, we only interviewed married, heterosexual couples. Although today we have a much more diverse definition of couples, we need to keep the sample similar to 1980; thus, we will not be including gay or lesbian couples in the analysis (unless they were in a heterosexual married relationship in 1980). This should not be a problem because gay or lesbian couples will probably not report being married. However, if a R would report being married, the following screening question would ask them if they are living with their (opposite sex) "husband/wife." The R will most likely comment that they do not have a husband/wife. If such a situation arises, just ctrl-end and define the interview as a 4700 (no eligible respondent). The text offered for those who do not qualify may have to be slightly adjusted by the interviewer to match the situation.
5. When scheduling call-backs - set them up for a time most convenient for the R.

6. Difference between "Separated" and "Permanently Separated:"
There are situations in the interview in which we ask the R if they are separated, such as the "married" question. In these cases we are referring to any type of separation - if the R considers it a separation, then record it as so. However, there are also situations in the survey when we refer to PERMANENT separation. In these cases we are referring to a permanent arrangement where the couple will not be getting back together EVER in the foreseeable future. Most often, these are cases where the relationship is over, but they have not actually filed for divorce (often due to financial reasons). Throughout the survey these two types of separation are distinguished in the wording of the questions - if it's referring to a permanent separation, the question will be worded as so.
7. If you're in the middle of an interview and your shift is over - please try to finish the interview. If it is not possible to do so, set up a call-back time with the R to finish the interview, OR tell a supervisor the situation so they can assign the interview to another interviewer so they can finish the interview immediately.
8. All questions referring to R's parents are referring to their biological parents (or adopted parents). Step-parents are not counted.
9. When setting up call backs: Try to set up a definite call back whenever possible; however, in those cases when this is not possible, set up an indefinite callback. When doing this, try to set the call back for a different day of the week and a different time of the day, preferably at least a few days after the day of your interview.
10. Be sure to review your call history! If you notice that you are making an indefinite call back, in which the previous call was made the same time of day, wait to call them for a few hours. You do not have to call all of the numbers in your queue - if you have a problem with one of the numbers in your queue, do not call it and notify a supervisor.
11. If you are making a call back and the screen tells you to ask to speak with either the contact name or R described in message section and both fields are blank - CTRL/END, assign it as "CB, R selected" and leave a note with the record number and phone number on it with a message explaining the situation with a supervisor.
12. If the respondent becomes upset or depressed, you might offer that perhaps this is not a good time, and that you might call back another time. If the respondent asks for advice, you can offer to have someone give the respondent a call back. Leave a note with a supervisor regarding the situation, and someone will address the situation.

13. If the person on the phone seems reluctant to participate, we have a few things you can offer them to establish that we are real: 1) we can send them a letter about the study if they give us their address, 2) offer them our toll free # (800-480-4549), or 3) offer them our website address (www.unl.edu/bosr).
14. Be very careful when backing up in WAFL. Every time you back up past intro4 (where we designate the respondent) that respondent # and data are erased! If you go back forward to where it was originally, the data are saved, but a new respondent # is created. SO... DO NOT BACKUP PAST INTRO4. If you accidentally do, please leave a note for Mindy with the record # and the respondent #. And any time you backup, be sure to go forward to where the previous interview left off.
15. When you get a refusal try to get their age range and their marital status before they hang-up. I realize this may be difficult, but try your best. You can tell them that we're interested in finding out who is refusing and that all we need to know is their age range (20's, 30's, etc) and if their married or not. This serves two purposes - 1) we know how our sample is biased, and 2) we may convert a few this way because if you realize they will be screened out anyway, you can tell them that the computer will probably screen them out after a few questions, so you can persuade them to screen themselves out. If they still refuse, write down the information you got on the refusal log under demographics - we want gender, age, and marital status.
16. If you can tell that the respondent is getting tired, thank them for participating and remind them of how important their participation is. You can tell them how far along you are by referring to the blue bar at the bottom of your screen. Do your best to keep them interested in the survey. (There are a couple reminders in the survey.)
17. The respondent's name will appear from time to time on the top right corner of your screen. Please use their name occasionally to keep them involved! :)
18. Before you make each call, BE SURE to review the call history. To do this, click on "Attempts" and review all of the calls that have been made. It is important to highlight each call by clicking on it - this allows you to see any messages that have been left by previous interviewers. These messages are entered to HELP YOU prepare for calling that number by giving you information from prior calls!

This also helps us make sure that we're not calling people that shouldn't be getting called again. Occasionally the system releases numbers that shouldn't be released, so keep your eyes open. If you come across a number that you don't think we should be calling, such as if the attempts show that there is already an 1100 (Completed Interview), then notify a supervisor before calling them!

19. The contact name should always be the Respondent's name! Do not enter any name into contact name unless it is the designated respondent's name.
20. Leaving messages - It is so important to leave messages whenever possible, but you only need to make the messages permanent if it is a description of the respondent (youngest, oldest, etc.) OR if it is really important - such as "only call on weekends."
21. If the respondent specifically asks for a mail survey: You can offer a disk survey to them, but in order to do so, you must:
  - Ask them if they have access to a computer?
  - Designate the Respondent - ask first few questions until you designate R (oldest, etc.)
  - Get the R's name and address - fill it out on yellow sheet and write DISK SURVEY on the top & put in Mindy's folder (Be sure to include the record #)
22. If the computer won't let you move to the next question - it probably means that the response you entered is invalid. If this happens to you and you think the response is correct - press F4 and enter correct response in the text box, and then enter "DK" for the response to the question. Write down the question and the correct response with the record # and put in Mindy's folder. I'll go in and fix it!
23. Don't automatically accept Don't Know's - Probe for an answer! (Some people need to think awhile before answering questions, so give them time to think.)
24. If you get some type of recording with a message about the phone # or any weird phone situation, assign it a disposition code of 4800 (phone problems) and leave a detailed message (it is not a disconnect unless the recording specifically says so).

GUIDE TO SPECIFIC QUESTIONS:

The question number appears in the upper left-hand corner. Special instructions for selected questions follow.

SCREEN4A: If R married to more than one spouse in 1980, refer to the one they were married to the longest in 1980. If they were married to more than one spouse for equal amounts of time, refer to the most recent spouse in 1980.

SEXR: If you are absolutely certain you know the R's sex, you do not have to ask the question - just enter the sex. However, this is a very important variable, so if you have any doubts - please ask!

AGR: We already know their age group, but this question asks for their specific age. We don't ask this in the screen because it's a personal question, and we don't want to scare them off right away.

MARRIED: This is a key question - we are asking for the respondent's current marital status. It is important that you ask the full question, so that respondents who are separated are categorized as just that and not as currently married. While it is true they are technically still married, there are different sets of questions for each marital status, and some of the married questions are not appropriate for separated respondents. Also, if you get farther into the interview - say to the rest of the household table, and find this respondent is married but living alone (but not married, living apart), you may want to probe to find out why - and if you find out s/he is separated, you'll want to tell the respondent you are having computer problems so that you can contact a supervisor, change the marital status, and proceed with the appropriate questions on the interview. This question refers to R's perception of their marital status; however if they reply that they are common-law married, then consider that married.

NAM2 - MA10: The purpose of these items is to obtain information on every resident of the household. Information on up to ten people can be entered in the computer. If there are more than ten in the household, record information on additional people on the back of the yellow reference sheet. Babies under the age of one are recorded as 0. In computing years of schooling completed, do not count nursery school, pre-school, or kindergarten years. Children who have yet to attend school are recorded as 0.

RE2 - RE10: (relation to respondent questions) A stepchild is a <2> "child of R/spouse," not "other relative." A question follows if you respond with <2>, asking the status of this child.

ED2 - ED10: (years of education questions) A GED is equivalent to 12 years of education.

OLDCHLD: This question is NOT asked of the R. It is answered by the interviewer. We need this answer for the child problem (cs88cp1-6) questions, so that we know which child to refer to.

CS9A1A - CS11A5D: (marital history questions) If the computer beeps and does not allow the answer you recorded, check to make sure the ages at marriage are correct. All of the R's ages must be less than or equal to the R's current age. And all of the ages recorded at the end of the marriage must be higher than the age at the beginning of that marriage.

CS9A5B, CS11A5B: "Intact marriages" are marriages where the couple is legally still married, and NOT PERMANENTLY separated, divorced, or widowed.

DAT1: If the R dated their spouse for less than one month - enter "0" for DAT1.

DAT1, DAT4, CS27: Read the question as written, but if R asks, "What do you mean by 'going with'?" then you may say dating or going out with. Remember, these terms might be a bit "dated," but the questions need to be asked the same way they were asked in 1980.

DAT3, LWK3, FWK3, FWO3: These questions are asked if you reported the response to dat1, lwk1, etc. was in years. It asks if the response also includes any number of months over the number of years. For example, if the respondent says 1 1/2 years, you would enter "1" for dat1, "years" for dat2, "6" for dat3 (representing six months in addition to the one year); thus, dat4 will show 18 months. If the response is reported only in years, enter 0 for dat3 because there are no additional months. If DAT4 is incorrect it will take you back to DAT1.

DAT4, LWK4, FWK4, FWO4: translation of years to months - if this entails a long time - many years - this number of months might seem a little weird to offer. You might just preface it by saying, "Okay, so if I convert that amount of time to months, it comes to about ## months, does that sound about right?"

CS19, CS19A: counting children who live with you and children you don't, how many children have you had - this INCLUDES ONLY natural children and adopted children (and children who are deceased).

CS22, CS23A: Baptist, Congregationalist, Episcopalian, Lutheran, Methodist, Presbyterian, Unitarian, and United Church of Christ are all <1> "Protestant."

CS28: A town house is a row house where each unit has access to the outdoors. A condominium could be either a town house or apartment.

CS30A: Refers to the year R made first payment on home.

CS30B: Record dollar value of house in thousands of dollars!! You can enter any value, not just from the examples listed. If the house's value is $100,000 enter 100, if it's $50,000 enter 50.

CS40, CS49C1: If R is retired but working part-time, code the status highest in order on the list - in this case, you would code in <2> "working part-time," because it appears higher on the list than retired.

CS41, CS49C3: The kind of work must be obtained in enough detail so that the occupation can be coded for status and various census categories. We are referring only to employment for a wage or living - full-time or part-time, and this does not include volunteer work experiences. Therefore, obtain all of the information about the job that is asked for. In some cases, the title is enough such as elementary school teacher. But in others, it is not. For engineer, it is necessary to obtain type (e.g., electrical), duties (e.g., the individual may be a maintenance engineer who sweeps the floors and does minor repairs, or the person may be a full-time administrator), type of industry (whether it is a high tech firm or public utility may make a difference), and whether the individual is self-employed (person may be a marginally employed consultant or work for a stable high prestige firm). We don't need to know the name of the company; in fact, we'd rather not see the name, but rather a good description of the size and type of company it is. With regard to farming, please try to get as much information as possible (own vs. renting, number of acres, crops, etc.). If the R replies that they have more than one job, ask them to refer to the job they consider to be their PRIMARY job.

CS44B, CS51C2: Shift work is defined as working a non-standard shift (some shift other than 8/9 am to 5 pm shift).

CS47AA1, CS58B: Reduction in pay does not refer to reduction created by no increase in face of inflation, but refers to actual reduction in take-home dollars because of reduction in hours or salary or loss of a job.

CS47AA2, CS58C: Does not refer to transfers within the same company (such as transferring departments). Employer refers to who is paying the R. An example of a different employer would be in someone who worked for the state changed jobs and now works for a private firm. In this case the state is considered the first employer.

CS58: Unemployed refers to being laid off and being unable to find a job. People who take voluntary leaves to have a baby or go to school are not included.

CS58B - CS58E: These questions refer to the R's overall changes in their job situation over the past 3 years. It does not matter how many jobs they have had in this time period.

CS75A: If R mentions more than 10, say "We mean only your closest friends." If they decline to alter the number, enter the number they mentioned or 87 if it's greater than 87, and merely proceed with the questioning.

CS80: This refers to housework ONLY done by R. If someone is employed to do the housework, then the R is NOT doing it.

CS88CP1 - CS88CP6: These questions are asked about the oldest child under 19 living in the household (you determined this child's name when selecting the oldest child in variable "oldchild"). It is possible that the oldest child may be very young, but we still need to ask these questions. Even if the child is only a toddler, the parents may still be able to report some problems; however, if the R will not answer the question record it as "REF."

CS117A: Enter the number of years (not the year 97, 98, 99!!)

CS131: If one or both parents are deceased, the question refers to when they were alive. If they were still married when one partner died, then they were never divorced or separated.

CS138G0: This may seem to be a question we already asked, but it's specifically asking about divorce or PERMANENT separation SINCE 1980. We already know if they've been divorced or separated in the past, but we don't know if it's been since 1980, and we don't know if it's PERMANENT.

CS140P, CS140S: The individual's contributions include their own earnings (salaries, wages, tips, interest income), plus any unemployment or disability that they receive in their own right. Family payments such as from welfare are not counted as part of either individual's contribution.

CS143: Retirement, unemployment compensation, disability, social security are not public assistance.

CS147A: Record dollar value of assets in thousands of dollars!!

IF THE RESPONDENT REQUESTS RESULTS:

In the past, we have provided results to the Work and Family Life respondents in short paragraphs in contact letters sent to them by the study directors. This is not the type of study which is featured on Oprah or in Glamour magazine. Instead, most of the articles and books written about this study appear in scholarly journals and in academic and professional circles. There have been many articles published in The Journal of Marriage and the Family, The Journal of Family Issues, Family Relations, The American Sociological Review, among others. If the respondent requests (and only if they request the information; do not get into a habit of offering it unless they ask for it or seem reluctant without the offer) to see a list of the articles, note this. We will send them a 3-page list of the authors, titles, and journals from which they can either go to a library and read the articles or they may contact us and we will send them a copy of the article of interest to them. We will not send them copies of every article written based on this study; that would number just under 1,000 pages or so, making it impossible for us to mail.

We will not give or sell the respondent's or the children's names, telephone numbers, or contact information to anyone. You may assure respondents they will not receive marketing or sales information as a result of participating in this study. The names and contact information is removed from the data before it is analyzed so confidentiality is protected.

We also will not give the respondent's individual responses to anyone they know now or after they die. Results will only be released in summary form.

Disposition:	Code:	Description
Partial	1200	Only a portion of the interview was completed by the respondent. Respondent will be called back in order to finish the interview. Partially Completed Interview (PCI). If you have passed "SCREEN1" and the R asks to be called back, code as a partial.
Refusal	2110	The person at this phone # has refused (may or may not be R). Hang ups, "Not Interested," and "I don't do surveys," would all fall into this category. Be sure to leave a detailed message for all refusals, explaining who, why, and when in the survey the refusal took place.
Ans Mach, No Message	2221	It is a confirmed household that reaches an answering machine but the interviewer hangs up without leaving a message.
Busy	3120	The number rings to a busy signal.
No Answer	3130	The number rings, but is not answered after 7-10 rings.
Fax/Data Line	4200	The phone number is a line used for a fax machine.
OTHER	4310	This is for ANYTHING that doesn't fit into one of the other categories! Examples) Language Problems - leave message about what language (especially Spanish) and who didn't speak English - the person who answered the phone or the designated R, R unable to complete interview - leave a message explaining exactly why the designated R is unable , such as hearing problem, illness, or anything else.
Disconnected/ Non-working #	4320	Previously assigned numbers that have now been disconnected or are no longer in-service.
Business/Gover nment/Other Org	4510	The phone number reaches a place of business, a government agency or office, or other organization that is not a household.
Phone Problems	4800	This is for any problems you have when dialing the phone number (other than disconnects/non-working #'s). If there is any type of technical phone problem, code it as 4800 and leave a detailed message describing EXACTLY what happened when you dialed the number. Examples) such as technical problems, fast busy signal, solicitors block, etc. - BE SURE TO LEAVE A DETAILED MESSAGE!
Callback, Resp Not Selected	5100	Additional phone calls need to be made in order to select the designated respondent and complete the interview. If the interview is interrupted BEFORE a response is coded in "INTRO4," which is the question that asks for the designated respondent, then assign this disposition.
Callback, Resp Selected	5200	The designated respondent has been selected but the interview has yet to be completed. If the interview is interrupted AFTER "INTRO4," but BEFORE "SCREEN1" is read to the respondent, then assign this disposition.

Here's a few examples of situations you might run into and which disposition code is most appropriate:

My respondent answers several of the questions, but then hangs up on me.

➔ This is a "Refusal" (2110). When the person hangs up, the interviewer should press CTRL/END, then assign the refusal disposition code, and be sure to leave a detailed note describing the refusal in the message section. The message should include who refused (was it the designated respondent or the person who answered the phone), why they refused (did they give a reason), and when in the interview they refused (what was the last question they answered).

I have the designated respondent on the phone and he/she answers some of the questions, but then asks me to call back some other time because he/she has to leave for work.

➔ If this occurs BEFORE you have read the respondent "SCREEN1," which explains the survey, then you would code this as a "Callback, Respondent Selected" (5200). However, if this happens AFTER "SCREEN1," then you would code this as a "Partial" (1200) because it is a partially completed interview (PCI). The respondent was willing to answer the questions but for some reason was not available to continue. He/she will be called back at a later time to finish the interview according to the call back information collected by the interviewer.

A little kid answers the phone and hangs up on me or says that there isn't an adult at home. How do I code this?

➔ In such a situation, you would of course want to ask when might be a good time to try and call again and reach an adult. This would not be a refusal, but would be coded as a "Callback," either as "Respondent selected" if the respondent has already been selected (either Contact Name has a name or Message describes respondent as oldest, youngest, middle, etc.) OR as "Respondent NOT selected" if the respondent has not yet been selected.

How do I know when to code something as "Disconnected/Non-working" versus "Phone Problem?"

➔ This one's simple. First of all, you need to make sure you listen to the entire computer voice message. The operator will tell you specifically if the number is disconnected/non-working or something else - if it's something else, code it as a phone problem.

An answering machine picks up, but I'm not sure if it's a household or a business?

➔If you are not CERTAIN that it is a business, then you need to code as "Business" (4510). Otherwise, code it as "Answering Machine"(2221). DO NOT LEAVE A MESSAGE ON THE ANSWERING MACHINE.

What if the designated respondent is EXTREMELY hard of hearing?

➔If the respondent is so hard of hearing that you cannot possibly finish the interview, then CTRL/END and assign the disposition code "OTHER" (4310) and be sure to leave a detailed message explaining why the respondent was unable to finish the interview.

What if the designated respondent is in the hospital?

➔In this case, you should ask the person on the phone when they expect the respondent to be back home. This should be assigned a disposition code of "Callback, Resp Selected" (5200). Just because the respondent is currently in the hospital does NOT mean that they are physically unable - we can interview them after they have recovered from their hospital stay.

What if the person answers the phone in a language I don't understand?

➔Try to determine if the person also speaks English, and if they do not speak any English, then try to determine what language they are speaking. If the person does not speak English, code the call as "OTHER" (4310) and leave a detailed message - defining what language you believe they speak. We are especially interested if they speak Spanish because we have a Spanish speaking interviewer to call those number.

- ☆ It is VERY IMPORTANT that you leave a detailed message for as many calls as possible, especially for Refusals, Phone Problems, and OTHER. The supervisors will later re-assign many of those dispositions into their appropriate place, so if the message you leave is not clear enough, you will be asked to add additional information - and this may be difficult to do from memory!!! If you do not have enough room in the message section to write your message, write the additional information on a paper with the record # on it, give the message to a supervisor, and leave a note in the message section that there is additional information on paper.

This interview is part of a long-range study of the relationships between people's work and their marriages. I want to emphasize that your answers are completely confidential and your name will not be used, nor will any information be released that will permit people to identify you. We would like to interview you again in the future to see what kinds of changes have been taking place. In order to be able to locate you again, we would like to update our information on you.

Sometimes people move even though they are not really planning to right now. Would you please give me the name and address of someone who would know where you lived if you happened to move in the next three years-for example, a relative? I want you to understand that this person's name will not be used in anyway except to help us locate you if you have moved at the end of three years. I want to assure you that this person will not be interviewed nor will they be told about the nature of the study you're involved in. (PREFER BLOOD RELATIVE OF R. DO NOT TAKE BUSINESSES. TAKE NEIGHBORS AS A LAST RESORT.)

B. Daily Procedures

1. Checking In

The first thing you should do each time you come into the office to work is to sign yourself in (be sure to indicate the office or phone number you will be working at either on the sign in and/or the sign out sheet). Check your file folder. Take a look at the message boards for special day and study instructions. Memos to the entire staff as well as individual notes concerning problems will be placed in your folder. Don't forget to sign out too!

2. Preparing to Interview

Arm yourself with a copy of the Interviewer's Guide for this study. You should select a set of cover sheets for each shift. In selecting cover sheets, you should:

- 1) look in the appointments folder for call-backs to be made on a specific day,
- 2) then look through the call-back stack and find those that have been called previously at other times, or those indicating that the respondent will be at home during your shift. After you have selected these,
- 3) now you may select new cover sheets. Be very careful not to mix up the stacks of cover sheets; they are very carefully labeled on the shelves.

3. Cover sheets:

This is a national study. We are interviewing respondents in four different time zones ranging from 1 hour ahead of us (9:00 when we are at 8:00) to 2 hours behind us (7:00 and 6:00 when we are 8:00). PLEASE BE VERY CAREFUL TO CALL THESE DIFFERENT TIME ZONES AT APPROPRIATE HOURS:

EASTERN	8 AM	TO	8 PM
CENTRAL	9 AM	TO	9 PM
MOUNTAIN	10 AM	TO	10 PM
PACIFIC	11 AM	TO	11 PM

Only take Cover sheets from one time zone at a time. COVER SHEETS ARE MARKED WITH "E," "C," "M," OR "P" UNDER THE RESPONDENT'S NAME AND ADDRESS. If you come in before 5 PM, call Eastern, at least for the first couple of hours. If you are in the office around 8 PM, try calling some of the Mountain and Pacific time zones.

How to use cover sheets with the WinCati computer system:

1. Log in as normal onto PANEL
2. Click on the Retrieve button
3. Click on "User Defined Field"
4. Select ID and then click OK (The ID # is the 6 digit # that starts with an 8 and is listed above the phone # on the cover sheet, for example, #801488)
5. Enter the ID # in the "To Find" Box
6. Click OK
7. The name that appears on the record should match your cover sheet - if it does not match, notify a supervisor
8. Now, follow the same process you did for the WAFL cross-section using similar disposition codes. Instead of setting up call backs in the computer, set them up using the old "cover sheet" method and stack the cover sheets in the appropriate place.

C. PANEL RESPONDENTS -

1. The respondents you are interviewing have all been interviewed before in 1980, 1983, 1988, 1992, and in 1997. We are attempting to re-interview each respondent from the earlier surveys. This will have some good points as well as drawbacks. In the first place, it means that you should get few refusals, since all of these people have agreed to help us five times in the past. It does, however, mean that we have to find a particular person rather than selecting households at random. Some respondents will still be living in the same place as they were when we last interviewed them and it will be a relatively simple matter to find them at home and get their interview. Other respondents will have moved, will have changed their phone number, may have changed last names, etc. These people will have to be traced, a process we call "tracking."

2. Tracking - To the extent possible we have identified all of the people needing to be tracked before interviewing started. We sent letters in November and have done our best to track those who had changed their addresses. Thus, when you get a cover sheet, we have already done some work on this respondent and have every reason to believe he/she is still at that telephone number. It is still possible, however, that you will find that the respondent you are seeking is no longer at the number you call. In this instance, we are asking the interviewer to get as much information as possible, and, if unable to immediately locate the respondent, to turn the cover sheet back to the Tracking stack. It is very important in this study that we make every attempt to locate all the original respondents in the study. Most of the job of tracking respondents will be done separately from the interviewing by specially trained trackers. However, interviewers play an important part in the tracking process as it is in this step that the need for tracking a given respondent is first identified. Interviewers attach the tracking forms and it is important that the reason the respondent needs to be tracked is clearly indicated on these forms.

3. The Cover Sheet - Each cover sheet specifies a particular telephone number and a particular respondent. If the respondent is known to have moved since the last interview, the appropriate telephone number and address will be handwritten toward the right-hand side of the cover sheet under the heading, "new address and new telephone number." In addition, tracking forms will be stapled to the back of the cover sheet to show the progression of finding the respondent. The information on this tracking sheet provides the trackers with reference numbers of relatives who knew where the respondent was.

4. Each call you make must be recorded in the call-back record on the face of the cover sheet. For each call, record your interviewer number, the hour of day, date, day of week, and the result of the call.

5. It is possible that the number you dial will be unassigned. If this happens, make one call-back IMMEDIATELY to make sure you dialed correctly. If it is still unassigned, put this under "Non-interview Information" on the back of the cover sheet and return the cover sheet to the Tracking stack.
6. If you get an answer, ask to speak to the respondent. If the respondent is available, read the statement on computer screen. Make it as conversational as possible. Add additional information to reduce suspicion, if necessary. This phase of the telephone interview is most important in securing a successful interview. Be your most convincing and as resolute as possible.

CONVINCING RELUCTANT RESPONDENTS

The following are points you may want to make:

“. . . It is important that we talk with all of the people we talked to in 1997. The purpose of the study is to find out how things have changed in people's work and family life since we last interviewed you. We can only measure this change if everyone previously interviewed takes part.”

“. . . You are a part of a unique study. In fact, this is the only information of this kind in the world where people's work and family lives have been studied over a 20 year period.”

“. . . It may seem like a long time to talk on the phone, but we can complete it in 2 or 3 different sessions if we need to. Let's just get started on it and you can stop me when you need to go.”

“. . . The study is sponsored by the NATIONAL INSTITUTE ON AGING, Penn State University, and the University of Nebraska at Lincoln. It is directed by Dr. David Johnson, Dr. Alan Booth, and Dr. Paul Amato. You are welcome to call Dr. Johnson or the Bureau of Sociological Research at 1-800-480-4549 for more information, or you may call the Office of University Information at (402) 472-2167 to verify the validity of this study.”

“. . . We will be glad to send you the results of the survey if you are interested, or I can read a copy of the letter<sup>1</sup> we sent to you last Fall. We have already sent a selection of results of previous surveys in letters addressed to you.”

7. If the respondent is not there when you reach your number, find out whether the respondent lives there and, if so, when it is likely that you can catch him or her.

8. If the respondent does not live at this number try to find out as much information as possible. Try to find out whether the respondent has ever lived there, when and where they might have moved, and if the present residents have ever heard of the respondent, how long they, themselves, have lived at this number. All the information should be entered onto the back of the cover sheet (or a Tracking sheet) -- even if you simply report that no one knew the respondent. Remember, you are not a trained tracker. You should, however, get as much information as possible to aid trackers while you are on the line. In the case where the person you are talking to knows exactly what the respondent's new phone number is, however, by all means go ahead and attempt to get the interview. Be sure to: (1) enter the new telephone number and address (if possible) on the face of the cover sheet; (2) check the box which indicates that the respondent has moved; (3) check on the back of the cover sheet that you have tracked the respondent; and (4) attach the Tracking Sheet. Remember, it is not intended that you serve as trackers; use this procedure only if you are given a definite number where the respondent can be reached -- do not look through telephone directories or engage in any search procedures.

9. If you get no answer or a busy signal, dial back IMMEDIATELY to make sure you have the correct number. If you still don't get an answer, fill out the details on the call-back form and return the cover sheet to the call-back stack at the end of your shift.

10. We will keep calling each number until we get either a refusal or a completion. If we get no answer after ten calls (home, business, or cellular telephone), however, we will institute special procedures to make sure it is a working number. If you get the tenth NA, mark this category in the Non-interview form and return the cover sheet to the Tracking stack.

11. Sign your initials and Interviewer I.D. number to a cover sheet only in the instances where you "close out" a cover sheet: where you complete an interview, where the respondent refuses, or where you find the respondent is deceased. All other close outs will be done by trackers.

12. The Call-Back Record is our primary means of tracing the progress of an interview. It is vital that each call you make be recorded on this sheet, REGARDLESS OF THE OUTCOME. You should use the following codes to indicate the results of your calls. Other alternatives should be indicated as clearly as possible.

CI	Completed Interview
PCI	Partially Completed Interview
REF	Refusal by Respondent
NA	No Answer
RNA	Respondent Not Available
TRACK	Respondent not at that number
	(unassigned) Needs to be tracked

Guide to Specific Questions

Before calling the respondent, familiarize yourself with essential demographics about the respondent. Specifically, sex, age, and family composition from the 1997 Summary Table, divorce, separation and widowhood and remarriage information from the cover sheet, and information on adult offspring which will be attached.

This information will help you in two ways. First, if we have incomplete or inaccurate information for locating the respondent, the data will help you be sure that you are talking to the right person. Second, the information will help you make comparisons called for in questions on household composition and questions on changes in marital status. The information on the adult offspring will be important when you obtain the phone number and addresses of offspring at the end of the interview.

Be sure to carefully examine every page of the cover sheet. Look over the 1997 household table and familiarize yourself with. Pay close attention to any handwritten notes ANYWHERE on any of the pages of the cover sheet.

Keep in mind that these folks have been helping us out for 20 years now, and they have not received any compensation for their cooperation. Be gracious and respectful, as you always should be. The youngest adult panel respondent will be 38 years of age; the rest of the sample is older.

The screen number corresponds to the question number and appears in the upper left-hand corner. Special instructions for selected questions follow.

MAR6 - This is a key question - we are asking for the respondent's current marital status. It is important that you ask the full question, so that respondents who are separated are categorized as just that and not as currently married. While it is true they are technically still married, there are different sets of questions for each marital status, and some of the married questions are not appropriate for separated respondents. Also, if you get farther into the interview - say to the rest of the household table, and find this respondent is married but living alone (but not married, living apart), you may want to probe to find out why - and if you find out s/he is separated, you'll want to tell the respondent you are having computer problems so that you can contact a supervisor, change the marital status, and proceed with the appropriate questions on the interview.

NAM6-MA06 - The purpose of these items is to obtain information on every resident of the household. Information on up to ten people can be entered in the computer. If there are more than ten in the household, record information on additional people on the back of the cover sheet. BABIES UNDER THE AGE OF ONE ARE RECORDED AS 0. In computing years of schooling completed, do not count nursery school, pre-school, or kindergarten years. Children who have yet to attend school are recorded 0.

REL26 - REL06 - A stepchild is a <2> child of R/spouse NOT OTHER RELATIVE. A question follows if you respond with <2>, asking the status of this child.

ED26-ED06 - (years of education questions)- A GED is equivalent to 12 years of education.

S69 - It is important to confirm what our records show about the person's marital status. That is the basis upon which we obtain information on changes which have occurred. If the differences are so great you feel that R was probably not interviewed in 1997, terminate the interview with the excuse of computer problems and turn the cover sheet into supervisor.

S71, S73, S75 - When asking the question about what has happened since 1997, keep in mind their status at that time. When you ask "How many months ago did you divorce?", be sure the time does not exceed the total elapsed time between interviews (no more than 48 months). If they say they divorced 4 years ago, make sure it was not before January of 1997. If the divorce did occur prior to the last interview, you may have to make changes to the 1997 household information page (see S115).

Asking about all of these marital statuses or changes may seem redundant or out of place, but a lot of marital changes might have happened between now and 1997, so we need to ask everyone about all of the possibilities. It is possible to have been widowed and remarried, or both divorced and remarried, etc.

COMPARE1 -"It looks like there have been some changes in your household since we last interviewed you in 1997." My records tell me ...[read info from 1997 household table]..." You have the 1997 household composition table stapled to the coversheet to refer to and to compare to their current household for each respondent. It does not include names, but does include sex, relationship to R, age, marital status, and years of education for each person in R's household in 1997. You might want to go over these people for R to see if there are any changes. It is VERY important to find out if they have been divorced, widowed, or remarried since the last time we interviewed them, so probe those categories. If there are no changes, simply press any key to continue and then enter <5> No Changes from 1997-2000 for the next question - COMPARE2.

S82-S97 - Remember to enter changes in order of occurrence. When you are finished entering changes, select <77> "None/No Other" to move onto next question.

S111 -The changes in the household should be listed on the right hand side of the screen; verify that these occurred and/or specify what's incorrect.

S115 - Internal interviewer question --indicate if R says 1997 household information was correct or not. If not, key in <1>, record the changes briefly on the screen, and record the correct information on the 1997 sheet in detail.

S128 - A town house is a row house where each unit has access to the outdoors. A condominium could be either a town house or apartment.

S130 - counting children who live with you and children who don't how many children have you had ---this INCLUDES ONLY natural children and adopted children. This DOES include children who are deceased if the respondent offers or questions it.

S131 - "Do you have any children not living with you?" This includes stepchildren of R who lived with the respondent and his/her spouse at some time. It DOES NOT include stepchildren who have never lived with the R and his/her spouse.

This also DOES NOT include children who have died. If the respondent offers a child who has died, simply record the information about the child's death on the cover sheet, but record <5> "No" for the answer to this question.

S135, S232, S234A, S244, S246 - (Miles away from home.) If a person doesn't know how many miles away their child lives, but knows they live in Albany, NY for example, make a note of that. (Use text key -F4.) In the text - list the city/state for both the child and the respondent. For example, Lincoln, NE to Orlando, FL.

S168+, S182+, S188+, S206+, S214+, S396+, S406+, S411+, S421+, S472+
 Repeat possible responses for each stem until you are sure R understands. If R. indicates a "No Opinion/Neutral" response to the strongly agree-strongly disagree questions, use "Don't Know".

S178 - "The lot of the average person is getting worse, not better." - this may sound a little funny, and it probably doesn't follow 2000 jargon. REMEMBER, though, these respondents were adults in 1980, and they didn't think it sounded too weird then, and they'll be able to relate better than you think to the wording. It's the wording that has been used the other 5 times we spoke to them, so it must be read as-is.

S188 - If the respondent lives on a farm or in a rural area and seems to have trouble knowing what the "neighborhood" is, you might offer "...your neighborhood or community..."

S189 - Because we don't know yet whether or not the respondent is employed, we cannot instruct the computer to skip this question for non-employed persons. However, if someone offers, "I don't have a job or career/I'm retired/I'm not working/ etc.", you have an option <7> NOT CURRENTLY EMPLOYED to enter.

S245, S247 - In regard to questions about contact with one's parents or parents-in-law, we are talking specifically about the respondent, not R's spouse or other relative. For instance, if you ask the respondent how long it has been since he/she spoke with spouse's mother and he/she replies that his/her spouse speaks to her daily, you would probe with, "... how many days has it been since you spoke with...your spouse's mother?" If R says they received a letter from the spouse's mother seven days ago, then enter 7 days. You don't need to probe to find out if the letter was addressed to R directly.

S264, S270 - If R mentions more than 10 say, "We mean only your closest relatives/friends." If they decline to alter the number, enter the number they mentioned or 97 if it's greater than 97, and merely proceed with the questioning.

S283, S307, S339 - If R is retired but working part-time, code the status highest in order on the list - in this case, you would code in <2> "Working part-time", because it appears higher on the list than retired.

S285, S309, S341 - The kind of work must be obtained in enough detail so that the occupation can be coded for status and various census categories. We are referring only to employment for a wage or living - full-time or part-time, and this does not include volunteer work experiences. Therefore, obtain all of the information about the job that is asked for. In some cases, the title is enough such as elementary school teacher. But in others, it is not. For engineer, it is necessary to obtain type (e.g., electrical), duties (e.g., the individual may be a maintenance engineer who sweeps floors and does minor repairs, or the person may be a full time administrator), type of industry (whether it is a high tech firm or public utility may make a difference), and whether the individual is self-employed (person may be a marginally employed consultant or work for a stable high prestige firm). We don't need to know the name of the company; in fact, we'd rather not see the name, but rather a good description of the size and type of company it is. (See Appendix) ld4, wd4, rd4, lwk4, lwo4, fwk4, fwo4, swk4, swo4, sep4, gos4, gow4, div4, god4 - translation of years to months - if this entails a long time - many years - this number of months might seem a little weird to offer. You might just preface it by saying, "Okay, so if I convert that amount of time to months, it comes to about ## months, does that sound about right?" If the number of months is incorrect and you answer "no", you will be taken back to the first question - enter number, next question asks years or months..."

S290, S314, S346 - Unemployment refers to being laid off and being unable to find a job. People who take voluntary leaves to have a baby or go to school are not included.

S293, S317, S349 - Reduction in pay does not refer to reduction created by no increase in face of inflation, but refers to actual reduction in take-home dollars because of reduction in hours or salary or loss of a job.

S294, S318, S350 - Does not refer to transfers within the same company.

DIV1 - How long since you divorced - if R asks you to clarify, say, "Since the divorce was granted by the courts."

S373, S376, S383 - Read these questions as written, but if R asks, "What do you mean by "going with", then you may say dating or going out with. Remember, once again, these terms might be a bit "dated", but these same respondents knew what they meant in 1980, 83, 88, and again in 92, 97, so I don't think they'll be too confused by the use of the terms. You may be more uncomfortable with it than they are. All of the adult panel respondents are age 38 or older.

HT, HTF, HTI - These questions ask for R's height. Enter # for HT, then enter whether it was in feet or inches for HTF, and then add any additional inches for HTI.

S450A, S450B - These questions ask about a series of health conditions. It is very important that you ask about EACH condition and wait for the R to answer yes/no to each condition. If the R answers no to a condition, leave it as is, but if they answer yes to a condition, click the box next to the condition so that a checkmark appears. After reading all of the conditions, click on the box next to "Click to move on to the next question."

S503 - Enter the number of years (not the year 97,98,99!!)

E538 - We are asking the respondent to remember how happy the marriage s/he was involved in when interviewed in 1980 was. Even if the respondents has divorced or widowed and remarried, even numerous times, we are asking for her/his memory of the happiness of the marriage in 1980.

S593 - "Total Family Income" refers to salaries, wages, tips, interest income - all sources of income for the household during the previous year. Do not rephrase to ask what the respondent's salary or wages were - it also includes a spouse's salary and sources of income.

S596 - S597 The individual's contributions include their own earnings plus any unemployment or disability that they receive in their own right. Family payments such as from welfare are not counted as part of either individual's contribution.

S598 - Retirement, unemployment compensation, disability, social security are not public assistance.

S602, S604 - Record dollar value of house and assets in thousands of dollars!!

S610, S611 - Indicate yes for both if the respondent says stocks and bonds are part of the IRA or retirement plan.

S630 - You need to look at the front side of the 2000 cover sheet when you get to this question. First, verify the address of R. If it is correct, simply indicate SAME ADDRESS on the reference sheet. If the address has changed, write the correct address in the appropriate area.

REFER - Then proceed to get the names and addresses of three people who will know how to locate R in case he/she moves or we are unable to reach him/her. Try to get blood relatives whenever possible.

*** WHEN A SURVEY IS COMPLETED, STAPLE THE BRIGHT PINK REFERENCE SHEET TO THE BACK OF THE COVER SHEET.

IF THE RESPONDENT REQUESTS RESULTS:

In the past, we have provided results to the Work and Family Life respondents in short paragraphs in contact letters sent to them by the study directors. This is not the type of study which is featured on Oprah or in Glamour magazine. Instead, most of the articles and books written about this study appear in scholarly journals and in academic and professional circles. There have been many articles published in The Journal of Marriage and the Family, The Journal of Family Issues, Family Relations, The American Sociological Review, among others. If the respondent requests (and only if they request the information; do not get into a habit of offering it unless they ask for it or seem reluctant without the offer) to see a list of the articles, note this. Offer the website address (it has the publications list), and if respondent does not have access to a computer, note the request for a hard copy of the publications list on the cover sheet. We will send them a list of the authors, titles, and journals from which they can either go to a library and read the articles or they may contact us and we will send them a copy of the article of interest to them. We will not send them copies of every article written based on this study; that would number just under 1,000 pages or so, making it impossible for us to mail. LEAVE A NOTE FOR MINDY WHENEVER RESULTS ARE REQUESTED.

We will not give or sell the respondent's or the children's names, telephone numbers, or contact information to anyone. You may assure respondents they will not receive marketing or sales information as a result of participating in this study. The names and contact information is removed from the data before it is analyzed so confidentiality is protected.

We also will not give the respondent's individual responses to anyone they know now or after they die. Results will only be released in summary form.

20001986 somewhat agree but not much
20002034 read different things on that, would tend to think if the parents weren't abusing each other, it's better to stay together until the kids are older (18 or so)"
20002052 depends on how they fight
20002064 try counseling
20002151 depending upon how bad the situation is 20002271 situational dependency-if fighting is done in front of children or not 20002319 depends on what they fight about
20002348 needs circumstances
20002356 sees that this can cause a lot of harm to a child and has seen what fighting and divorce has done to her grandchildren. she is not sure how to answer this.
20002466 should not fight in front of the children should work it out and solve the problems
20002478 depends if healthy fight - but if physical no
20002485 don't know what the fight is about 20002500 if fighting in front of children they learn parents
20002619 the children are first responsibility not personal happiness and parents should work it out.
20002752 depending on what the fights are. We always fought in front of the children. Many people would frown on that but we fought about what was going on around. The kids always knew what was happening and were never in doubt about what was happening. It really made our kids realistic people.
20002796 I don't know that they're better off; they blame themselves for the breakup. They'll be miserable regardless. No real answer
20002801 it is harmful to the children if there is fighting between husband and wife
20002812 according to degree of fighting

He didn't have a problem with doing this interview!	20000224	went very well -- the first time i called i accidentally ended it and couldn't get back into it, and he was very patient and even did the survey when i called back, even tho i sounded a bit idiotic. he was a nice guy, very polite.
20000163	very nice guy - good survey - children questions kind of hard because baby is 8 mo old - otherwise good survey	20000225	went very well. she thought about each question and answered honestly. nice.
		20000226	it went great, he enjoyed doing the survey, he liked it.
		20000227	went very well -- nice guy
		20000228	went good. he said that before they got married they took a compatibility test and that they had never seen anyone who had rated so high. He thought they didn't have any problems b/c he worked nights and she worked days so they didn't see each other very often.
		20000229	went very well.
		20000230	interview went well, friendly guy
		20000231	Really had to convince him to finish the survey and when I got to the yellow sheet, he would not give out any information
		20000232	went very well

20000233	good interview, cooperative, easy going	item ss11a1d should be 24	20000296	went extremely well the resp. was very cooperative
20000234	kinda boring and bland.		20000297	very slow interview, hard to understand and I had to paraphrase questions so he could understand. good ci
20000235	survey went well, man was patient with the length.		20000298	very good interview. R was pleasant to speak with and seemed interested in completing survey. He gave thoughtful responses. He did not give a reference to locate him if he moves - he said as long as we have his name and that he is in XXX, he's sure the mail will get to him.
20000237	R was not comfortable disclosing personal info but didn't seem to be offended by any other questions. I believe he answered honestly. A good interview.		20000299	Interview went well. I completed the last 10 to 15 min. R was very congenial. He did say the survey was too long, stated the first part took about 45min. Refused to give full name and address
20000238	He was very cooperative		20000302	vet very well-- may be moving in two months with husband to singapore for a year because of husband's job--I gave her our 800# to keep us posted of her new address and phone and she gave me an address and phone # of someone who could get in contact with her
20000239	did not want to give out any personal info income last name kids names etc....		20000303	refused to give out any information like her name or her husband's name, address, zip code, and even a relative's information.

20000243	was very cooperative and patient, he had a good grasp of all questions		20000306	she had told me that she did not have much time, but she finished the entire thing and was very nice about it. 20000244	nice lady		20000307	Went very well. Refused to give full name and address or other contact information.
20000246	Great interview.		20000309	Lady and her husband are both Hispanic, but I put white-Hispanic . good interview. She had depression of some sort, though not clinical.
20000247	Finally found a good time for her. Good interview, very pleasant and seemed to answer freely. Stress in marriage due to a move and the new home. Second marriage for husband,1 child in the marriage. A few problem areas I would guess.		20000310	went very well--gave respondent our 800# and encouraged her to call in to give us her mailing address.
20000248	this was a really difficult interview-the thought crossed my mind several times to terminate, but kept on. A few questions were difficult for the respondent to understand (Hispanic) and he simply said that he didn't understand so instead of re-wording I marked it dk. He was very nice, but uneducated.		20000311	great
20000249	no problems he was very nice		20000312	Great interview.

Overall quality very good.
20000262	We were pushed for time to get this finally finished tonight so we went rather quickly but we were able to complete it! He was hesitant to give out information at last! He said contact me by phone in 3-5 years!		20000323	did not want to give tracking info no other problems

Second marriage for both, and life seems pretty good-they have things worked out well.		20000326	one of my better interviews/terrific lady. Husband is a orthopedic surgeon, she a professor. Has a grown family and a year old adopted son. They moved to the us 15 years ago. They are moving to miami, she accepted a job at u.m. she said that "you do what you have to do in life, and find the strength"
20000266	He was nice. He also wanted a copy of the results.		20000327	She was very nice, it went good.

20000269	Went good, she commented a lot on most of the questions. She didn't feel comfortable giving out her address, and she needed a little convincing to start the interview in the first place.		20000330	was so nice. Interview went great. When I called the home number her mother told me to call her at work.
20000270	went fine		20000332	interview went very well

20000275	R seemed fine with doing the interview and did not seem offended by any of the questions. A good survey.		20000337	Went well--but woman commented on how extremely long the study was and that's why she didn't want to give her mailing address and because its so long she may not participate in the future.
20000276	This lady said she was Chinese, and she seemed to have a thick accent, I'm not sure if she understood very well what was going on. She said she didn't want to give us her address, but we could feel free to call her back in the future.		20000338	very nice guy - good survey - not comfortable giving name and address out over the phone.

20000278	no problems		20000340	Went very well he was an extremely nice man!!
20000279	went well		20000341	Very concerned that we would need all the information at the end that her comment was that he had her telephone number and when it is time for an update, please call her at the phone number that we called her at today, hopefully she will be able to be reached at that number in the future! i said "thank you!"
20000280	went well		20000342	excellent-very interested in the study-wants to receive results
20000281	very nice woman-had to go take care of kids the first time I talked with her, but asked if I could call back today and we completed it in 2 calls. friendly, warm, and cooperative		20000343	went smoothly a little reluctant on some questions due to wife being in same room

20000283	Computer problems. He was very cooperative.		20000346	went very well
20000284	R was a very frank and to the point woman. Very polite though--she stressed her christian morals throughout and even got some "plugs" for the church of christ. She was very fun to talk to and keep me laughing.		20000347	no problems- no income or financial info and no reference
20000285	interview went very well		20000348	I did not start this, but finished the better part of it. R. was very cheerful and seemed cooperative. Nothing stood out in the interview 'tho and it went quickly. This is the respondents second marriage. Surprised to find that out at the end!!!
20000286	went well until getting references		20000349	went very well
20000287	she did not want to give out any tracking info but she was very nice about the rest of it		20000350	Survey went good (it was a pci), r. was very honest and polite, no distractions
20000289	very good interview		20000351	went well, but refused to give out relatives information because they just

20000295	Went very well.

	moved in this house, and she said there are no going any where.	20000410	went well
20000352	Well, it took a little bit of persuading to get R to do this, however, once, into the survey, things went o:k!!!!	20000411	I can not comment on this as I did not do the study, only finished it up, but from the short conversation that I did have with her I would judge that she was very pleasant and cooperative.
20000353	went very well--please send $10.00 and any info on study.
20000354	Nice lady. Second marriage for both her and her husband. she is a RN and works a lot. Nothing outstanding about the interview only that she was very pleasant and it moved quickly.	20000412	Very good interview. was friendly, very interested in purpose of study and gave thoughtful responses. She said it was really interesting for her to think about the things we are asking. Overall quality very good.
20000355	At some times he didn't take the interview seriously but for the most part I think his answers were truthful	20000413	Wonderful person to interview!
20000356	excellent ci, he refused to answer questions about his children, he also had to explain a lot of his answers	20000414	very well
20000357	gave an excellent interview, super nice person">	20000415	the man was very nice. i realized he forgot to add his wife to the questions about the next oldest people, etc at the beginning of the interview. he mentioned a niece and child though. he definitely lived with his wife though.
20000358	she wouldn't answer some of the questions at first, but then became more comfortable. Asked why we needed to know her children's names and didn't want to elaborate on the family's occupations.	20000417	very cooperative, answered all questions
	went well	20000419	I think r may have been stoned or just a little mentally incapable when doing the survey -- he was very slow to answer questions and had to have many repeated. I believe he was completely honest about the questions that he understood.
20000361	The respondent was very nice and seemed to give all of the questions a lot of consideration. He changed his mind a lot which was problematic b/c I didn't have the previous or next keys to return to questions.	20000421	went well
20000363	very good interview. was pleasant, interested and was attentive to questions throughout entire survey. She was interested to know how info. was used and in what kind of journals it is published. Overall quality very good.	20000422
	went well	20000425	R isn't too happy with life right now, and I could tell some of the questions bugged him. He only refused to answer one question, so I think he really cares about this topic-his marriage isn't great, from the sound of things. Overall I think the interview went well.
20000365		20000426	O.k. interview. She didn't like to give out some personal information (husband's job, his income, zip code, etc.).
20000366	Very long ci, had to repeat questions over and over, at the end julie refused to give last name or any other information.		went well
20000367	Interview was o:k!	20000427
20000368	went well	20000428	Male respondent was very quiet spoken, answered questions and volunteered nothing. Don't think he ever smiled or laughed. People usually have something to add to this study at some point, but not john.
20000369	female seemed a little hesitant at first-is a young mother, not working but this is apparently by choice. She and her husband are native Americans. They both have little education, but I think she said that she attends school now. Interview went ok despite the annoying children!!	20000429	Overall it is an ok survey.
20000370	Fairly good interview. Monty seemed interested in survey. I could tell his wife was in the room because she got upset when he gave info. about her job. I offered that we could call him back, but he wanted to continue. He said her presence was a concern in his answering.		by the end of the survey, he started acting funny. He refused to give out his and his wife's income, refused to give out the zip code, the address, even the last name. And he said he's not interested in doing the survey again in the future.
20000371	very good. nice man	20000430	Terrible phone connection-she was pretty patient and completed with me. went okay otherwise

20000374	interview went fine	20000433	went well, nice person to do survey with
20000375	Excellent ci, no problems, liked to talk a lot, very pleasant, good natured man.	20000434	was very talkative and had trouble keeping her on the interview..very interesting lady and great interview. After 37 attempts we got this interview.
20000377	Another exciting interview!		Interview was o:k! seemed bored at times!
20000378	Went o:k two days to complete it, better than not at all!	20000435	R was very nice. Interview went good. I would also like to add that not only does she have a part time job, she also goes to school, home schools her children and in the army reserves. She did want me to make a note that she did not like the last grouping of questions(the ones that see ci log
20000379	was nice overall went good	20000436	went very well
20000380	man was very interested in this study and asked to receive information about it.		went well.
20000381	was really willing to help out and was pretty enthusiastic about it. He did have to ask his wife about some responses, but still did awesomely.	20000437	R was jamacian and didn't understand some of the wording that we used in our questions, but he pulled through well.
20000383	went very well	20000438	very good info. no problems
20000384	I did not begin this interview-I started at the questions dealing with her job. She was upset that it was taking so long, said that the "girl said it would take 5min."! r was not too friendly, had a very masculine voice. Very impatient. Would not part with any personal info. for future use.	20000439	interview went very well
20000385	went very well -- she had a strong Russian (i think) accent, so was hard to understand at times, and I had to repeat a couple of questions. However, she was a very polite and intelligent lady, and I enjoyed talking to her!	20000440	a very nice individual and survey went very smoothly
	Good interview.	20000441	went extremely well.
20000386	Wonderful interview	20000442	Hispanic male was respondent! He understand very well all the questions and I didn't have to repeat very many questions!
20000387		20000443	no problems
20000388	very good (end) of interview. I finished pci and seemed very friendly and willing to finish. She agreed to give name/address to participate in long range study. They will be moving in 3 weeks and she gave contact person.	20000444	Respondent was very comical!
	went smoothly	20000445	she refused to give me her name or address, or relative's, nice lady though
20000389	went very well, nice lady, cooperative	20000446	This ci was a miracle. R didn't feel comfortable giving out any personal info; the occupation answers are vague, but I didn't want to press him for any more info than he'd be comfortable with. He did give his name & address, though.
20000391	went well	20000447	it went well. he was very nice and willing to help out
20000392	was a little hesitant at first, but was convinced after I explained what the kinds of questions in the interview were.	20000448	very good interview. R was very congenial
20000394	very nice, went well		excellent ci no problems
20000395	went well but he did not feel comfortable giving his address and so on.	20000449	very good interview, very happy person
20000396	interview went fine. She did not feel comfortably disclosing her husbands income, or giving me her last name or address, or a 3rd party - she said they have lived there for 20 years - and she says they will not be moving.	20000450	Husband picked up the phone @ the very beginning, she told him it was a survey and he told her not to give out their address or credit card numbers, or his age-she's an outspoken woman and didn't refuse any others-really nice and patient-the 11month old baby was making noise, she stayed on
20000398	very good interview. gave resp. 800# as she wanted to know name of publication results will be printed.	20000451	Good interview! I had to convince R that this was ok to do! R is permanently disabled. He is very frustrated with life in general, also with his marriage!
20000399	Very perky. A very willing participant. Happily married with 4 children. They are leaving for a cruise and to re-new their marriage vows. Her marriage is coated and dripping with love.	20000452	Went very well
20000400	R was a pretty indecisive person because some of questions didn't apply to his situation.	20000453	complained about the length of the survey, she said it had taken well over an hour, she refused to give her last name or address, only zip code. I had to hurry fast to keep her from refusing to complete ci. Ci good to fair R was incredibly nice and had no problems with the survey or any of the questions. I believe he was honest about everything and answered as best he could. A great survey!
20000401	Male respondent refused to give out any names or any addresses or any information about income! It was a rather difficult survey to do! Respondent, several times, kept saying, why are you asking me this question!	20000454	Good interview. Didn't seem like she was in the happiest marriage, but they seem to be working it out. She indicated it was rocky about 3 years ago when they were relocating jobs and changing homes.
20000404	went very well	20000455	This was a very tough interview! It was another refusal, however, I told him about the survey, that we should at least start it, and I was able to limp along with him until it was complete. A lot of questions he refused to answer!
20000405	interview went very well. the lady was nice and seemed to answer completely honestly.	20000456	She was not feeling the best health wise, but stuck with me to the end... was not excited about divulging financial information... yes, there is a husband living there, they have been married 25 years.
20000407	went well, she was very nice, didn't give address because husband doesn't like to give stuff (she was willing) gave us her work # where she should be in 3 yrs to get a hold of her there, they are moving in 2 months	20000457	Another great interview! I enjoy interviewing females, they seem a lot
20000408	went well but refused to give out his address, and relative's information.
20000409	went very well---on the question about what race do you consider yourself to be--he said we are all Americans and wanted me to put down American for himself---I am, however 99% certain he is white-non Hispanic---as when he was spelling his last name he said it was a polish name.	20000462

20000465	more cooperative when you tell them that the survey is on work and family life!
20000466	Went well. He was very patient. Nice fellow to visit with.
20000467	O:k	20000523
20000468	no problems he was concerned that we might sell this information but I convinced him that we wouldn't	20000525
20000470	Went fairly fast.
20000471	Only wanted to give us her/husband's name. He is in the military. They will move in 6 mos. Not certain where they will be in 3-4 yrs. but it will be someplace else. Gave us husband's mother's ph. # only. Reluctantly did interview but seemed enjoy it a bit as it went along.	20000526 20000527
20000472	this was a excellent ci husband is the r, not his wife so I answered all questions in the reverse order to complete the ci, as the computer had it set for the wife to be the ci	20000528 20000529
20000475	she was very friendly, went well
20000476	Very nice to talk with. Teacher in head start. Has three children and seems to be very happy in her marriage. Said that early in the marriage she would get very angry w/her husband and throw things/has learned to control that!! good interview.	20000530
20000477	R was a fantastic person to interview. She was eager to share trials and tribulations of marriage.	20000531 20000532
20000478	A very busy young mother. Family just re-located and this has been stressful for all of them. Marriage has been in trouble but they are working on it. Very pleasant. Good interview	20000533 20000534 20000535 20000536
20000479	interview went very well, but she refused to give anything but her first name and zip code
20000480	Male respondent. Gave very brisk answers. Not overly friendly but very polite. I had a rather "cold" feeling after we finished. Interview went quickly.	20000537 20000538
20000481	R was so nice and did the interview with interest. He wanted a copy of the results.
20000482	was very cooperative and it ran very long	20000539
20000483	interview went very well
20000484	very nice person but did not want to give out address or any other information and did not want to be called again
20000485	R was very willing to do the survey to help us out, she thought that if she had the time, might as well help someone. R was very attentive to the questions themselves as well as the trailer facts prior to the set of questions.	20000540
20000486	Very good, cooperative. Put a lot of thought into answers
20000488	No problems.	20000541
20000489	Well, this was not the easiest one I've ever done/respondent did not understand some of the wording in our questions, and just when I expected her to have a problem, she surprised me!! some problems in the marriage a few years ago with husbands drinking. She was a very nice, patient lady.	20000542 20000543
20000490	good survey just wants to keep name to herself
20000491	very good interview. was interested in survey, gave thoughtful responses and was attentive throughout entire interview. Overall quality very good.	20000544
20000492	went very smoothly, nice person, very responsible man
20000493	very nice lady and I enjoyed talking to her. Being a texan she was very pleasant. No problems came up.	20000545
20000494	Respondent was a little "too casual and flipant" with her answers. I was not too sure when to take her serious and when not. She is married to a emigrant from Europe, and life is a bit un-structured. She is an odd one that is for sure and mouthy!! No children.	20000546
20000495	I had to convinced this guy that it was o:k to do the survey! He acted like something bad would happen if he did do it! He refused a lot of questions so I hope this is valuable. He would not give out any names, addresses, income, or zip codes!	20000547
20000499	went well	20000548 20000549 20000550 20000551 20000552 20000553 20000554
20000500	She was very nice and was willing to give a lot of information for the yellow sheet.
20000502	Another good interview! R was sharp and I didn't have to keep repeating the choices!	20000555 20000556
20000503	very cooperative and he spent a lot of time thinking abt his answers
20000504	no problems she was very nice and willing to answer all questions
20000505	Completed pci. R seemed interested in completing survey, gave a lot of thought to her answers and seemed to be open to speaking about her experiences.	20000558 20000559
20000506	survey went well, nice person
20000507	went well! declined to give address, relative, etc. but encouraged us to call again when we do the survey next	20000560 20000561 20000562
20000508	went very well, no problems at all
20000509	Good interview!
20000510	Asian person very difficult at times for me to understand her and for her to understand me!	20000563
20000512	R was very nice and cooperative. He misunderstood the birthday question. He is 27. He took "last" as year before. Went great.
20000513	went well	20000564 20000565 20000566 20000567 20000568 20000569
20000514	very pleasant lady. Called our 800# and set up a time. Is unhappy with her husband at this point as he does not want any children and she does-this is causing a major problem. She want you to know that the very last questions on marriage are to vague. Very good interview.
20000515	Though this isn't pertaining our study, this woman did indicate she doesn't "believe" in the census. Denial I suppose.
20000516	went very well
20000518	Interview went very well, r was leery about giving name and address (he didn't in the end) but really enjoyed doing the survey and said it interested him greatly. A nice guy who answered honestly.	20000571 20000572
20000519	very nice lady - they are having major changes in life now - business and trying to sell house - very stressful - jobs up and down = great interview
20000520	Super interview!	20000573 20000574
20000521	This was tough - kind of a different guy - kind of a male ego problem - survey was ok though - hard to understand sometimes - wouldn't give other relative info - only reason gave his was for $10
20000522	Very nice lady - great survey - didn't have to offer $'s to get her to do survey - I think the letter confirmed the validity of the survey	20000575
	respondent was so nice and I felt very sorry for her. She had cancer	20000576 surgery, went back to work and the mill closed. Ans. to her job are odd as she started 3 days ago. Unhappy w/it. Husband disabled and they depend on her job. Sad. Ref. conversion really nice guy-in the army, did not do the whole study with him but he was very nice and enjoyed talking with him.
	the interview took longer because R's husband was making distracting noises and comments in the back ground. otherwise it was a excellent honest interview.
	was a gem!
	was a delight to chat with. Had lived in Africa, and most recently England. She promised they were staying put in north carolina until the children went to college.
	R what a nice guy!
	R was a winner! Having received the letter, it peaked his curiosity... Turned out it was him, the youngest by a few months, we needed to chat with. A good sport to stay with interview entire time.
	tough situation - good interview - not comfortable identifying himself based on all the personal info he gave - not going anywhere should be able to reach on what info we have Another great refusal conversion! Really willing to share...
	very nice lady/husband is a recovering alcoholic/very good interview
	Great
	R gave good survey but refused to give full name and address great
	very well. She was getting a wee bit tired and refused to give me the name of her new daughter and her husband (in the beginning) but she was pleasant enough.
	went smoothly
	What a super guy to chat with... he was a little reluctant to continue... however, he got into the interview and is now looking forward to us contacting him in the future!
	very good interview. R was open about his situation, seemed to give good thought to his responses and seemed genuinely interested in survey. He did express concern that we not call back and do survey with his wife; I explained we would not. Also, not interested in being part of long term study.
	great out going lady and very happy -she is moving to south carolina, they have had enough of georgia. Marriage started going down hill about 3 years ago until her husband got a hold on what ever was bothering him!
	Good interview
	Female with a very southern accent. She and her husband have very little education and were married very young. Seem to have a very good marriage. They are probably what we would call very poor. Very nice lady, good sense of humor.
	went very well.
	What a delight to chat with... married to airforce person, on the move a lot... stay at home mom now..
	R. was very cooperative and honest, he was working on his car and stopped to complete interview. R. seemed to understand the importance of the study and helped.
	Lovely lady, moving through grief of losing both parents within the last two years... They had received the letter... interesting - he pretty much said wife's questions should be asked of wife so he refused to answer them - otherwise ok interview - kind of abrupt personality was a little reluctant to visit, however warmed up. At the end of the interview... she got a little cooler, and would not give income information, or address...
	went very well.
	went very well.
	went very well---refused specific income brackets on he & wife.
	Went good
	Great interview!
	went very well.
	Lovely lady whose family is on the move quite a bit... originally from ca, then co, now idaho!
	went very well.
	survey went very well even though he had 3 small children in the background and was ready to give them baths when I called. seemed like a very caring father.
	went very well.
	refused to answer any questions about her children or personal income for herself or husband. Good ci
	went very well.
	very good interview. the guy was really nice and cooperative
	R was very congenial. Had a great sense of humor. Very interested in future interviews.
	Wow! What a great lady! She was hesitant to spend time talking, but then after getting into it... people do like to talk about themselves... Great interview!
	went well
	He was very nice and honest
	Very wealthy family! R was very polite and is a new mother!
	very nice lady and survey went smoothly
	What a delight!
	went very well-she refused to answer the reason for what caused problems in her marriage---and she said she didn't want to give out her mailing address but said we could call her again next year if we wanted. he was very nice R was not happy with us! We kept calling him at times when he said not to call him! I apologized and told him we needed to be more careful!! In the end he liked what I had to say and we ended up doing the survey!!!!
	excellent ci no problems at all survey went well but r refused to give any other forwarding information, he would not give his last name either.
	He was very nice. He had the stereotypical old view of male and female roles. Very church orientated.
	very very nice.. no problems at all

20000577	What a super guy! Even looking forward to us contacting him in the future!!!	20000631	went very well.
20000578	would not give address information or name because she said that they just moved there and if we called them within the next twelve years, she would still be there because they're going to live there until the kids are grown up (at least)	20000632	minister and was very happy to do survey
20000579	Very difficult interview! English is not his strong language!	20000633	Son had to translate some so father could understand!
20000580	It took several attempts to get this survey completed with R! He was so demanding as to what time he could fit it into his hectic schedule!	20000634	Tim: nice young texan who received the letter, and loved to chat... He wanted to finish the interview, however, he was on his way to an appointment, and had me call his cell number at 1-218-744-8123. We completed, and he is looking forward to us calling him in the future. Interview went o:k!
20000581	very good interview. He seemed interested throughout entire survey and gave thoughtful responses. He was not interested in participating in long-range study.	20000635	R was a nice person to interview!
20000582	went well -- i enjoyed talking with her. a lot of the answers were dk's because her husband works at home and so a lot of things don't apply to them. she really thought about the questions, and the other ??s she didn't know about depended on the situation, etc. (just so you know i probed! :)	20000636	went very well, when we started the interview the resp. said that she only had five to ten minutes but she ended up completing the interview
20000583	Interview went well except for the yellow sheet!	20000637	male-very nice. He and his wife have twin girls. Good interview did receive the letter and was happy to do the survey. No problems.
20000584	very good interview, nice lady	20000638	Great to interview, had lots to share about his life's fortunes, and misfortunes.
20000585	Ok interview!	20000639	I am hoping that this guy will continue to speak freely as he did at this interview! He is very knowledgeable !!!!!!!!
20000587	was very nice. Couldn't remember some of the past things and didn't want to elaborate on some of the open ended questions. Interview went well. She found study very interesting.	20000641	interview went well, some questions john wasn't too sure about, however he answered them to the best of his ability
20000588	When it got to the end of the interview she said that we had her telephone number and didn't want to go any further with the survey! I told her thank you and she hung up!	20000642	went smoothly
20000589	Wonderful!	20000643	Very good interview. She was very nice.
20000590	good interview - very open to answer questions - wouldn't disclose anyone else's name and info.	20000644	R would give only fictitious names of children.overall a good interview. R would like the results of the survey.
20000591	Very well educated respondent! I think it is funny because at the beginning of the interview he wanted to be called by the first letter of his name which was p, and then at the end on the yellow sheet he gives his complete name & address! Strange!	20000645	went very well
20000593	great survey - 44 years old and 10 kids 18 to 1 week - 4 with 1st wife who is deceased and 6 with current wife - and possibly not done yet - neat family and relationship	20000646	very nice. He has been married three times, but he thinks marriage is for life. He's very religious. He is very nice, despite the contradictions. It seems like he was in some bad marriages before and he finally found the one.. i guess. No real problems with any questions
20000594	went very smoothly	20000647	The man was very nice, but I was on speaker phone the whole time and his wife was right there with him. He said it didn't influence his answers, though.
20000595	excellent ci although I had telephone problems	20000648	male very good humor/answered questions carefully./good interview
20000596	Good interview	20000649	was very reluctant to do this but did finally agree to do it. Was not friendly, not un-pleasant, but not friendly. This guy got 4$ out of us. Through a mis-understanding we sent him a second letter! Any way it is done.
20000597	A very good interview -- r was willing to answer all questions and didn't seem bothered by anything I asked him. Gave his name and address. went good, she was very cooperative.	20000650	very good interview. R was not interested at first, but once we started interview she seemed to really give a lot of thought to her answers. She mentioned that she is only working now b/c her son is going to college and she wants to get out of the house.
20000598	very nice, interested in the survey type person. Is a rn. worked most of the time of the marriage, and is very unhappy w/this marriage. Wants her freedom,left husband for a while & moved back. Requested info. on published journals ect. Very good survey with her.	20000651	Resp. is a pastor of a church. very nice man, and great interview. He wants us to send him a summary of the study findings.
20000599	very good interview. R gave thoughtful responses. She mentioned that when we asked if she'd ever had a problem in her marriage and she answered yes to some of the reasons - this was a long time ago, not now. Overall quality very good.	20000652	went smoothly
20000601	went smoothly	20000653	This guy was a jerk! He would give answers before I was hardly started reading the question! I'm not sure how valuable this survey will be!
20000602	went very well	20000654	would not give name and address..he seemed really nice and I think it would be wise to try to interview him again..because his marriage seems to be kind of rocky in the past year. But he didn't feel comfortable giving the info. He seemed very honest.
20000603	Went good, she was very cooperative.	20000655	went smoothly very nice person
20000604	went well, no problems	20000656	Went good
20000605	She was very nice and fun to talk to.	20000657	went well
20000606	very nice guy good survey	20000658	good interview
20000607	very good interview. woman was quite pleasant.	20000659	went smoothly but said we had her phone number and that she did not anticipate a move in next few years
20000608	A very good survey -- r was fine with answering all of the questions. She didn't want to give her name and address over the phone and said that we could take it from the letter we already mailed to her.	20000660	R's first question was "how long is the interview?" I told here it depends on how many questions are asked! We completed the interview! She would not give any information as to address, last name, zip code or any information on the yellow sheet! Hopefully, her telephone number is enough!!!!!!!
20000609	Excellent ci no problems	20000661	went well -- a few interruptions. funny guy, he joked a lot and was very patient with the whole thing as i had to call him back after accidentally coding it as a second line. i enjoyed talking w/ him.
20000610	went smoothly	20000662	The interview went well. She was just 19 and very willing to participate. I believe she enjoyed having an adult conversation.
20000611	This guy was a real jerk and I was warned with this with whoever started this survey that he was a tough cookie. He of course, refused, any income, financial or personal information. Sorry!	20000663	nice lady with a real georgia accent. Did not receive the letter or did not remember. Good interview
20000612	Great interview	20000664	very nice female. They own a nursing home together, but she does not know how much it is worth. She didn't want the survey to be this long, but she said she might as well get it over with -- very nice about it. Her father in law recently died, so i think it made the depression questions elevated.
20000613	She wouldn't give her name and address because we sent her a letter with her name and address on it and thought we should already have it. She was nice..but didn't really want to do the survey at all. Very interesting gentleman!	20000665	R was very nice. We had to repeat the questions and go slow because he is Puerto Rican. He did understand and respond appropriately to all the questions.
20000614	I apologized to R about the computer problems we were having last evening, he understood!	20000666	R had to rush to a dinner engagement and just sort of had to go immediately!
20000615	Very spiritual women! Her & her husband have 9 children, 2 children that are blood children and 7 adopted children that first started out as foster children! They have had their share of joys and tears with these children!	20000667	went smoothly
20000617	Good interview! He would like all of us to come out this winter and ski in colorado! He said all nebraskans are wealthy! Ha! Ha!	20000668	young couple. Said the questions aren't too friendly/easy to answer.. for college students. Asked for the results. Very nice female. She gave address but said they'd probably be moving. I got a relative's address, but she said we might not get the address because they come from a lawyer family.
20000618	Female r was a bit leery about answering questions at first but eventually became more at ease with the interview. Did not get her name/address, but overall it was a very good survey.	20000669	R informed me that we better do the survey tonight because that was our only chance to do it! It is complete!
20000620	Good interview	20000671	He was nice.
20000621	Was hesitant at first to complete the length, but she got into it and was fine!	20000672	good interview - very nice lady - no problems doing interview
20000622	very pleasant, cooperative	20000673	very good interview. R stated i feel like i know you after talking with you all this time
20000623	R was really helpful and very nice!	20000674	female respondent very personable. Married twice, first husband died. Problems in the 2nd marriage with her children and his not accepting them. Their own child has a fatal illness. Husband is retired but still working at a part time job. very good interview
20000624	Good interview. Very cooperative fellow.	20000675	A very good survey. R was very nice and willing to answer everything. Gave his name and address and e-mail of someone who'd know where he'd move to.
20000625	interview went well, she thought out her answers very well before she spoke.	20000676	Very difficult for her at times and myself also to understand each other, however I kept repeating the questions until she understood! She is an immigrant from Russia!
20000626	it took a while to complete because of callbacks but overall good interview - nice lady	20000677
20000627	the interview went well in fact i am surprised at how open and honest the respondent was consider the entire time we were doing the interview he was of the opinion that all the info. he was providing would later be sold to create lists and databases i tried to assure him that was not the case	20000678
20000628	Great interview.
20000629	excellent ci

20000679	What a southern delight!
20000680	sort of a snotty person. I felt that he didn't trust me to record his answers properly (he ask if he could have a copy of his ans.) had a need to justify a lot of ans. that he gave. Seemed rushed. He & his wife's 1st child was given up for adoption,not married at the time. Very religious	20000733	point, his wife picked up the phone and he told her to get off - he said he spoke freely though. Not sure if this affected quality of answers, though. R had a very bubbly personality and it was a delight to interview her!
20000681	nice lady, very perky and said she really enjoyed doing this. Doesn't seem to be any problems, interview went fine. She is a stay at home mom.	20000734	R had to leave at the end so I couldn't get anything but his full name!
20000682	very good interview.	20000735	R sure talked a lot!
20000684	Good interview	20000736	went smoothly
20000685	R was extremely tired from his job but he wanted to do his part in the work and family life survey!	20000737	went very well--please send $10.
20000686	young mother, pregnant with 3rd child. They seem to have a good relationship. Moving to tulsa ok. She works part time and he is still a student. Good interview.	20000738	Wonderful family!
20000687	Interview went o:k!	20000739	r was very helpful and at ease even though it sounded like she was cooking dinner while doing the interview
20000688	went well	20000740	He will be reluctant to do the survey again if it is as long as this one was. He was very nice, but he thought it needed to be cut in half. He was having problems in his marriage due to their differing schedules.
20000689	Good interview. She was really nice.	20000742	very pleasant and a good sense of humor. Family life is going fine. She does not work, by choice but home schools her son. Refused to give name and address but we should have it in the records as we sent her a letter and she did receive it.
20000690	She was very nice and cooperative.	20000743	female/knew from the get-go that she would be somewhat un-cooperative as she refused names. Answered questions rapidly/not real friendly. Husband is a pastor, she a teacher. with her rapid fire answers I doubt she gave any thought to the questions. refused full name and address
20000691	r was very forward had trouble deciding only with the section on opinions of divorce	20000745	language barrier was a slight issue, I did interpret a couple simple questions such as, financial = money, but if he did not understand more interpretive questions after a second reading I entered dk also he was not too sure that he would still be here (in us) in three years. He was a student.
20000692	a little troubled understanding him, but did his best	20000746	Interview went very well. R was a very intelligent young man. Wife was impatient with him yelling you have been on the phone long enough. He told her I said I would do the interview and will complete it!
20000693	went well-but he refused to answer any questions on religion and please note the reason for his last divorce was over religion-----also send $10. He was so nice I didn't even mind being here late to complete the survey.	20000747	She was very cooperative and fun to talk to.
20000694	Super guy!	20000748	went well
20000695	very nice female. Called in because she had not received the letter and had been on vacation last week so she had all of her mail in front of her and it wasn't in the mail. I called her back and everything was fine. Liked to joke around a little.	20000749	R was a really hard sell... she was extremely unwilling to part with any information... the data I collected from her is valid. That is, when I could get her to answer and participate, she was willing, just not any personal information was going to be shared by her.
20000697	went well	20000751	went smoothly -- a very nice person
20000698	Extremely good interview. She just gushed about her husband. Very nice woman.	20000752	good ci joe was very talkative
20000699	went well	20000753	This interview went well. R sounded like she had her hands full, but wanted to finish the interview anyway.
20000700	interview went very well. She is willing to be interviewed in the future.	20000754	She was very nice.
20000701	did not start the interview/she was very nice and loved to talk/put a lot of thought into the answers and probably read too much into them. No problems. Stay at home mother.	20000755	r was very helpful and at ease (i think working 5 weeks at the census helped her patience)
20000703	A good survey -- she was initially only going to give me a few minutes but ended up completing it. She answered everything but didn't feel comfortable giving her name or address.	20000756	refused to answer many questions because he said they were vague and misleading. he said he was going to talk to a supervisor before he would give his address to us. he received our 800 number
20000705	Very good interview. Patient woman and willing to be forthright.	20000758	went very well -- nice guy.
20000706	R was very nice and willing to do survey. She answered everything honestly and wasn't offended by anything I asked her. A good survey.	20000759	what a way to start the day off!!! respondent is having big time marriage problems. Left husband 3 times/she said he is very abusive. She seems to have some kind of support but just needs the courage to end the marriage for good. Excellent survey.
20000707	she would not give her name..she did not give her name or address either. She didn't give the value of their joint property either. She was very nice. Kind of quiet. She seemed to be kind of mellow. Kind of sad in a way. I had a strange felling that she was painting a rosier picture... Very upbeat person!	20000760	She was very nice
20000708	very nice lady - good survey	20000761	She was very nice.
20000709	went very well -- nice guy.	20000762	woman was very curious about the survey asked what it was for what was learned and seemed concerned about confidentiality such as her husband seeing the results, but seemed convinced at the end, even offered to use her job at the defence dept to locate and refer potential interviewers
20000710	She was very nice.	20000763	refused to give any info. about her 2 children, income questions, religion questions, or give zip code name or address. fair to good ci
20000711	The interview went good. She was very nice.	20000764	excellent but very rushed interview, some distractions I was lucky to complete it
20000712	O:k	20000766	R was very cautious about some questions, so there were a lot of questions he refused to answer!
20000713	R what a guy! Looking forward to sharing info in the future... a new parent... great answers!	20000767	went well -- very compliant!! gave all answers without hesitation
20000714	R was easy to talk to. His wife wanted to know what the questions were but he said that he was able to speak freely during the interview. Nice man.	20000768	went well
20000715	respondent has business in his home and was very busy. Had several interruptions. Very good interview, he seemed very honest. No problems very nice guy. Seemed very top on things. In the last three months, he just became self employed, which may kind of affect many of the questions. Actually, it sounded like he just started the job last week and was unemployed for the three months before then.	20000769	Very nice Hispanic lady with a lot of marital problems in their marriage!
20000716	Her husband had set the stage... she was cool, then warmed up, then cool at the end... nice lady to chat with. She gave the impression her husband had some previous job challenges, and that was why she was working...	20000771	What a nice guy to interview.. very cooperative!!!
20000717	Very intelligent person!	20000773	R seemed to be reluctant at first, however, once I answered his questions, he seemed comfortable, and I thought the interview went well!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
20000719	went very well	20000774	Female was very concerned about giving out a lot of information so no names were given and there were a lot of questions she refused to answer! Sorry!
20000720	He was very nice.	20000775	interview went well but wouldn't give her name to be recalled
20000721	went very well -- she was nice and fun to talk to. some of the answers she directly asked her husband for, mostly applying to his life, etc., so i just said "don't know" for those. otherwise great.	20000776	R was cooperative during the whole interview!
20000722	Wife apparently was afraid of her husband and had to be very quiet at times when giving answers so as not to have him get involved with the survey! She wanted to speak freely!	20000777	Good survey
20000723	Excellent survey, dawn would not give out information about her 2 children nor would she give out full address	20000778	went well, a very nice guy
20000724	went well, no problems and no issues	20000779	R was a great interviewer, he was very patient and honest with his answers. The interview went very well, more than expected.
20000725	went very well	20000780	rather difficult as far as interviewing her, she was very reserved. Seemed to flip-flop in her responses. I got the impression the marriage is not very stable,little things she said like "he" is very close to his fam. now,or "he" works so much. He doesn't want her work for pay. Survey is not uniform
20000726	The interview went well. R was very willing to talk and took time to answer thoughtfully. It was a pleasant interview with a nice man.	20000781	went well, but r seemed reserved. would not give income or any info about name/address, etc.

20000728	very good interview. R was thoughtful in his responses and took interview seriously.	20000783	R was a little bit dingy throughout the entire interview, she was always yawning and saying, "what did you say!"
20000729	went well, but refused to give out address	20000784	female/very perky/ interview went very quickly. Problems in the marriage years ago but they worked them out.
20000730	went well, this was a callback and the resp. initially seemed somewhat upset or at least concerned as to how we had her name but once i explained to her she was fine and the only ?'s she refused to answer were those of race	20000785	very pleasant respondent. Hard working family. Was a little hesitant at first and said that she might not want to finish, but she did and was a very good interview
20000731	Fairly good interview. R seemed a little wary at first, but agreed to do interview and seemed to give thought to some of his answers. At one	20000787	excellent interview. Completed pci. He seemed to take interview seriously, put a lot of thought behind his answers and was very interested in the study.
20000732		20000788	She was so nice! Great interview.

20000789	went smoothly but would not give last name		of her child, she was able to complete the entire interview. She is a very nice and honest person.
20000790	R had a speech impediment and it was very difficult at times to listen to make sure I understood his answer! I had to ask him on several occasions to repeat the answer please!	20000836	Wow R has been married five times and has had several bad situations in her marriages, but between death and divorces she has survived!
20000791	good interview - very nice lady	20000837	this was the most frustrating interview ive ever done,the respondent talked through out the survey, her husband was swearing in the background, she was extremely slow responding to questions, she gave a lot of dont know responses.
20000792	very good interview. nice lady		respondent refused to give out any names/I'm not real sure that she was exactly truthful with some of the information that she gave. This was a refusal conversion and she just never seemed real comfortable. Offered her the 800# and she said no.
20000793	went well -- very nice guy, i enjoyed talking w/ him and he said it was an interesting survey.	20000838	went smoothly
20000794	interview went very well. r was happy to answer questions, but was concerned about confidentiality. i assured her that everything was completely confidential and names would be deleted when analyzed. in reference to her oldest child's age, she first said 17, then later said 18, so 17 is entered.	20000839	She was very nice.
20000795	This interview went very well. R was polite and honest about her answers. At first, she thought UNL was trying to recruit her son.	20000840	went smoothly
20000797	Good interview!	20000842	went well, cooperative
20000798	Very nice lady, she was extremely tired from a hard days work, but she wanted to help out and complete the interview tonight, which at times, I thought she had fallen asleep, but she would always respond to the questions!	20000843	went well
20000799	very good interview. R was friendly,interested in interview and put a lot of thought into her answers.	20000844	went smoothly but reluctant in giving us her last name
20000800	Extremely good interview. She was so nice too!	20000845	went smoothly
20000801	r was very jovial and enjoyed answering the questions. he was hesitant about the money questions due to the mother of his kids (previous relationship) and confidentiality. he will be moving in 3 years, but his phone number will stay the same so we can contact him.	20000846	Very busy person-owner of 7 different businesses! With his hard work and dedication he has become financially wealthy!
20000802	husband answered and said that his wife understood English well enough to do a survey. She was very nice, they have one child and she is pregnant at this time. No problems and went very smooth. They are from san palo, brazil. Husband is working on his dr's degree.	20000847	I finished a pci, so I'm not sure how the beginning was, but from my half, r was very willing to do the survey and was thoughtful and honest. She was leary about giving name & address over the phone, but said we could call her again.
20000803	Great gent from the city of lights!	20000848	did not want to give out any financial information or any information about personal address or information, otherwise,(male) was comfortable with the interview!
20000804	pleasant/no problems	20000849	Very nice guy, he had his two daughters with him and he was patient and stuck with the interview
20000806	very good interview, nice lady	20000852	Really do not remember any of the previous interview and knew I wouldn't so left info. in the notes. Was pleasant enough and finished today.
20000807	went well, i just finished it up. he said he wants to see some kind of results from the study before he agrees to participate in the future. i gave him the website address and i would recommend we send him the list of journal articles, etc. (and then callback to get his personal info)	20000853	was very reluctant to start the interview but once he started he told me several times that he was really enjoying it that it was even like therapy. he was very interested in the study and took down a lot of info to make sure if we didn't find him, that he could find us
20000808	excellent ci no problems	20000854	She was from Malasia as is her husband. It was a good interview and I found it interesting that the cultural differences were not great. She is educated and bright and very easy to interview. Willing to do it in 3 years.
20000809	seemed a little rushed, but was honest with all answers as far as I could tell. Thought about questions before answering them.	20000855	Enjoyed doing the interview with! Marriage seems to be somewhat in question and he is very concerned about that!
20000811	good interview - just woke up but still went well	20000857	Very enjoyable person
20000812	went smoothly, very nice individual	20000858	R was difficult to reach, however, when I got him, he was cooperative, and pleasant to interview! Hesitant on talking to him in the future...
20000813	She had a hard time understanding me and had a lot of don't knows, but cooperated with me very well. There was a lot of words she didn't know so i had to use words that represented it so that she could understand the question. She was an Arabian.	20000859	Very young mother with 2 young children, somewhat, at times, frustrated with life!
20000814	last part of a pci went quickly but r is planning to move soon and was not willing to give a contact number, said that she would be listed in the phone book.	20000860	was very vocal about the problems she is having, has had in the past with her marriage! She is willing to give it her best and if things get worse she will have to divorce john!
20000815	was very hesitant to do this survey, but I suggested that we try a few questions and we ended up doing the entire survey!	20000861	Interview went very well. R had only been married for 1 month, but has been with wife for 6 years. The relative's contact info is his father. I got his name but the parents travel for job purposes (and live in an rv--but are happy!) that's why there is no other info.
20000816	Good interview!	20000862	went very well
20000817	Wow-this lady has big problems with her marriage. Said she will not be at this number much longer. Husband is an alcoholic, and does not contribute to the family in any way. He thinks every thing is fine and she sees it much differently. Children are suffering.	20000863	excellent ci but would not give her address
20000818	This is the interview where the daughter said that her father was the youngest, then mother took over,and she told me that she was a couple weeks younger than her husband. She ended up doing the interview like she should of in the beginning.	20000864	went fine. think her husband was in the background listening.
20000819	good ci R did refuse to answer why at one time he thought his marriage might be in trouble, I believe his wife was within hearing range at that point	20000865	excellent ci no problems
20000820	Interview went well. I finished the partial w/ him. R was interested in finding out about the study, so I gave him the 800 # and website address. He was very nice.	20000866	went well
20000821	refused any income questions, also, on the yellow sheet, she only wanted to give her permanent address, not where they are living know, so in 3-5 years , we could reach her.	20000867	went well-although she did not answer any income questions or want to give mailing address.
20000822	did not give any information about income and also at the end he did not want to give us any of that information. It is ok for us to contact him in 3-5 years to update whatever part or all of the survey, if needed.	20000868	at times, tried to read more into the question than what was being asked so I told her just to think about the question they were asking, otherwise it would of took 5 hours to complete this survey!

20000825	R was not impatient but he was answering all the questions very efficiently and said that calling in the future was not a problem	20000871	excellent interview! She did work with personal interviews for her master's degree so she was very cooperative and interested in the survey.
20000826	went very well	20000872	I did not think r was going to participate--she sounded sleepy or grouchy. r was quite willing to participate in the study. The reason the relative-contact info is missing the address is because r could not think of it off-hand.
20000827	She was very very nice and never hesitated on a question. She did a research project on this topic so she would like the results when we are finished with them.	20000873	went very well

20000830	R was hesitant about the time involved, she had been cleaning, but then got into the interview, and was fine. She took the 800 number, and wondered what we would do with the answers. She did give us name, address.	20000876	r did not seem too thrilled to be doing the interview, but was nice. at the end, he did not want to give us his phone number, nor the phone number of his mother (he said it was private and that she was an elderly woman).

R is a nice lady.

20001004	Interview went well. R was very receptive and was very pleasant.	20001051	kind of slow going at times-I wonder if I just woke him up-he was very cooperative-no probs
20001005	Good interview. He was very nice.	20001052	very good interview. R was reluctant at first but was very interested in this type survey as we got into it and she understood the value of it
20001006	went well	20001053	I thought she would only do a few minutes, but I think she got interested and we completed in one call-went well!
20001007	Excellent ci no problems at all, R declined to give any info in regards to someone who would always know where she was.	20001054	This lady came over from Romania with husband, and four children. She did not want to answer about the children's names/ages, because it was too difficult to remember. They have 12, 6 are still living at home. Her 19 year old is giving her trouble, obeying rules, etc. really warmed up to me very nice. Wouldn't give the amount of their investments. I have an idea that it is a lot. (she just bought a new home last week and their current home is 600k and they also own a car dealership.)
20001008	Sweet woman!	20001056	R was interesting and gave a thoughtful interview. She is willing to follow up with a second interview. Not willing to give a second reference or husbands first name. Address and phone# are for the home they are now building and will soon move into. The # on survey will soon be disconnected
20001009	R was a military wife they have moved 9 times in 9 years. She was not comfortable giving us an address due to the high profile of her husbands military job. He is a commander. Good interview.	20001057	went very well.
20001010	R was very cooperative, humorous, gave honest answers without hesitation	20001058	R was excellent, chatted between questions and was ok with the time it took to do the study
20001011	was very cooperative, humorous, gave honest answers without hesitation	20001059	Very cooperative in the last 2/3s that I did (220). Did not want to give us his name however.
20001012	nice guy-no problems	20001060	Interview went well. R wouldn't give us relative contact info. I guaranteed person wouldn't be interviewed, etc. but she still declined. I tried to persuade her. She was also worried about us having her address since she gave us so much personal information. I reassured her and got the address.
20001013	I had to convinced tom that this was a good thing to do in completing this interview! Of course, when, we were done, he was thanking me for calling him! It made me fill good!	20001061	Once we established who the respondent actually was, R was able to do the interview!
20001014	I'm just happy that I was able to complete an interview again. It has been about close to 2 weeks now since I haven't been able to get an interview.	20001062	went ok. he refused to give out last name, address, and relatives information. After we finished the survey he said he is not interested in doing this survey again, and that's why he didn't give out the above information.
20001015	This lady, was very nice and she was honest in giving her answers. She was also funny.	20001063	R was a bit leery about doing the survey in the beginning, but eventually became comfortable w/ answering the questions. Gave his name & address and requested a summary of the findings.
20001016	went well	20001064	Interview went well. I apologize if the job descriptions are jumbled! The r did not want to give us her phone #, but I got it off the computer. She was also reluctant to give us relative's contact info, but I convinced her to do so.
20001017	very honest and thoughtful about her answers. gave all info willingly except for someone who would know where she lived	20001065	What a delight to chat with... having challenges in marriage, and very, very willing to share. Very consistent in her answers.
20001018	the interview went really well, the resp. was incredibly upbeat+energetic however @ the end of the survey when i asked if she had been able to speak freely, she hesitated+basically didn't want to answer so i indicated 'no' b/c her husband had been around+from her responses he sounds like a worthless pile	20001066	very thoughtful answers, willingly given!
20001019	Very nice female. She is blind, but said it is not a permanent restriction on her ability to do anything because she has always been blind and she was taught she could do anything. Very positive female with a sense of sadness underneath.. can't really explain.	20001067	I was in on the tail end of this survey so it was really hard to get into it cold turkey, and I didn't have enough time to get a feel for the respondent. From what little bit I know, the marriage has a lot of problems.
20001020	good interview with male-went very quickly, friendly and pleasant. Every thing is just great with this guy and he's happy as a clam!	20001068	excellent ci no problems at all
20001021	went well	20001069	Interview went well. R does not like ex-husband--deadbeat dad! R did not give contact info b/c 2 closest friends had unpublished #'s. I couldn't persuade her for names or addresses either. R had no relatives she wanted to give info for (not close w/ them).
20001022	nice interview-sense of humor	20001070	Went very well. He said his wife's religious preference. He does not have a religious preference. They did not sound like they were educated at all. He was very nice..but I had to talk him into doing the survey.
20001024	R is a medical doctor and was and is very interested in the results of this survey. She is going to watch for survey results in the journals and magazines she gets in the mail!	20001071	went well -- he thought he'd have to go after about 15 minutes, but we managed to get the whole thing done. nice man.
20001025	thoughtful with answers, honest and humorous	20001072	Male.went ok sometimes it was difficult to follow his thoughts and I'd have to get him back on track. He had a mouth on him . seems that he and his are just back together after a long separation. They had a bad problem with alcohol and the law. He did not elaborate on this.
20001026	excellent ci, R would like to have information sent to her when the survey is completed	20001073	went very well, she really liked the survey. And she would like us to send her the survey on a disc for herself.
20001027	went well	20001074	I liked this interview. This lady was very helpful in completing the interview. Her daughter was also a great help too. Overall, I enjoyed this interview.
20001028	very good interview. R seemed interested & gave thought to her responses throughout entire survey. Note: she said she is not working, but identified her work status as an in-home day care provider. She answered ? about her main occupation for work she used to do outside of the home.	20001075	She was very nice, but it took awhile.
20001029	R has such a bad marriage that he didn't want to give out information for fear that we may attempt to contact him or his wife! I said we would not ever do that, but he still didn't want to give out much personal information.	20001076	Interview went well, but he sounded rather disinterested. He mentioned that he didn't "understand these questions" (right around the q's about opinions of divorce). He said he didn't feel comfortable giving other's contact info. I tried to convince him, but he would not be persuaded.
20001030	Very well. in kind of a hurry. I almost think she was really the youngest and her husband was the oldest because she said.. oops I gave my husbands age.. and then she did the same thing (kind of) with the age of herself during her first marriage (changed it before got to husband). I don't know??	20001077	nice guy, but oh, boy what a talker, I had a time getting him to give me a response. I had to ask him several times do you strongly agree, agree, yadda, yadda, etc'interview took longer than necessary, but at least I got it.
20001031	no problems!	20001078	went smoothly very busy with work and family, nice lady
20001032	I wasn't sure if they would be home, but they were. R was a great help to completing this interview. It went well, considering it was only a few minutes.	20001079	Finished pci. R said that for portion I finished, she spoke freely. But, previously was concerned b/c her husband was getting upset. Note: on cs110e, she said "positive" b/c they're at a place where she doesn't have to work & this is what they wanted.
20001033	excellent interview. She was interested in survey, gave thoughtful responses and wants to participate in long range study.	20001080	seemed a little rushed, but he thought about all of the questions before answering them. Was a little surprised at some of the questions, but answered them the best he could.
20001034	pleasant interview - she want a list of publications. willing to do follow-up interview	20001081	great
20001035	very good interview, nice lady	20001082	excellent ci no problems other than ken could not understand the wife "ought not to work " question
20001036	R was hesitant about the interview, but I reassured her that we can finish the interview another time if something else comes up. She did have someone else call her twice, but she did return to the interview. She was a dedicated participant, considering she had young children in the house.	20001083	the resp. was almost impossible to understand b/c his English (admittedly) was not very good and Vietnamese was his first language and he spoke very softly
20001037	R was really nice and willing to do interview. I think he kind of enjoyed doing the survey and was honest with all of his answers. He gave his name and address. A great survey!	20001084	Hispanic respondent, but once I explained the survey to him he was willing to help out good interview
20001038	went well	20001085	He was a really nice easy going guy who seemed genuinely interested in the survey and it's results. He was intelligent and I think he enjoyed giving his opinions about the study subject.

20001046	Interview went very well. R was very willing to participate. He did not give me any relative's (or friend's) contact information b/c he said all the people he knows-including both sets of parents-move more than he does. He said he was easy to find; we can find him in the nat'l registry
20001047	went smoothly, very nice person
20001048	Very good interview. He was nice and pleasant.

20001089	only refused specific problem in her current marriage and would not give out her personal information but she was interested in our study and requested the 800 # and website address.	20001146	wasn't offended by any questions and gave her name and address. Took several attempts before this survey was finally completed. He was afraid to give information out about income, and information on the yellow sheet.
20001090	She was very difficult to interview. For a lot of the questions she refused to answer because she didn't think she could commit to the responses we offered. She said the interview was stupid, but she did it so we would stop calling.	20001147 20001148	He was very nice and cooperative was difficult lots of questions wouldn't answer, very guarded wouldn't loosen up gave her 800 no to check, sd she had recd ltr, wouldn't give full name

20001098	The interview went good. She was easy to talk to.	20001165	At first she didn't want to finish, but then once her husband left, she was fine. It was a good interview.

20001101	Fair interview. R was not a native English speaker, I asked at the beginning if she would be more comfortable having someone who speaks Spanish call & she said no, she understands English, but might have to ask me to repeat ?. R was pleasant, interested and enthusiastic about survey. He loved the $2 bill! rview. He concentrated and stayed focused although we did get disconnected at one time. He incorrectly gave me the city name instead of county name
 20001554 excellent ci no problems, very cooperative
 20001555 I finished up the last 5-10 minutes of a pci. R seemed concerned w/ confidentiality & I gave him as much info as I could w/ what happens to the data after it's collected. He requested the 800 #, just as one more way of checking to see that we're legitimate.
 20001556 very nice lady. She and her husband are celebrating their anniversary today and she thought this was a great time to review the marriage so to speak. No problems. They would both like to go back to school and get teaching degrees.
 20001558 it was very long and she had a comment about every answer she gave but she was very pleasant and is willing to do it again in the future.
 20001559 excellent ci no problems
 20001560 Very good interview. She was quite pleasant.
 20001561 excellent ci no problems whatsoever
 20001562 R was interested and stayed focused on the interview questions. He was extremely pleasant and is willing to do a follow up interview. He did not feel comfortable giving a 2nd reference.
 20001563 excellent ci. R liked to talk an awful lot, but he was very articulate and cooperative and in general, a pleasure to survey 20001564 very guarded but got better as interview went on
 20001566 went very well.
 20001567 she took her time to answer all questions honestly
 20001568 Went fine, but she just wants us to contact her through phone and gave no other info.
 20001569 went very well
 20001570 it went great
 20001571 R was a polite guy, he enjoyed the study and said he was happy we did call him..
 20001572 went very well, and did not want to give out relative's info cause he doesn't see himself moving in 3 years
 20001573 she was really pleasant and fun to talk to. She seemed to get into the questions and really think about her answers.
 20001574 Went great
 20001575 excellent ci no problems great guy to interview
 20001576 Very receptive to doing survey. As she is disabled, it will be best to try to contact her in daytime for the update in 3 or so years. (She gave us her address, name, etc.)
 20001577 It went good, she was very nice
 20001579 R seemed to be a very open person. He answered all the questions very thoroughly. R was quite the talker.
 20001580 went very well
 20001581 She was hurried a little, and her little boy started yelling toward the end about how he wasn't dirty and didn't need a bath. It made the interview a little difficult, but still went pretty well.
 20001582 excellent ci, no problems R was fun to interview and very cooperative and quick to respond. A real pleasure to survey.
 20001583 Interview went very smoothly. She was very cooperative and friendly.
 20001584 no problems at all!
 20001586 Overall quality very good. A few problems - had to call r back b/c I had to check something in computer. Then, library alarm sounded for quite a while, r was not bothered by this though & wanted to continue. Do not think either of these things affected overall quality.
 20001587 went very well, He refused relative's info
 20001588 excellent very honest ci R was very open about a serious problem in her family. she was very cooperative and brave. she had a lot of intensional fortitude and I admired her very much. A very decent, good person.
 20001589 went well, refused last name and relative's info
 20001590 Great interview.
 20001591 went very well
 20001592 Very good interview. He answered each question thoughtfully, even while changing diapers and minding his children.
 20001593 no trouble very friendly
 20001594 whew! Aggravating! She wouldn't wait for me to finish the question before she answered, seemed overly impatient. But was very friendly, and I think she was trying to be honest with her answers.
 20001595 went ok woudnt do until i sd we could pay, i sd $2 he sd wouldn't do UNLess for $10 so i sd we would sd $10, seemed like he had a huge ego.
 20001596 excellent ci, R was very helpful. Note , when I came to the questions on child behavior, they had (his wife) named as the child. i backed all the way up and they're listed in they're proper category
 20001597 went well, there were some don't know answers for some questions. He didn't give out relative's info because they just moved there, and didn't know any body there.
 20001598 Great interview. R was hilarious. The only concern that I have is that he kept asking his wife questions about her instead of telling me what he knew about the question.
 20001599 went very well
 20001601 R was a great lady to chat with, she said she liked doing and happy to contribute to the study
 20001602 nice lady answers questions quickly and to the point. Pleasant thru out the interview. No problems and nothing special about this one 20001603 respondent was somewhat hesitant at first. Has in-home day care so we had many interruptions. Some questions were a bit hard for her to understand-several I finally had to take a dk. She did become friendly tho. Seem to have some money problems. one child at home and two gone.
 20001604 interview went great
 20001605 Excellent ci, r gave a great interview. she was a very nice people
 20001606 no problems
 20001607 r was very pleasant and willing to answer questions.
 20001608 R is a young mother and a student. Living in a area that she is not real happy being in. Husband likes it and she doesn't. She is very sweet and pleased to be a part of the study
 20001609 excellent ci but r would not give any info on her address
 20001610 Interview went well, even though I had to repeat a lot of stuff for him. He was interested in our research and wants the results sent to him. He was a nice man.
 20001611 excellent ci no problems

20001615 bic accent, he has also requested the results of the study
He was extremely talkative and kept answering me to answer questions myself. Wouldn't let me get off phone. He was friendly though.

20001616 excellent survey, r refused to give address but he had received letter and money

20001617 excellent ci no problems

20001618 went very well, she refused to give out her kids name, and how much her and husband made in 1999, and relative's info

20001619 nice guy, very pleasant to talk too.

20001620 Very good interview. She was very nice.

20001621 Interview went pretty smooth. He never received letter, so he didn't feel comfortable giving out his really personal info. His wife didn't want him to tell us her age.

20001623 r did not feel comfortable giving personal info for follow-up said his # is UNListed wasn't pleased it is obtainable by random selection..said he gets that a lot and wonders why he pays for UNListed #

20001624 Interview went very smoothly. He was a nice man, but didn't like the last questions generally speaking about marriage.

20001625 R was fine with doing the survey - he had no reservations. He gave his name & mailing address for future contact.

20001626 Good interview. She really liked that we sent out the letters before we called. She said she would not have answered the survey otherwise.

20001627 very honest with her answers, but she wouldn't say "my husband" in response to the "domineering, moody", etc. questions, would only say "the other". So he might have been hanging around, I don't know.

20001628 r was very interesting to interview..she is willing to do a follow up survey and gave 2nd reference.

20001629 She was a very funny lady. It was fun talking w/ her. Interview went very well. She never received letter.

20001630 seemed very honest, but would not give out and $$ info, and was not comfortable giving us her name/address

20001631 She was extremely nice and fun. Good interview.

20001632 She was a very friendly and cooperative woman. Another really good interview. It's great to know that I make people feel better and they feel at ease to talk to me.

20001633 Wants results of study/very cooperative/doesn't think we touched on respect enough in survey/did give me full address

20001635 She originally said she'd give me 5 minutes but she finished it. Amazingly enough she tried to refuse when I first called because she said she didn't accept unidentified numbers but I talk her into it. I think the letter helped.

20001636 went well

20001637 Great interview.

20001638 No problems

20001639 it went very smooooth.

20001640 good ci. r was rather hard to understand and I had to repeat questions several times

20001641 r was fun lady and she enjoyed the study..

20001642 excellent ci no problems at all. r was very cooperative

20001643 went very well

20001644 went well, very nice, pleasant sd just moved

20001646 She was very pleasant and wanted to finish up the survey. she seemed interested in our research and was extremely helpful.

20001647 went well will call 800 no and give address

20001648 r from phoenix was a blast to talk with married twice, and had children stories...

20001649 She was one of the most enjoyable interviews I've had. She was cooperative, friendly, and honest.

20001650 she was really nice and seemed well educated. She was open and honest about her opinions and tried to explain her point of view and gave reasons why she responded the way she did.

20001651 Went very well

20001652 Very poor ci steve refused most questions an gave a extreme amount of dont know answers.

20001653 went well

20001654 r gave a good ci he refused to answer a few questions and would not give his address. He did however receive the letter and 2 dollars so you should be able to get his address anyway

20001656 very nice kid - interview went well

20001657 very good interview

20001658 The woman was reluctant to start but seemed very honest and enjoyed talking about the questions. Commented several times about her dislike for her step-children.

20001659 r was not happy that I pressed the issue of finishing this survey, I told him that the partial interview was of no value to us as it stood, I sort of made him feel guilty and he completed it with me

20001660 Very pleasant and cooperative for the last five minutes of the interview that I did (220)

20001661 very honest, sweet lady. Just had open-heart surgery and is still recovering, seems a little depressed about that, which I can understand!

20001662 Interview went ok, but I don't enjoy talking w/ battered women. It really ruins my day, b/c I wanna say something, but I can't and it isn't cool. I feel so bad knowing this personal info and not being able to do anything about it.

20001663 r is so very happy with her marriage and was very pleased to be part of the study..fun time chatting with her..

20001664 Good interview. She didn't give me the address info though.

20001665 very good interview

20001666 Very nice - only concerned about speaking freely on one part or one question of the interview - would like results of study

20001668 r said interview stimulated her evening..she said she hopes her info helps others in their marriage decisions

20001669 Data change -- the child is 6 weeks not 6 years as was entered. The wife also hasn't been working for 6 weeks not 6 months. Otherwise everything was entered accurately. Guy was very nice -- sorry about the errors in data entry.

20001670 r was sweet and very pleasant to interview. She gave personal info and references and is willing to do follow up survey. Husband is also in national guards. The legal assistant is her first job in the marriage.

honest about other aspects of her life and marriage.

20001673 slowly, she asked me to repeat a lot of questions, she has a strong Spanish accent. She has grandchildren who live with her, when I put in the childrens ages no oldest age of child came up( I think its because she has a daughter over 19). Also I accidentally coded a female child as a male.

20001675 r was very willing to give information but his wife is terrified of someone taking information and using it against them or to steal a child...so no update or references are available to us.

20001676 went well, the resp. was very honest and thought all the questions through before simply answering but also seemed to be the type of person that liked to laugh b/c he evidently found a # of our questions rather amusing

20001677 Called and left message on the am and she returned our call they did rec. the letter. Very pleasant. Second marriage for her/no children and she does not want any.

20001678 It went very well. He did misunderstand some questions but we went back and fixed them. He did not feel comfortable to give out his address.

20001679 R was very nice and gave a very sincere interview...willing to do follow up and gave references just married 3 months so will be an interesting couple to follow

20001681 just great

20001682 went well

20001683 She was concerned about her husband being on the road all the time and he wasn't home enough with the children so she took that into consideration when answering some of the questions. Or said some of the answers would be different if he were home more.

20001684 R was very nice to interview. Willing to be interviewed again but did not give references said her kids are in college and parents elderly did not want to involve non family

20001685 She had twins, that died at birth. I tried to skip the children questions that came up. She enjoyed the interview, and wants to be called in the future!!

20001686 Respondent was not pleasant and upset that she had given over 1/2 hour she said to the previous interviewer, ok she would finish but she was very defensive and took immediate offence to a lot of questions. answered too quickly. Refused name & address. Was difficult to deal with.

20001687 The question about child - should have been xxx - not her husband - I must have coded something wrong.

20001689 very nice guy. Had no problems with the interview. went well. He and his wife (i think) are students at the uni. of Chicago. Been a few weeks since I started with this so details are a bit fuzzy. Have one child. Good interview

20001692 excellent ci no problems. r was very nice and cooperative

20001694 excellent ci no problems

20001695 went well, but it was rather depressing

20001697 she did not want to give her name and address or a contact

20001698 R was a very nice guy who had no problem doing the survey. I could hear his wife in the background wondering aloud what his answers meant, but he said it didn't cause him concern. He gave his name & address, and mentioned that the area code will be changing very shortly. A good survey.

20001699 he thought that the questions were written poorly, and analyzed each one

20001700 went smoothly, very nice person

20001701 He was very nice, it went well.

20001702 He was very nice.

20001703 R cooperative, r had a couple of phone interruptions, overall interview went well

20001704 Nice lady-she started by saying wellll you finally got it right, I've been telling them to call me mornings and I might do it. She was very cooperative and a funny lady. Good interview 20001705 Interview went very well. He is a fellow coloradoan, so he was pretty cool.

20001706 He was really nice and the survey went good.

20001707 the interview went very well/he was a very nice and cooperative man

20001708 Very pleasant and patient but she did not want to give her name and address, etc.

20001709 went very well

20001710 went nice man went well

20001711 seemed a bit impatient near the end but overall very cooperative. Had two kids he was watching.

20001712 everything was fine. he seemed to be getting a little tired towards the end.

20001713 interview went well, r seemed to be hesitant to answer some of the questions

20001714 Male-very hesitant but said that he would go ahead with it- seemed to enjoy it as we went along, said that he suddenly realized a few things about himself. Good interview and was very open.

20001715 He was concerned about who was around, but he was very nice.

20001716 She was great, really enjoyed the survey, and can't wait for the next survey three years from now.

20001717 pleasant man cooperative

20001718 r was not happy about doing the survey but gave each question a lot of consideration. Was very deliberate.

20001719 He was cooperative. He was interested in the results.

20001720 At the very beginning, he was reluctant to spend too much time on the phone, but after we started to go through the questions for awhile he seemed to want to keep going. He was interrupted several times during the first fifteen minutes of the interview. He needed questions to be repeated quite freq

20001721 She was very nice and also very cooperative

20001722 Very patient. Seemed to enjoy the interview.

20001723 Interview went really well. At first, she didn't want to answer any personal questions, but then she only refused one. That was pretty cool

20001724 r was great lady..she was pleased to be part of the study..as her second marriage and she has no idea how unhappy she was in her first marriage, until spouse divorced her..

20001726 The interview went well. R seemed very enthusiastic about the interview.

20001727 r was very cautious in answering all questions..most questions I did read two times and many I read three times..she did major thought process on each one..

20001728 wasn't comfortable giving out name and address

R had lots of distractions, and refused to give her address
20001731 Would be willing to be interviewed in 3 years if he was still in his apt, but he hoped to be moved. Would not give name, let alone address.
20001732 good interview--interested in being part of the long term study. Call her in 3 years....she'll love to talk again.
20001734 everything was fine. had some trouble deciding answers for some questions
20001735 She was very nice. There were a lot of noisy kids in the background.
20001736 was a excellent interview, I had some minor problems getting r to listen to the whole statements without interrupting. Nice lady 20001737 r was really nice and friendly. He seemed to get more into the interview as we went along. He offered his opinions freely and spoke openly about problems in his marriage.
20001738 There were a lot of cultural/language problems here. His wife was away at school, but as I spoke to him farther, I'm not sure if she is ever coming back.
20001739 went well
20001740 The interview went very smooth. She was a nice lady 20001741 He was very hurried, so he was cooperative, but kinda annoyed.
20001742 The respondent had not received the letter but was extremely nice and seemed to enjoy the interview. Discovered at the end that she has only had 4 kids of her own but counted 6 because she has 2 stepkids from 2nd marriage. Please adjust this on the question that deals with number of children.
20001743 Nice guy, very friendly and helpful. Second marriage for both he and his wife. Some problems with alcohol I gathered as we were talking but apparently that has been taken care of. He quit his job a few months and is not looking for something else to do, not in any hurry tho.
20001744 went well, refused relative's info, and she would like us to mail her the results of the survey
20001745 no trouble
20001746 Excellent ci no problems
20001747 It went great!
20001748 he was very, very talkative. he seemed to want to explain every answer throughly. he thinks we should have more "middle of the road answers" especially between agree and disagree. other than that everything was fine.
20001749 went very well
20001750 Great interview. Unfortunately, there was a very rude female (daughter?) who wanted to use the phone. She was yelling at him (often swearing), but r went ahead and finished the survey. r was a great guy.
20001751 I completed this interview. It only lasted about five minutes. That portion went well, but I do not have any information about how the majority of the survey went. He seemed very confident he spoke freely during the interview.
20001752 She was very nice and easy to talk to.
20001753 R was not too enthused but completed the survey. He gave his name and address for future contact.
20001754 The woman was extremely nice and excited to do the survey. Very honest and open with information. At the end thanked me for calling and said her children loved the $2 bill.
20001755 excelent ci no problems
20001756 she was happy to finish it up quickly-real nice lady-went well
20001757 The woman had trouble answering a lot of the questions because she thought there needed to be more middle answers. She was distracted at times by her husband and children but seemed to enjoy the survey.
20001758 fine, a little distracted at end
20001759 good , but a child was screaming at the top of his lungs, and resp. was in a hurry to finish.
20001760 It went well. I think she was getting a bit tired. At the end she said "i can spend my $2 bill now"
20001761 She was very nice and easy to talk to.
20001763 r gave a excellent ci/ no problems
20001764 Interview went well. She was very cooperative and honest.
20001766 interview went well. wouldn't give out any childrens names, age etc didn't think childrens info should be told 20001767 excellent ci except the phone kept cutting out
20001768 went very well
20001769 no trouble was actually very intrigued and thought the interview was pretty interesting 20001770 Interview went pretty smooth. I'm not sure how exactly into the survey he was, but he was honest and friendly.
20001771 went smoothly
20001772 it went slowly at times because he was very soft spoken and I had trouble hearing him, also he had to pause a couple of times and I could hear him talking to others (possibly wife or children)
20001773 Great interview.
20001774 r was a fun guy. He enjoyed the study and he was interested in the questions..
20001775 She is hoping to hear from us again... She really thought about her answers..good interview
20001776 r gave a excellent ci , she was a pleasure to survey
20001777 good ci, I had to repeat some questions and responses, there were also some background noises, and 3 times r yelled at her husband to find out his mothers highest education level.
20001778 went well but would not give address or references
20001779 Went well!!!
20001780 Great interview. Whoever called his home before typed in the wrong name.
20001781 great, nice guy
20001782 she had asked her daughter to leave at the beginning so she could have privacy during the interview--so she could speak freely. she may have been getting a little tired of answering the questions, but everyone once in a while she would chat a little.
20001783 went well
20001784 interview went well. r took a long time to think about and answer each question. he did not want to give out relative's (or friend's) contact info, but I did get a first name and phone # of a relative out of him. r was very

20001789 tient and nice to talk with
 R was very nice and had no problems doing the survey. He was honest w/ his answers and volunteered his name & address as well as a contact name & phone number. A good interview.

20001790 went very well--did not give specific income levels for him & wife, otherwise went very well.--please send info on study to him.

20001791 She was a little cautious at the beginning because she didn't give her child's names, just initials, but after awhile she became more comfortable.

20001792 Very good interview.

20001793 Was very nice and cooperative.

20001794 was watching his baby, so it got kinda loud, but he was very attentive and asked lots of clarification questions to make sure he understood. Seems depressed; marriage is falling apart. Wanted to make sure his wife does not hear about what we talked about, I assured him she wouldn't hear any details.

20001795 the respondent was very nice. Answered every question and gave it a lot of thought. Didn't seem in a hurry to finish and gave a lot of background info. Excellent interview.

20001797 Survey went well. It seems r put thought into all the questions I asked him.

20001798 good ci, r was rather hard to understand due to her heavy Asian accent, but she did grasp and understand all the questions, it just took some patience on my part

20001800 Survey went well. No problems

20001801 Went great considering it was a refusal

20001802 interview went ok, considering that respondent initially said she didn't want to be on phone for over 40 minutes, she was very patient with me and actually thanked me at the end of the interview, she had to guess on some answers regarding her father and father-in law as they are deceased

20001803 went very well

20001804 went very well.

20001805 went very well--refused to give husband's income bracket--and the questions on sexual satisfaction with husband.

20001806 Jim was very nice and willing to do the survey. One problem -- identified xxx as his child but later in the interview referred to step-child. When I asked for clarification, he said that xxx was not his but he was responsible for him. Please correct that in survey.

20001807 i think his wife was in the room during survey. he was reluctant to give out any information about himself or relatives to help us locate him later. everything else went fine

20001808 went very well--but he didn't want to give out his last name and mailing address.

20001809 good survey - nice lady

20001810 She was very nice and the survey went smooth.

20001812 Was very nice and helpful.

20001813 went very well, cooperative

20001814 was reluctant to answer some questions. he was very hurried and if i tried to explain something he would cut me off and say next question. got nicer toward the end.

20001816 very nice man - great interview

20001817 very nice lady just not comfortable giving names and addresses - said she probably wouldn't be there in a year or two and wouldn't give any one else's info either

20001818 r was distracted at the beginning but within 5 minutes her son had left and she was focused on the survey. Very nice and seemed to be honest with her answers. She hesitated for a long time before answering "have you received money from public assistance programs but I didn't question her answer.

20001819 She gave very thoughtful answers, but towards the end, she was answering a lot faster. She was 'not allowed' to give her name and address.

20001820 interview went well - he would not give a third party name out. On the questions about the oldest child, those were answered in reference to his oldest son

20001821 went smoothly, very nice person

20001822 went pretty smoothly, didn't have any problems

20001823 Very enjoyable. Really patient and a positive outlook. Therefore, she answered the all the questions 20001824 r was a great lady to chat with..she was very interested in the study and enjoyed the study..

20001825 went well

20001826 excellent ci r refused to give his name or address

20001827 Respondent was very nice and willing to do the survey. Some confusion about the children within the marriage question. She was 19 when she had her first child w/ her boyfriend who would become her husband but she was not married yet. She still considers to have had 2 children within the marriage.

20001828 She was the nicest person I have talked to yet. The interview went great.

20001830 It was a very smooth interview. At first, she didn't seem to want to do it, but then she thought it was fun and finished it all.

20001831 no problems

20001832 Interview went very smooth. She works @ penn state, so she was really curious about the study. She also wants the results. She was a very friendly lady.

20001833 didn't really want to give out any information on maiden name, address and such. I got what I could.

20001834 I wish I could've gotten a relative, b/c she'll be divorced within the year judging by her answers. She gave me a work address b/c she's afraid that her husband will see it.

20001835 r gave a great ci. He had a bad cold, but was generally very interested in the survey. He was one of the nicest people ive ever interviewed. He answered all questions quickly and always answered with the standard responses. Very pleasant and intelligent man.

20001836 very good information

20001837 Great interview.

20001838 r was very interested in the study and she hopes it shows that the value of family is losing ground and we need to work less and enjoy our families very comfortable giving us her name/address, and would not give a reference.

20001840 She was very nice and seemed to answer the questions to the best of her knowledge. She was intelligent and was a good interview.

20001841 went very well.

20001842 Was nice and helpful

20001843 Good interview

20001845 R was very nice. He got a little jokey toward the end, but I think he took the questions seriously. His wife entered the house toward the end, but it didn't negatively impact his ability to answer. The reason his health was not good was because he just had a vasectomy today (a little sidenote). excellent ci no problems. r was very cooperative 20001846 this was a excellent ci. r was very cooperative and nice.

20001847 R was very friendly and polite. He often needed the questions repeated, sometimes even 4 times, but I could tell from his responses that he usually did understand the question. Just a few answers seemed to contradict others. He could not remember people's ages or years in school very well.

20001850 Went very well--she did however refuse to give specific income brackets for her and husbands income--otherwise she answered all the questions.

20001851 went very well-thought she could only do about 10 minutes then she was able to complete-really nice 20001853 R was very bored by this whole study thing and she mentioned this to me..she refused to give any info but the zip code, as she said no one told her there would be another interview in three years..

20001854 Good interview

20001855 She was very rushed to finish this partial survey and very quickly answered what questions she thought she needed too

20001856 Excellent ci no problems at all. r was very cooperative

20001857 very nice man, patient, helpful

20001858 It went well. He was very friendly and joked with me. he was interrupted a few times by a question from a kid or his wife, but it was not a problem at all.

20001859 excellent ci. r answered all questions well and with great thought. she was very pleasant and cooperative.

20001862 the callback said we were to speak with his wife, but i explained why I needed to speak with her, he was the youngest adult. He was really reluctant, but....now he'll be hoping to hear from us in 3 yrs. Thoughtful answers

20001863 excellent ci but r would not give her name or address

20001864 she was great, gave thoughtful answers, and will be willing to do it again next time

20001865 I really didn't think he would do the whole thing, but he hung in there, very nice, patient

20001866 interview went very well

20001868 She was a little wary at first, but I think she got into the interview and started to become interested in it. She was very pleasant to talk to.

20001869 no problems only refused wife's financial info

20001870 very good - friendly and patient

20001871 went very well--the only question she declined to answer was: have you ever had a problem in your marriage because one or the other has had sexual relationships with someone else?

20001872 went very well, refused to give out relative's info

20001873 He did not want to do it UNLess it was a few minutes, but once I asked him the first few minutes of questions, he reluctantly agreed to keep going. He laughed every once in a while and seemed interested in some questions, but usually it seemed like he just wanted to get done with the interview.

20001874 interview went well - would not give any information other than her first name, although I did give her the toll free number and web-site address - she still would not give more. In reference to the county she lives in, in louisiana - they have "parishes" instead of counties.

20001876 r was nice but we did the survey at a very rapid pace however she seemed to understand the questions. Note on religion that when she and husband met, she was methodist and he was protestant. Now she is neo-pagan.

20001877 like pulling teeth, very slow, she spoke very, very quietly

20001878 Went pretty good. She didn't have a problem answering any of the questions however she didn't want to give her address 20001879 r seemed to be fairly unenthused about having to do the survey but seemed honest throughout.

20001880 Went well. She was surprised how long it took, but she commented "it made me think" at the end

20001881 very pleasant , cooperative

20001882 went great ,no problems at all

20001883 very guarded has a new baby interview went well but doesnt want her name sd we could call later in yrs to come but didn't want to give her name

20001884 went fine

20001886 Interesting time I had talking with r.

20001887 was on a strict time schedule, but we squeezed it all in. She didn't feel comfortable giving out her name/address despite my assurances that it was confidential, but did say it was okay to call her back in a few years.

20001888 r was very difficult. Very hard to get her to state how she "generally" felt about many of the questions. She did want me to mention that since she lived in an "international household" then many of the questions did not relate to her situation which she feels is becoming more common.

20001890 very good nice man

20001891 real nice guy-very tough to get hold of(he's only home 36hours per week), but it was a good day for him-nice to talk to and no problems

20001892 very pleasant went well

20001893 Great guy, very pleasant and interesting to talk with. Very helpful and cooperative. Honest and thoughtful answers.

20001894 It went all right, but he mumbled a lot, which made it very difficult to understand at times.

20001895 Interview went very well. She was a very nice person.

20001897 he was very talkative. Wanted to explain each of his answers and took the survey seriously.

ke that, b/c he didn't feel comfy saying it aloud. He said that the only reason he participated was b/c our society is horrendous & he thinks this info will be useful. He was nice 20001901 very good interview-she was a lot of fun-good sense of humor-interested in the study-patient also!

20001902 She was a quick interview. did not think about any of her answers, except why her previous marriage broke up. She would love to talk to us in 3 years.

20001903 had to do it in 2 parts-was willing and patient-very interested in the findings "it was fairly lengthy." no problems

20001905 was very nice. didn't have a problem answering any questions.

20001906 nice man good interview

20001908 It went well, but she did not want to give too much personal address information to us.

20001909 The man was very reluctant to start the survey and said at the end that he hated these things but just did it b/c he felt sorry for me. Quality of interview really improved halfway through and I think he started to enjoy it.

20001910 went well

20001912 It went great. She is interested in doing it again next time we do the research.

20001913 went well

20001914 very cooperative, pleasant

20001915 it went very well she had a few distractions from family members so I had to repeat several questions but overall it went well.

20001916 Great interview. She was really nice.

20001917 Picked up from a pci -- mark was very nice and wanted to finish up the survey. Willingly gave name and address and seemed to answer each question honestly.

20001918 R was easy to interview and willing to participate in follow-up

20001919 Respondent was sort of pleasant, is Hispanic and not a lot of education. A little difficult for her to understand some of the wording in the questions, but she hung in and finished & did surprise me a couple of times. Was married 1st time for a week & said she has little memory how it ended.

20001920 interview went very well. r was very willing to participate. very nice woman.

20001921 Good interview

20001922 went very well

20001923 Very concerned that we would use income, address or other personal information for other purposes

20001924 Went very well

20001925 everything was fine. she was very nice.

20001926 The interview went very well.

20001927 Went very well

20001928 Went well

20001929 It went fairly fast but she was nice.

20001930 Very cooperative and I think very truthful. A pleasant fellow to visit with.

20001931 everything was fine. he was having some marriage problems but, didn't seem reluctant to answer any. He could very well be divorced when we call him in 3 yrs.

20001932 excellent ci, no problems at all

20001933 she answered every question in a questioning tone. Towards the end of the survey she started to trust me. she'll love to be part of the long term study

20001934 Very nice lady and very interesting. Her husband is a field engineer for the a-wax system and they have lived in Europe and Iceland. They have two children. They have no problems in the marriage now that she has refused to move while the children are still in school, they are pretty permanent in pa.

20001935 went very well

20001936 Pci -- r was very nice guy and seemed to give honest responses. He and his wife we planning to move soon and didn't know what area they would be in so he declined to give address.

20001937 female talked very fast and snappy and was not friendly at all. Have know idea what she does but her income is triple her husbands!! i know nothing about this survey

20001938 female has a sociology degree and does research. very good interview. Pleasant

20001939 it went very well

20001940 went well

20001941 no trouble easy-going lousiana chat

20001942 every thing went very well, r was very friendly, and helped out a lot.

20001943 was a manic depressant, and got mad about some of the questions

20001944 very unhappy female, unhappy in her marriage and unhappy with life in general. She is just a sad person.

20001945 it went very well, he felt that there were a lot of misleading questions

20001946 Went very well.

20001947 R was nice and seemed to have no problems doing the survey at all. He gave his name & mailing address for future contact. ***he wanted to change his answer to the "if you had a choice, would you work full time, etc" work question -- he said that he would work full time.***

20001948 excellent ci but rather slow, I had to repeat questions quite a few times and I had a hard time understanding r because of his heavy southern accent

20001950 really nice guy- great interview-no probs

20001951 went well

20001952 R seemed to grow impatient towards the end, understandable with this being as long as it is, and at the end i didn't get his address or any other info, but I hit the wrong # and it wouldn't let me go back.

20001953 R was extremely nice. Immediately recognized the reason why I was calling and made the survey enjoyable. Tended to explain why he felt the way he did a lot. Good interview.

20001954 She was a really sweet lady. She had an accent so it was a little hard to understand her at times. She seemed interested in the study and gave honest answers.

20001955 Good interview (at least the part that I did).

20001956 Steve had received the letter and was ready to do the survey. Very nice and answered all questions honestly -- asked for clarification if he didn't understand what I had said. Good interview.

20001957 super lady - great interview consideration to all questions. Fairly good interview.

20001959 interview went ok - but she would not give her last name, address or a 3rd party name

20001960 prev. said resp was xxx - the computer said oldest adult and male (r) said that would be him - he is four years older than xxx - completed survey - good survey

20001961 Good interview. Very responsive. Didn't want to give his address, etc. however.

20001965 everything went just fine

20001966 very helpful, very positive about life in general

20001967 very interested in survey - gave thoughtful answers- willing to do follow-up

20001968 He must have been a lot of fun to interview, not !!!!! Can not add anything to this other than he was impossible, and had a very unpleasant tone to his voice!!!

20001969 R - very nice and cooperative, a real trooper b/c she had a terrible cough at the time of my interview w/her. I think her husband was in or near the same room as her; I don't think his proximity was a hindrance on her ability to speak freely. She only gave her mom as a ref, b/c she had to go.

20001970 A very delightful interviewee. Wants a summary of survey results so I listed his name on the results sheet. He will most likely be willing to participate again in 3 yrs. Thought the 2 dollar bill was a good way to get his attention.

20001971 It went well. He asked that we please do not tell anyone what he said and I assured him that his name is not connected to the answers.

20001972 R was interesting to interview..willing to do follow up survey...he answered very thoughtfully.

20001973 Went good. She was very nice and easy to talk to.

20001974 went very well, very nice woman

20001975 went very well

20001976 Interview went well/no comments

20001977 very nice, but didn't want to give her address

20001978 I just did the last 15 or so minutes, but I got the impression that the previous calls went as well as this did-no probs-cooperative 20001980 went very well, and would like us to mail her the results for the survey.

20001981 Great interview. R had a unique situation in that her husband traveled a lot for his job. Many of the questions were difficult for her to answer. Overall though, it was really good talking to her.

20001982 went well, r had bit of an accent, requiring repeat or clarification on one side or the other occasionally, wants to get study results

20001983 The interview went very well/very nice man

20001984 very nice, got a little impatient toward the end I think by her voice

20001985 very nice guy. assured me that they will not be moving so he didn't want to give me a contact name.

20001986 Well this is a good one. Respondent was married , divorced and re-married the same person. Said the first time around was a bad marriage and this time it does not sound as tho it's any better. She is pregnant and due at any moment. Why do people do this. Children & money are the problems she said

20001987 went very well, but refused to give out last name, address, and relative's info.

20001988 he was so nice a great person to talk to. He question a lot of the questions, or did not understand them, even after the explanation(i think he just didn't want to answer them

20001990 very well, super nice family, super helpful

20001992 R seemed initially irritated, "this is 3rd call, feeling kind of bugged, let's do it so I don't get bugged again", but once we started, she was cooperative and pleasant, interested in the study and asked for results

20001993 went very well

20001994 excellent ci no problems

20001995 real nice guy - good survey

20001996 She was very nice. She has a little accent, but its not bad. The interview went good.

20001997 went very well air force capt very pleasant

20001998 She was a very nice woman/was interested in our findings/told me I did a good job

20001999 R is a very unhappy lady with her life...she did not want to give her any info but her zip code. As she did not think she'd be interested in doing the study again.

20002000 went well, r cooperative and pleasant

20002003 went very well

20002004 Respondent spoke very quiet. Is having some marriage problems mainly caused by the children on both sides. Doesn't sound like he's too easy to live with either. Said she wouldn't take his kids as a gift. Not a very happy person and admits depression.

20002005 went well

20002006 He was very nice. It was hard to get him to use the correct responses sometimes.

20002007 went well, refused daughter's name, address, and relative's info

20002008 It went very well

20002009 Excellent ci no problems

20002010 Excellent ci no problems at all

20002011 went well, cooperative

20002012 R was a very nice young man. He mentioned that there is allot of daily work to make a marriage happy..

20002013 good ci I had to repeat questions and responses several times and r was somewhat slow to respond no other problems

20002014 went fine. think he was getting a little tired towards the end.

20002015 It went pretty well. He repeated the question back to me often to make sure he had it right. He criticized the questions many times and did not think some of them were very useful. He often took a long time to think about his answer.

20002016 she seemed very willing and was pleasant. had no problem answering any of the questions and finished the interview quickly. Refused to give her full name and address-this surprised me.

20002017 no problems

20002019 went well, did not receive a relatives address

stions several times, very nice though, seemed a little skeptical, asked me for my name, 1-800 #, and bosr website....

20002022 R was cautious about answering several questions, and wouldn't answer several of them, but she was a nice lady and was willing to answer most of the questions

20002023 fine

20002024 Good interview

20002025 good interview

20002026 very nice young person , seemed very troubled abt her marriage

20002027 R was a great guy and he was very interested in that his info would be of interest to a study group

20002028 excellent ci but R would only give her name and address

20002029 It went pretty well. He didn't hear me say it could take over 30 minutes, so he was surprised it was taking so long--thought it would only be 3 minutes. He thought I tricked him, but he was willing to continue. He refused to say the his street name, but he gave me the rest of address

20002030 He was really pleasant and cooperative. He seemed interested in the study and its findings. He was intelligent and great to talk to .

20002031 R seemed interested in our study, and he was very helpful

20002032 He was very nice. The interview went good.

20002033 went very well

20002034 I only did the last quarter of the survey with him, and I was on speaker phone (which I detest), but I think he was honest with the answers. Wasn't comfortable giving a reference, despite my assurances that it was legit.

20002035 He was very nice. It went good.

20002036 He was hurt at work last year, so the past year he has been in a lot of pain, ant that has caused problems. That colored some of his answers.

20002037 She was very nice and helpful. Didnt have much marital history in this marriage because she just recently got married.

20002039 went well, but refused last name, address, and relative's info. the reason he didn't give it out cause he said we have his # and he doesn't see himself moving at all.

20002040 from England went very well

20002042 went smoothly

20002043 interview went well. r was extremely nice and cooperative. her husband had her refuse the income questions b/c his job is very confidential. otherwise, no problems.

20002044 very pleasant interview

20002045 very pleasant male, cooperative

20002046 He was really pleasant and nice. He seemed interested in the interview and gave honest answers about his marriage. I think he kind of enjoyed talking to someone about his marriage.

20002047 Wanted to get it done. Seemed in a bit of hurry.

20002048 she talked about every single question, I would have to repeat answers several times, she took several calls on her cell phone, it was just so long!!! she was super, super nice though and gave thoughtful responses

20002049 Great guy/returned a message on the am works in the casinos in las vegas. second marriage and wife has two children from a former marriage. Good interview and went very quickly

20002050 went well, did not know of anyone's address for the future interviews

20002051 was nice and thoughtful

20002052 nice lady, was in a big hurry as she does everything while her 5 week old baby sleeps. Good interview.

20002053 It went quite well. She was just married two weeks ago, so some of the questions were kind of silly (have you thought of divorce recently?), but she was patient.

20002055 went very well. He would like us to mail the results of this study.

20002056 She was really nice, but I think a little uncertain about whether or not she wanted to do it. But as we got into it, she warmed up and got interested in the questions and what they meant

20002058 she didn't want to give her name or address

20002059 went well but would not give any information as his address and a reference

20002060 went very well

20002061 went very well

20002062 She did not want to give address--she and her husband are moving to Mexico, and leaving the house they live in empty. Try to call--someone will be there to watch the house.

20002063 went well, nice person to do survey with

20002064 based on refusal not sure if she is who I should have spoken to but based on what she told me she was the oldest - good interview - nice lady

20002065 fine

20002066 After the first ten minutes, she wanted to be done. She kept saying "let's hurry up and get it done." she gave the quickest answers she could and it was evident that she didn't want it to take so long.

20002067 went very well--really nice--no problems at all

20002069 Excellent interview.r was enthusiastic, interested and gave careful consideration to responses.note:said he "strongly disagreed" that it shouldn't bother husband if wife's job requires her to be away overnight--based on strong opinions of his other responses,not sure if understood what we asked here

20002070 went well but would not release name or ref. info.

20002071 went very well, and very long. You have to read every question very slow and sometimes you have to repeat it again because her English is not very good. No relative's info cause all her relatives and friends don't live in this country.

20002072 went well, the resp. was very cooperative and much to my surprise he had the football game on in the background and he still ended up completing the entire interview

20002073 interview went well

20002074 Good interview

20002075 went well

20002076 It went well.

20002077 difficult to do this one--husband was being very difficult, telling her to hang up and using all sorts of obscene words and banging on something and calling her stupid but she continued. She is thinking of divorce at this time. He's got to be a real trip. She was very pleasant. Good inter.

20002079 went well, very nice person

20002081 no problems

20002084 as married twice to the same person. Was very nice and helpful.
very nice lady/talked very fast with a heavy n.j. accent. I got the impression with out her telling me outright that she has an illness (cancer) as she eluded to it several times. Good interview.

20002085 went very well-friendly-called her at work to do the interview

20002086 very friendly-cooperative and fun to talk to

20002087 interview went well , takes care of her disabled husband

20002088 R gave an excellent interview. She refused to answer some questions and would not give any one else's address for location purposes

20002089 nice lady, was very pleasant to do the study with. She did not seem to be real happy and probably has some problems in the marriage, but she is pregnant and that can certainly cause mood swings her husband just (this week) changed jobs. They have two young girls.

20002097 Overall quality very good. R was pleasant & willing to complete survey; however, not interested in long-range participation. R mentioned that she used to work shift work for 17 yrs & used to work evenings, but not presently.

20002099 Interview went very well. He was a nice man. the interview was screwy for a while b/c it went back to the screen and asked for the youngest when it had originally asked for the oldest, and then when I called back, it asked for the oldest again.

20002159 Super interview
20002190 The husband was very nice and agreed to take the survey. He was absorbed in the basketball game and I had to repeat some questions. However for the most part, he paid attention.
20002191 went very well.
20002192 went very well -- nice lady no problems
20002193 The woman was very reserved and was careful with the few open-ended questions. She indicated at the end that she was concerned about someone listening. Paused a lot, gave the impression that she would like to give different answers to some questions.
20002194 The woman was very nice and laughed and was talkative but was reluctant to discuss $ issues. Was getting tired of the survey by the end and did not give name and address out over the phone.
20002195 went well, and he enjoyed it very much.
20002196 went well.

20002204 good interview
20002205 Great guy, interview went well.
20002206 At first she wasn't gonna do it, but then after I told her who sponsored it and stuff, she cooperated. I'm glad that she did it.
20002207 R was such a sweet lady. She is currently separated, but she was married in 1980. Interview went really well, she didn't put up a struggle or anything!
20002208 He was very cooperative, but didn't want to give out any information on his relatives, and was gonna be moving within the next three months.
20002209 Very nice lady, it was a pleasure talking to her 20002210 She was very understanding and she was very nice. It went great.
20002211 went well except he stayed away from the strongly agree and strongly disagree most of the time. He might not have wanted to over commit. Don't know why 20002212 Resp, would not give me her full name and address, nor that of any contact person she did not want to repeat this interview at another time.
20002213 no problems
20002214 went very well -- nice lady, enjoyed talking to her very southern and mellow
20002215 woman was cooperative. Wouldn't answer some of the opinion questions because she said that she didn't have a view on it, but answered most of the others.
20002216 I am sure that R was afraid the whole time we were doing this interview that her husband would stop her. I had to call several times, when he husband was home, she could not talk. We finally completed it.
20002217 He was very nice and cooperative
20002218 very good interview, nice lady

20002222 Went good, he had a lot to say.
20002223 Another good interview!
20002224 A true delight! Her second marriage, his third, child in prison... Refusal conversion to boot!
20002225 What a guy! A real southerner who was at first hesitant about the time involved, he said I had two minutes... well, he settled right into the interview, and even looks forward to contacting him in the future!
20002226 went very well -- i just finished up! she was nice, thought about the questions, I enjoyed talking to her 20002227 R was a very affable woman, very fun to talk to.
20002228 He constantly talked about jesus and christ, he made the interview really long.
20002229 she said everything is up to the good lord and he makes all of her decisions she would not comment on other peoples situations
20002230 went very well -- I don't think she was very excited about doing the interview, but she answered all questions and was pleasant to talk to.
20002231 female was very friendly and pleasant to do the survey with. Elderly, husband died last year, they were married for 50 years.
20002232 Good interview. He was an older gentleman and I had to repeat myself a few times, but other than that, it was pretty good.
20002233 She was really nice but did not want to give us her full name and address.
20002234 Went very well.
20002235 no problems no reference
20002236 went well
20002237 R would not give name and address because he said his relationship with wife will not change. He was somewhat irritated with the length of interview.
20002238 Man was very vocal about his situation. He would be someone who would give opinions about divorce and its consequences at will.
20002239 R was a puller... I kept pulling him along, he kept coming with the answers, I would pull a little more, he would come with an answer... when it came to wanting to talk with him in the future and getting name, etc. He said no more pulling... nice enough guy...

20002244 A good survey.
 Good
 20002245 guy was very nice, interview went well
 20002247 The respondent was very nice and seemed to be very interested in the study. He gave thought to his answers and expressed his opinions on the subjects.
 20002248 Woman enjoyed to hear herself talk.
 20002249 He went through the interview, but didn't seem to excited about it.
 20002250 cool lady, wouldn't give me her address though

 20002254 Great interview. R was a really good respondent.
 20002255 Went very well.
 20002256 went very well.
 20002257 This interview went very well. Lady was somewhat skeptical about us at first, but ended up completing the entire interview and giving us her address. Went well.
 20002258 went smoothly
 20002259 It went well. Quite a talker but very interesting.
 20002260 Great interview
 20002261 Became a bit friendly as the interview went along. Must have either had a hearing problem or did not understand the purpose of the interview as she said that she filled her census out. I feel we are lucky to have gotten what little info. that we did as she was very hesitant. Poor health.
 20002262 lady was very nice
 20002264 went well, and she would like us to send her the results to this survey.
 20002265 nice respondent/talked very fast and reminded me of someone that I knew. She had the habit of giving a double-sided answer and I had to constantly have her define it. They owned a business and/sold it to a son and she still does the bookkeeping for him. Good interview.
 20002266 R was a delight! She was honest, and open in her interview.
 20002267 no problems, lots of good information
 20002268 went very well.
 20002270 He didn't want to give address or last name, but in the interview he was very cooperative.
 20002271 really nice guy to talk to. has a sense of humor and was very cooperative 20002272 elderly man was a little hard to understand and sounded very lonely
 20002273 R was very attentive and seemed to be very interested.
 20002274 went very well, nice lady, refused to give me relative's address b/c they are retired and for sure not moving 20002275 Very well, breezy and friendly.
 20002276 very good interview, her answers were very clear
 20002277 Very nice lady, very good interview.
 20002278 R rated his marriage rather low and did the interview despite the fact that his wife was present--his answered some of the questions "indirectly" by saying things like, "that last one you just said" as a response.
 20002279 went well, and he wants us to send him the results to this survey.
 20002280 interview went very well
 20002281 R was a super interview - very open on questions - she didn't feel comfortable giving her daughters or anyone else's names for tracking purposes though.
 20002282 very good interview. nice lady
 20002284 Very uneducated woman had a hard time understanding that there were specific answers to choose from. I had to pry a lot to get "agree, disagree, etc," and sometimes she still wouldn't be specific.
 20002285 went extremely well, the resp. was a little hard of hearing so i had to speak up but other than that we had no problems what so ever. he was very cooperative.
 20002286 Very nice women, but didn't want to give out the information for the yellow sheet.
 20002288 no problems, he had a lot of time and was glad to do it
 20002289 good survey - husband deceased - so some ?'s tough
 20002290 went fine
 20002292 went excellent
 20002293 she was very apprehensive about the survey in the beginning. didn't want to give her name-agreed to answer questions only after I had given her the study directors names and a purpose of the study-she seemed more at ease to find I was a sociology major-she asked!
 20002294 She was pretty cooperative, but didn't want to give out any more personal information.
 20002295 went well, but she was moving so I wasn't able to get an address or and address of a friend or relative to find where she would be living.
 20002296 the interview did not go too well at all, he kept answering almost half of the question as don't know. And refused to give out relative's information.
 20002297 very nice, funny lady
 20002298 no problems
 20002299 she did not want to give her info for future contact she said she would answer our questions again if we called 20002301 very nice lady, good interview. she was talkative which I like.
 20002302 she was not real interested in doing this survey and seemed very guarded in her answers. Refused to give her full name or any other info. Went quickly as she is a widow/with no children at home.
 20002303 went well, but refused to give out any relative's name or phone number because she just moved in this house, and she don't see herself moving in three years.
 20002304 At first, she wasn't going to do it, but she did anyway and she was cooperative.
 20002306 interview went very well, but respondent declined to give any other information(other than her first name and zip code)
 20002307 R had several questions before he would consider doing this interview! He just knew it was a scam! It was funny, at the end he was thanking me for calling him! Didn't give out any information at the end for the yellow sheet!
 20002308 went well, the resp. was very polite and very cooperative
 20002309 went very well
 20002310 She was very cooperative and had nothing better to do, so she did the survey.
 20002311 went well, but refused to give out her address, or relatives information.
 20002312 very compliant, happy to do survey. Honest with all answers, good sense of humor
 20002313 very nice man - good survey
 20002315 willing to do the interview, very nice person.
 20002316 R was a very sweet pleasant, person, this was a excellent interview with sing three grandchildren. Husband is retired. Have very strong values. Thought the last 5 questions need to be re-written.

20002320 Good interview.

20002321 Went well, r was nice, but said there were only 2 adults in the hh, her and her daughter. When I asked if she was buying, renting, or owned the house she said she was house sitting. I asked if that was her permanent address and she said yes(note) she said she had just moved there as well, so it is her permanent home.

20002322 interview went very well, she was very cooperative and nice

20002323 nice lady

20002325 Very nice lady. Husband had a near fatal heart attack several years ago and the retirement years have not turned out the way they planned. Life is as good as it can be for them and she is just happy to still have him. Enjoyable interview. Will remember her.

20002326 Great interview.

20002327 went very well--but took our 800 number and may call back to give his mailing address.

20002328 there were problems with his wife coming up as a husband, but I got it fixed and he was very kind and willing to do the interview.

20002329 respondent didn't want to give information about his divorce, or any other personal information.

20002330 The interview went good. The man didn't want to give out any personal information at all (name, his wife's name, or personal income). He complained a lot about the length, but he said at the end that he stayed with it because he believed that this was an important study.

20002331 Interview with R was short and quick! She lives by herself, so there weren't any marriage questions to ask!

20002332 very nice, but didn't want to give out information for the yellow sheet, kind of in a hurry.

20002333 r was very pleasant. She refused to give out any info recorded on yellow sheet

20002334 went very well.

20002335 Went very well

20002336 went well

20002337 went pretty well -- had to repeat or clarify a few questions. overall good. i don't think she was too happy to do it, but she finished!

20002338 very good interview. Resp. refused to give full name and address.

20002340 She was very nice and willing to give information.

20002341 Went good. The woman was very nice.

20002343 went well, but refused to give out a relative's information

20002344 The lady didn't seem to answer the questions very well. The questions would spark something that she had an opinion about and then she would ramble on about that for a while. Then she wouldn't respond to some of the questions because she thought they were bad questions or immature. nice lady though 20002345 Wonderful person to interview!

20002346 interview went very well

20002348 She was very cooperative. No problems.

20002349 went smoothly but would not give name or other information

20002350 interview went very well

20002351 When I asked r for address etc. she did not want to give it and said at this point with husband having cancer etc. that she did not want to be re-contacted but was very nice about it.

20002352 went pretty well -- she was a little suspicious, i think. didn't want to give out personal info, income etc. i had to drag a few answers out of her. overall good though.

20002353 she did not want to give out any tracking info

20002354 He was very cooperative. On the line of questioning when it asks about health problems in the last year, many people say hardly ever, b/c they can't decide between "sometimes" and "never."

20002355 good interview, resp. refused to give full name and address or other contact information..

20002356 good interview. r was a pleasure to speak with and very opinionated. It took a little longer because on many questions she didn't choose one of our responses the first time, she gave an explanation and then would choose a response after I repeated question. Overall quality, though, very good.

20002357 interview went very well, but she didn't want to give any more info to locate her in the future.

20002358 good to fair interview. The respondent refused to answer any questions about her previous divorce, she also refused to give her name and address. She would not give first names of herself or husband. She was cooperative in all other things and gave a pleasant, concise interview. Very nice lady.

20002359 went well

20002360 went well

20002361 went well -- nice guy. he refused to answer a few questions because he found them too vague.

20002362 went well . . . once i got her to agree to participate she was very cooperative but she was very reluctant initially, mostly b/c she thought that her responses wouldn't be of any value to us b/c she is widowed and hasn't worked in over 50 yrs. but i assured that her responses would still be very valuable to us

20002364 extremely motivated and talkative man-was ecstatic to be able to share Jesus with me over the phone. He got off on tangents quite a bit. when we were on the interview questions, though, he didn't hesitate to respond.

20002366 went very well, he was very nice

20002367 very nice man. good interview. Note : he was 17 at start of first marriage. He had 7 children, first wife died in childbirth, and he remarried and adopted his 2nd wife's children(2) and she raised his kids,. How wonderful.

20002368 very cooperative man

20002369 no problems

20002370 She was very intelligent and willing to answer our questions. I think she was interested in the content of the interview and thought about her answers thoroughly.

20002371 this guy was very nice and cooperative. said to tell who ever was in charge of this interview that the biggest problem in marriage is lack of communication e survey, but once we got going it went fairly well.

20002374 nice old lady, but she said that she thought that it would be better if we didn't ask for names.

20002375 Very pleasant lady and a very good interview. she did refuse to give her name and address. Commented that her husband had just come in and maybe that's why. They are building a new home and are stressed out at times over it.

20002376 interview went very well. she said she was a widow, and then later on told me that her husband had died only a week ago! she was very nice and more than willing to complete the survey.

20002377 Good participant

20002378 went well

20002379 Went very well.

20002380 interview went very well

20002381 the interview went extremely well the resp. was very cooperative

20002382 Good

20002383 Great interview.

20002384 very nice woman-cooperative and friendly

20002385 She is Asian Indian -- Hindu. She had an arranged marriage. Some of the questions did not really apply due to this. She did not get to make a decision on a husband. I am not sure if she really understood some questions. i had to make notes on later questions b/c the computer wouldn't let me go back.

20002386 very good interview. R was friendly, seemed interested in interview and gave very thoughtful responses. She was attentive and interested throughout entire interview. Overall quality very good.

20002387 Very pleasant

20002389 went well

20002390 Respondent was very pleasant and responsive. Has strong ideas about many of the questions. Liked to talk. Children are all grown and gone. Was a good interview.

20002392 Good interview

20002393 good interview. gave me his full name and address, but declined to give relative or other name and address.

20002394 it went very well

20002395 very nice man

20002397 Very good interview with this respondent. Was rather a witty person, and made for an interesting survey. Went very well.

20002398 interview went well. R refused to give full name and address on yellow sheet.

20002400 Very interested in the survey!

20002401 Went very well.

20002402 very good interview. R was friendly, interested and gave very thoughtful responses. Overall quality very good.

20002403 very good interview, nice man. Loves his wife to pieces.

20002404 This lady was very cold, I don't think she ever smiled during the whole interview. Very sterile answers. She is a widow so the interview went fast. Refused (i had a feeling that she would) any info. on paper.

20002406 over-all a good interview. Male resp. was kind of blunt, his wife was present, and he said that gave him some concern when I asked that question. He refused to answer one question at the end and told me it was none of my business. I m almost sure it was value of stocks or other investments.

20002407 went well

20002409 Very good interview. R was interested in survey and gave thoughtful responses. He was a little hard of hearing, but he seemed to understand the questions and asked me to repeat if necessary. the one I am not sure he understood is whether he lived w/ his wife before they were married.

20002410 Very good interview. She was very cooperative and willing to take time to do it. As a disabled individual her perspective may be a bit different that most completed interviews.

20002412 went well -- nice older japanese-American man, widower, i enjoyed talking to him.

20002413 Good interview. Although many questions didn't apply to her because her husband is currently in a nursing home.

20002414 Went very well.

20002415 he refused to answer some of the questions because he is retired, and he found them to be nonsense.

20002416 no problems

20002417 Very nice young woman, happy to do this interview. Has been married and divorced 3 times. She now lives with a female "partner". Survey was short and does not cover too much in this situation. It was interesting to say the least. Note: I misspelled her name

20002418 73 yrs old but was very nice went well

20002419 very nice lady and survey went very smooth

20002420 Short interview. The respondent is a widow. Skip patterns were a bit peculiar, because though the r is in her 60's, she has a 32 yr old handicapped daughter living with her. The computer prompted me to indicate which child was the oldest, but didn't give me any options (screen was blank). I put '1'.

20002421 went well, but refused to give out relative's information

20002422 woman was very interested in the survey and asked me questions about it at the end.

20002423 man was a little hesitant at first, but was cooperative after we got into it.

20002424 the man was very nice and at first seemed like he was not going to finish it, but i managed to keep him talking. definitely had honest answers because he lives alone

20002425 Interview was o.k, however, he received our letter, so he said to get that information for the next time that we call him

20002427 good interview. Resp would not give me his full name and address.

20002428 good interview. she really was a character. a lot of fun. she said, "you mean people really do these interviews with you.?" I coulnt back up computer. they live in a mobile home, not a house.

20002429 Jane was a sweet lady who just had angioplasty and was widowed.

20002430 Survey went well

20002431 the resp. was very reluctant initially. he thought that we were running some sort of phone scam but i gave him all the info. that i could including and contact info.

20002432 Went very well/
20002433 went well
20002434 good interview - kind of hard to understand at times because of heavy breathing
20002435 Very nice lady!
20002436 went well, this dude was very old-fashioned and conservative. not that is bad.
20002437 she was nice but refused to give me her name or address
20002438 very good interview. retired gentleman. very nice.
20002439 it went well. the lady said some of her opinions may be different recently than typically because they were remodeling the house and her health was not up to par at this time
20002440 R gave a excellent interview, you had to be patient and wait for her answers/ she was a nice person
20002441 went very well
20002442 Poor guy lost his wife because of his alcoholism! Bad deal on his part! Now that he has lost everything he wishes he could go back to the crystal ball and change things! His health is extremely poor also!
20002443 went well
20002444 went extremely well, the resp. was very cooperative and very polite, that and she was just a sweat-heart
20002445 this was a very difficult interview. Im not sure that R understood the questions sometimes. She spoke very labored English. perhaps when she is interviewed again you should have a Spanish speaking staff member do it.
20002446 good ci but lots of background noises from husband and son otherwise ok
20002447 Went very well.
20002448 He was very patient once we got into it. Wasn't to interested to begin with.
20002449 Very good interview
20002450 Great interview - he was a little frustrated with the questions regarding 'perceptions of the concept of marriage' (especially the one regarding children of parents who fight). Mainly because he didn't think that the questions were fair representation - they were "double negatives" of sorts. this interview was very long, I could not get R to simply answer or give a yes or no to questions.
20002451 went pretty well -- i had to repeat a couple of questions, i don't know if i wasn't enunciating or what (i turned up the phone volume). he didn't sound too excited about it, but he finished it.
20002452 Nice older lady. Widow and works part time. Lives in rural pennsylvania and raised a large family. Her tone of voice seemed unhappy but maybe it was just a bad day for her.
20002454 O:k interview
20002455 R contradicted himself at times. Had trouble absorbing some of the questions at times. Repeated questions when I could tell he was having problems understanding.
20002456 She was cooperative. Told me that she used to do surveys in college. Is moving- gave me an approximate address of the home they are building (for future contact). Didn't want to get anyone else involved. Said it is in the country so the mail service shouldn't have a problem getting it to them.
20002457 very busy lady. Is going back to school in the fall for her RN degree. Has been divorced 4 times. I just don't do a very good job of picking them out she said.
20002458 went well -- i was just finishing up. he seemed very nice and sounded very happy about his marriage.
20002460 Elderly, sweet lady. Definitely had her opinions on the family & divorce.
20002461 She was really nice and was willing to share details about her life with me. She was friendly and had a good sense of humor.
20002462 went well
20002464 excellent interview r did say toward end of interview that he had no earned income. the amount he gave me was from stocks and bonds etc
20002465 went well
20002466 Elderly male. Seemed in sort of poor spirits, said that he is depressed a lot. Wife died several years. He seems to have very strong values. Was very nice. Note: on question about organizations respondent is a member of the vfw 20002467 Went well except for getting complete address at end he felt he had spent enough time on interview and did not wish to give out any more information, nice though 20002468 went smoothly very nice lady
20002470 went pretty good. It was a little hard for me to understand her . we got through it ok. Nice lady.
20002471 went smoothly
20002472 very good interview, refused to give complete name and address.
20002473 went smoothly, nice lady
20002474 Pleasant lady, seemed sad or unhappy. Has a son and grandson that live with them and grandchildren next door and said that too many children now days bother her a lot. Husband is on disability. She is just not a very happy person. The whole family has little education.
20002475 Great lady, think she is 71 and husband is 80. She has been married several times, husbands died. Just a very nice chatty lady with very strong religious convictions. No problems, except with dated and years.
20002476 She was extremely nice. She answered every question and gave her full address and a relatives address at the end of the survey.
20002477 Female respondent apparently is not too happy with her life at this time. Has been divorced 3 times. Good interview and no problems.
20002478 great interview - very neat lady - dealing with cancer and very upbeat about life
20002479 went very well--$10 offered.
20002480 R was wonderful at the beginning of the interview. He had received the letter, and was wondering why no one had called yet. Towards the end, he became a little irritated because he was happily married for over 20 years, and questions seemed to be repeating to him. He got sooo tired, he would not give zip.
20002481 Went very well.
20002485 She would not give any financial information. At the beginning, she said she could do 2 or 3 minutes, but she stuck it out. She would not give her address either, but gave her zip code. She was very nice.
20002486 Went very well.
20002487 very pleasant , cooperative

d in the questions and gave thoughtful responses. Overall quality very good.

20002491 very nice lady, had a very chirpy voice. Has been married 4 times and is now single and will be moving to the san francisco bay area the end of june. Good interview.

20002492 R was a great person and wants me to call her back in 3 years! Husband is disabled and has been for some time and she said that there is no sex in the marriage due to this. Very happy couple. Said that marriage is a hard job and you take the good with the bad and like it!!

20002493 went well---$10.00 offered to complete study.

20002495 very nice lady - great interview

20002496 went very well--refused to give wife's age other than she's younger than him.--send $10.

20002498 went extremely well the resp. initially said she only had about 3 min. to spare, then about 4 min. into the survey she said she only had another 4 to 5 min. so she asked if we could skip ahead to the "important" ?'s which i said we couldn't. she asked how much left i told her + she finished

20002499 He was nice until the end of the study when he didn't want to give info about his address.

20002500 very nice lady - said definitely would not be at this house in a year or more and not comfortable giving address or other persons name to try to contact them later.

20002501 Very nice woman pleasant to speak with. the interview went very well.

20002502 interview went great..she was making dinner during it..so I had to repeat a few questions. Her friend was listening in the room..but she said she was able to speak freely in front of her friend. Very nice..seems to have a lot of mental and physical problems.

20002503 would not give name or address..said she would not give out that information. Her friend was there, but she said she spoke freely during the interview. She was kind of nice..but seemed a little distance. Did not complain about the interview at all..but kind of unemotional..monotone.

20002506 went extremely well the resp. was very polite and very cooperative

20002507 nice lady but seemed to have some problems, not sure if they were health or not. Husband died several years and she just moved back to the beach. No children, but seemed to be a very unhappy lady.

20002508 Good interview

20002509 Another exciting interview! First interview I had with a person that was divorced and didn't screen out!

20002510 went very well--the only question he did not answer was the question about the "main reason for his divorce from his first wife"----also we offered $10 to participate.

20002511 Very wealthy individual!

20002512 Great lady, so nice and pleasure to do the study with. No problems. Has, as she said, very old fashion ideas about marriage. She could tell people a thing or two. Very active people in retirement years. Husband was a wool dealer!!

20002513 very nice lady good sense of humor. laughing all the time.

20002514 very good interview. Nice man

20002515 very difficult/not a willing respondent/did not seem to understand some of the questions/not happy that we had her phone number/she is a widow has three children but said she wished she had none. Seemed to be a bitter person and I am not sure that she was real honest w/answers/ she is w indian

20002516 went very well--offered $10

20002517 went well

20002518 went smoothly

20002519 Wonderful person!

20002520 very good interview, no problems

20002521 She was so nice! She thanked me for the "very interesting" survey and said I was quite personable to speak with. Very nice lady.

20002522 Good interview!

20002523 very good interview. R was interested in survey and gave thoughtful answers. Overall quality very good.

20002524 great interview - very nice lady

20002525 he was reluctant to participate at first. It took some convincing. He is 69 years old. Lonely man. Said if he was still alive in 3 years he'd do the survey again.

20002526 Went very well.

20002527 Very good interview. Very nice chap.

20002528 woman married 53 yrs, went well

20002529 male respondent/nice guy, raises horses and up until about a month ago also managed a furniture store that is now in the process of liquidating. Marriage seems ok, could be better he said. Children grown.

20002530 went very well -- very nice southern lady, i really enjoyed talking to her. she said it was fun, that it made her think a lot, and that we should call her children and find out why they got divorced!! :)

20002531 Very poor interview I could hardly understand this lady because of very heavy southern accent I did my best to get the name of the city she lived in but could not understand her. Im not sure if I spelled her county right either.

20002532 the nicest person in the world!! She was older -- 73. Her husband passed away. No problems at all. Lives alone with two cats.

20002533 Very good interview. R gave very thoughtful responses and explained why he was answering as he did. Overall quality very good.

20002534 good interview

20002535 very good interview, interesting man to talk with

20002536 went well, but refused to give out relatives information

20002537 went smoothly up to giving me her full name and address. she says she won't be moving and that I have her phone number and that should be enough, very nice, however.

20002538 Poor guy had five wives, the last one he was married the longest to, but because of the age difference he couldn't satisfy her in bed! Poor guy!

20002539 He was very helpful and nice.

20002540 very cooperative

20002541 very good interview. R was very interested in survey and said it was interesting for her. She gave well thought responses.

20002542 R was fantastic! She was very nice and willing to answer everything. She was honest and gave her name/address. A great interview.

20002543 She was a very nice lady.

tired from her job as a friend of the courts in her county/dealt with divorce and child custody.

20002546 excellent ci went kind of slow

20002547 went very well.

20002548 I wasn't impressed with this one! Sorry!

20002550 She is a writer!! And I think she might have been well known because she makes a lot of money still and she would not tell me how much she is worth (refused). She said that the questions seemed to be aimed at younger respondents and didn't really seem to apply to her generation.

20002551 O:k interview!

20002552 This was a strange interview!

20002553 excellent ci

20002554 very good interview

20002555 Excellent interview---very congenial respondent

20002556 went well

20002557 went extremely well

20002559 went well

20002560 very nice lady good interview - doesn't want on a bunch of mailing lists now!!

20002561 excellent ci no problems very nice lady

20002562 R was very interesting and helpful...a very nice guy!

20002563 Went fast

20002564 refused to give out relative's information cause she just moved to this house.

20002565 good ci

20002566 Male respondent was pleased and waiting for us to call. Pleasant to do the study with, no problems. Has had some problems in the marriage. Retired couple living half the year in florida and the summer in new york

20002567 R stated he was married at 20 and his new wife had 6 children so # of children stated in interview were step children. Never had any of his own. Stated he would have liked to have two of his own with a total of 8 including his steps. Constantly commented on the stupid questions.

20002568 Very nice. 66 y/o. Retired. No real problems with any questions, though he did ask his wife if she had a choice whether she would work or not work. I didn't have time to tell him not to ask her..he just did it. He didn't know..so the answer probably would have been that he didn't know..

20002569 went extremely well, before we got started the resp. informed me that he was hard of hearing and that i would have to have to speak slowly and very clearly, which i did and we didn't really have any problems the resp. asked me to repeat a few of the ?'s but no more than anyone 1/2 his age 20002570 older woman was very helpful and friendly. enjoyed chatting and explaining all her answers.

20002571 Retired gentleman!

20002572 very cooperative

20002573 Well educated respondent, very friendly!

20002574 She was a little slow, and I'm not sure she understood all the questions.

20002575 good interview. Evidently, r's husband decided to get on the phone and I didn't realize this until he tried to answer for her (about her # of friends). I said we were interested in her answers & he got off. However, she seemed less comfortable & interested after this. Said she spoke freely.

20002576 very well..she got really quiet at times..i think she might be kind of depressed or something..there was something going on in her life, but I don't think we asked about it and she didn't volunteer it either. She got really quiet around problems in the marriage, so it might not be too great.

20002577 went very well -- laid-back guy. he was polite and thought about the questions. a few of the children questions we weren't sure about, because his children have moved out but his stepdaughter and step-grandchildren live with them.

20002578 went well had recd our ltr

20002579 Good interview!

20002580 very good interview

20002585 went extremely well, resp. was the president of a market research firm that she runs w/ her husband in Chicago so she was fairly interested in the survey and seemed eager to participate

20002586 very good interview

20002587 excellent interview. R was extremely patient and willing to do survey. He had a little trouble hearing me and was very good at asking me to repeat ? when he needed me to. He gave a lot of thought and consideration to his answers.

20002588 the interview went very well, when i began speaking to the resp. he thanked us for sending out the letter in advance to fore-warn them that we would be calling, he was rather impressed b/c he had never seen any one else do that

20002590 This lady was 75 years old, an invalid but yet she had interesting comments about life in general! Living alone was her biggest problem! She told me not to worry about contacting her in the years ahead because she wouldn't live much longer! She started laughing!

20002591 Interview was with a doctor!

20002592 very good interview

20002593 very good interview. he did not give me his full name and address,, and he never got the letter $2.00 his zip code is 44224 . I thought I'd mention this in case you want to send it to him. I never said anything to him about this though..

20002594 Respondent was a disabled person! He would give anything to be able to work 7 days a week!

20002595 Nice elderly male no problems just not much to the survey

20002596 went well

20002597 good interview - "has had some problems but dealing with life as best as he can"

20002598 very good interview. R was pleasant and eager to do the interview. She seemed to give thoughtful responses. Overall quality very good.

20002599 very good interview. R is currently going through a divorce and was willing to share her experiences. She gave a lot of thought to her answers.

20002600 Elderly woman that seemed so nice!

20002601 married whole life since 16, went ok.

20002602 went very well.

ew saying he only had five min but seemed to enjoy the survey and finished it. only contacts are relatives in Mexico so he took down our info.

20002605 A good survey, he said though that his girlfriend's presence caused him some concern. He wasn't offended by anything that I asked and gave his name and mailing address.

20002606 R was very pleasant and willing to do the survey -- it ended up being shorter than he anticipated. He seemed to answer honestly and wasn't offended by anything that I asked him. A good survey.

20002609 had a hard time with some questions because other peoples business is not hers so wasn't sure if ans. all questions appropriately

20002610 very nice lady good interview. Please note that her husband suffered a stroke and has high blood pressure-he is disabled. She said that they take the marriage a day at a time. No problems.

20002611 very good interview. R seemed interested in survey, gave thought to his answers, and seemed to enjoy completing it.

20002612 very good interview. R was friendly and open to completing interview. He seemed interested in survey and took questions seriously.

20002613 She was so nice! Very good interview.

20002614 very nice lady. Divorced and no children went quickly with no problems

20002615 very good interview. nice lady

20002616 gave his name and address but said they wouldn't be moving so i didn't get a contact name.

20002617 R was very helpful and willing to answer questions, she felt comfortable enough to divulge some personal questions about her divorce and former husband.

20002618 excellent ci no problems, very intelligent woman, a pleasure to talk to 20002619 went very well--added lots of comments with each answer.

20002620 went very well--talked a lot but pleasant person.

20002621 Went well--he refused to give exact income brackets on him and wife--otherwise all questions answered--send $10.

20002622 the resp. was very reluctant @ first which i think can easily be witnessed by looking @ all the previous attempts but i talked him into it + once we got going he was very cooperative his only problem was that he had a tendency to answer the q's in a way that seemed natural to him, so lots of clarifying a's

20002623 went well -- nice, polite elderly man. i enjoyed talking with him.

20002624 she gave her new address and new phone number for the yellow sheet because she's going to be moving soon (her home is for sale). She was very nice and seemed to have a great outlook on life.

20002625 went well, no problems

20002626 went very well--$10

20002627 very nice lady/widow/no problems

20002628 This interview with R went very well. He was a very polite man. He did go off the subject every now and then, but the interview was great. My first one!

20002629 Very, very, very, very, very, difficult interview! This interview was partially complete when I took over! I think prior survey person was frustrated and passed it off on the next person! Lady had a language barrier! We made it, though!

20002630 Nice to interview, brutally honest...

20002631 A really nice lady. Very patient with a long interview. She and her husband are building a new house so she will be moving to NC this fall or winter but she did not know the address. I obtained her daughter's address and ph. # however.

20002632 Very unemotional person, but she did answer every question that was on the survey! She was in a bad marriage and hasn't quite recovered from it!

20002633 R was willing to do the interview, however, she wanted to do this quickly so they could leave on a camping trip for the weekend!

20002634 I went back after interview - I evidently didn't type that he had been separated so it asked a lot of questions that didn't pertain - I went back afterward and fixed it.

20002635 he was a very good person to interview and answered thoughtfully is interested in a repeat interview

20002636 R was very nice and easy to interview. She gave thoughtful answers. Her husband is disabled due to cardiovascular heart disease and she is the main earner.

20002637 Very unfriendly and snippy. Sounded as tho she was standing in the middle of a interstate hi-way. Answered questions without thinking and often answered before I finished reading them. Not a very good interview because of this. Trucks were wizzing by and I repeated a lot. she declined a call back.

20002638 R spoke broken English but was able to understand her most of the time. Did ask her to repeat answers at times to make sure I understood. told me she was laid off work about a week. Computer would accept only month or year so I put in 1 month.

20002639 went very well--send $10.

20002640 went well -- was very open and interested in the survey. she wanted the website address but i couldn't find it, so i gave her the 800# (she was interested in publications about the survey) 20002641 went very well -- nice lady. i enjoyed talking with her.

20002642 R gave an excellent ci but refused to give her last name or any other information

20002643 nice lady. good interview. she had polio when she was 20 mo. old never worked, married 4 times, 5 kids, 15 grand children and great grandkids.

20002644 I just can't believe that I completed this one! She was so nasty to me with the 1st refusal, I just had to call her back and it was like she had turned over a new leaf, she has recently been diagnosed with some awful disease and this is an awaking for her in her final hours, days, weeks!

20002645 She had been married twice, and very willing to share information during the interview.

20002646 r was very friendly and helpful I meant to qualify that when he answered yes to feeling depressed in the last three years it was at the death of his wife. otherwise he seems to have been very happy throughout his retirement

20002647 very nice lady, kept interrupting me, and had difficulty in choosing response. Had to repeat responses to her in order to get her to choose one.

20002648 My first micro paleontologist! Wonderful lady to interview

20002649 Very relaxed gentleman doing the interview! It is tough for him because his wife is now disabled and he has to work full time and also do all the inancially take advantage of him.

20002652 He was a little hard of hearing and had to repeat the choices frequently...but a really nice guy and very willing to do the interview despite just getting off work.

20002653 went well, the resp. was very cooperative

20002654 He was a really nice old man and seemed to understand every question very well. However, when the question about abuse arose he was very hesitant to answer. I have a feeling his wife may have been a little abusive 20002655 What a lovely lady! She really wanted to share her opinions and talk with someone... She hopes to be around in the future to talk with us again!

20002657 R.... what can I say, marvelous widowed lady who bowls and polkas... great to interview, but didn't want to give us her last name....

20002658 R from texas has been divorced twice, and is 42. Really hesitant to participate, but was trying to "help" me out, and stayed with me until the end... he would even like to be contacted in the future to participate again. I really enjoyed this interview! He was very happy that we called back and did this!

20002660 everything was fine. very nice

20002661 went well wife has ms and is disabled

20002663 A very pleasant woman with a wonderful attitude about life. She is willing to be reinterviewed in 3 years.

20002664 very good interview. would not give me her name and address.

20002665 went very well -- she was a very cheerful, funny person, I really enjoyed talking with her. she was very open about her life, joked a lot, told me to have a wonderful, beautiful day at the end. very very nice lady.

20002667 Respondent was difficult to call back and finish interview that was over 50 % complete. She was not willing to give any information on the yellow sheet!

20002668 went very well.

20002669 R was very hard of hearing and I practically had to yell at him however we were able to complete the interview!

20002670 very good interview. Nice lady

20002671 went smoothly, very sweet lady has just recently separated and has found out her husband is dating another lady and is unhappy right now, works with mental health and has masters degree

20002672 excellent ci no problems at all

20002673 very nice , cooperative

20002674 went very well--on the marriage question where we ask how long they went together before they married--the answer was none because the marriage was arranged for them by their parents. Please send $10.

20002675 She was very nice and polite, but wouldn't give her name or home address. She did give her business address.

20002676 went well -- he's widowed, so it was pretty short, and he was a polite man.

20002678 He was very cooperative and easy to talk with.

20002680 She was also from trinidad, and separated, but living with her husband, and three grandchildren. Interesting situation...

20002681 The lady was very interested in the study and had barking dog that she said she did dislike, belongs to daughter..she said sorry many, many times. She said she'd never move and would not give me any other names to contact..

20002682 good interview. R was very willing to be a part of this survey. Very gracious southern lady.

20002683 Talk about a difficult survey--male was difficult to understand, is disabled, has had several heart attacks. For some reason he kept leaning on the phone key pad and beeped all the way through the interview. I did the best I could with this. He lives w/a son, is widowed, seemed pleasant.

20002684 This interview went well, from the beginning, there was a loud siren in the background for a couple of minutes, off and on. Then it went away and there was nothing else to disturb the interview.

20002685 very good interview, nice man

20002686 This gentleman from outside long island new york was genuinely involved in the interview... took long thoughts to answer...

20002687 I got the people chatters today! Loved to visit and share a 5-10 minute story about each questions.... very interesting background...

20002688 R was wonderful! A retired school teacher, a little quiet, reserved, but completed interview beautifully!

20002689 neat lady - good survey - wants copy of final report sent to her.

20002690 went well

20002691 Female respondent, pleasant to do the interview with. Is depressed over her recent divorce. Former husbands children were the cause--they refused to get along with her children. She said this has not been a good year.

20002692 was very pleasant. does not have an easy life and probably works very hard for what little pay she receives. has been divorced once and now has a live-in with her. Has six grown children. Pretty good interview

20002693 Respondent didn't want to give out any information on the yellow sheet!

20002694 went very well -- nice man, i enjoyed talking w/ him. interesting respondent, too, since he and his wife got divorced and now they're living together again.

20002695 Lady is disabled now, not able to work so she is kind of tired of life and hesitant to share much information with anyone!

20002696 If you hurry I'll do this was her opening remark. Both are retired educators. She is very short on patients. Not real friendly and thought questions "simple-minded" kept asking how much longer will this take--offered to call back and she replied nooo! She was interested in the web site.

20002697 respondent spoke extremely fast--seemed in a great hurry. Hesitant with personal info. Refused to answer a few questions. Apparently the youngest son does not have a father as she kept saying "i told you he is my son" so I took it to mean she does not acknowledge the father. Went ok

20002698 Very difficult interview, woman was hard of hearing and always didn't understand the questions

20002699 Good interview

20002701 female--very pleasant. she and her husband are struggling to keep things together financially with 2 adult children /moved back home, w/$ problems. This caused her depression. Will not be at this # in 3 years!

ments during the interview which of course was not necessary!

20002703 The interview went well. The gentleman was very cooperative and said he was interested in families being happier..he said he hoped the study would help others to build good lives..

20002704 R was a lovely person to chat with. A retired teacher married to a retired principal. They have a hobby of making dolls, furniture, and giving profits to st. Jude's hospital. She was hesitant on the money issues, and chose not to divulge that sort of information.

20002705 went smoothly however she wouldn't give some info such as her full name, address etc. In her 70's and had her opinions on the way world is changing for the worse, lack of respect, murders, not being safe anywhere etc. Hates the way government is being run, crooks running around.

20002706 Such a sweet woman!!! A very good interview -- she was honest and thoughtful about her answers and didn't appear to be offended by anything I asked her. She gave her name and address.

20002707 A widowed foster parent. Pleasant to chat with.

20002708 went smoothly but would not give name or address, very nice to do survey with

20002709 nice lady went very well

20002710 she was a very pleasant person and answered with thought. Not comfortable giving out financial info or personal info for future interview.

20002711 good ci. R had just had a stroke not long ago, but answered questions very well. He was a very nice man

20002712 very good . nice lady

20002713 Refusal conversion-R was enjoyable during the interview! She had several questions before she would do the interview! Did not want to give out any information at the end!

20002714 good interview - he has a serious illness - didn't want to say what it was - but overall survey was good.

20002715 went very well

20002716 interview went fine - but she didn't want to give her name out or any personal information to contact her again. She is disabled and they are evicting her from her home.

20002717 Male went quickly, nice and cooperative with a good sense of humor. Has been taking care of his disabled wife for twenty years. Did not say how disabled she is only that she has back problems. Said that he gets out of the house twice a week to avoid arguments, that's how he handles any problems!!

20002718 female was a very nice person to interview, said that her life is not very interesting and she was right, nothing too exciting going on in this lady's life. She did get the letter and said that she was lucky as she usually tears "junk" mail in half and throws it away, but she opened ours and surprise !

20002719 excellent ci no problems

20002720 R must have been in a better mood today, he was cooperative and nice as to when he and I started the survey last week. Excellent ci some problems but nothing major

20002721 no problems at all/ excellent ci

20002722 went well, but during the questions she seemed a little depressed. Answered most questions willingly, except for what caused her divorce, only said "a lot of things caused it" and seemed uncomfortable so I didn't press too much

20002723 very thoughtful in responses-patient-seemed interested in the study

20002725 very nice man - was very happy to do the study.

20002726 He was talking to his wife a lot during the interview..but I don't think it really affected his answers at all. He seemed to be a very honest guy. He kind of tells it like it is. Laughed a lot. He would yell at his wife.. she would yell back and then they would laugh.. kind of nice to hear..

20002727 R seemed a bit rushed but was very willing to take the survey and didn't appear to be offended by any of the questions. She gave her name and address. A good survey.

20002729 Elderly gentleman, hard of hearing

20002730 R was a nice man. He seemed like he was interested in the study considering he finished the interview right away. Overall, the interview went rather well.

20002731 Very nice lady. Stated that the only reason she participated was due to the way it was conducted, with the letter 1st and the nature of the study. Takes care of grandchildren and had to cb to finish. good interview/has a son going threw a bad divorce, and it's hard on her.

20002732 this was tough - R's husband has dementia and has had for 6 years so she really couldn't answer some of the questions and some were hard for her because of everything she is going through with him - very nice lady but very unhappy life right now

20002733 A very friendly lady! Thought long and hard about all her answers, and was very honest. A good interview

20002734 R enjoyed talking with me, 48 year old divorced father who wanted to share and enjoyed participating. He would not give address, just something he doesn't do. Really nice chatting with him.

20002735 Male polite and cooperative but not real friendly and gave the impression that he was rushed, answered quickly and with out thought. Is retired school teacher, now runs some sort of business(would not elaborate) and is not in very good health.

20002736 elder male, very pleasant to do an interview with. Had a rather heavy italian accent. Has some health problems. Strong moral values. Very good interview

20002737 very good interview. Nice lady. Note: she was 17 when first married, not 15. She said she goofed on that one and corrected the mistake.

20002738 went well

20002739 pleasant, willing to interview again

20002740 very good interview. nice man

20002742 what a nice lady, went well

20002743 I was hoping that her name would come up again when I was interviewing today. R has been patient throughout the interview, despite the computer problems I was having before. She is a very nice lady.

20002745 went very well--please send $10.
20002747 R was very nice and willing to do the survey. It was a little difficult trying to get specific answers out of him, eg., when I asked him if he was a foreman in construction, he said, "yeah, something like that." A good survey, though.
20002748 went very well--send $10.
20002749 very good interview nice lady
20002750 R was amazingly nice!!! He was willing to do interview and wasn't offended by any questions. He gave his name and address (his 2nd home, where he'll most likely be in a few years). A great survey!
20002751 Nice. Wouldn't give address information. Divorced 8 years ago. Seems like she is just now getting comfortable being alone. Everything went great.
20002752 She talked and talked and talked. I could not even interrupt her. She would interrupt me!! She had to answer every single question in a complete run on sentence. Even the simple I agree or disagrees or even her age!! Very nice though.
20002753 went well
20002754 excellent ci, no problems at all. R was very nice and cooperative 20002755 very good interview. she did get the letter, she said at first she didn't.
20002756 went well, nice man
20002757 very good interview, nice lady.
20002758 went well
20002759 no problems-she's not too happy with things right now, but she still laughed at things sometimes-good interview no probs
20002760 nice guy I doubted in the beginning if he would hang on for the whole thing, but once we got rolling it was fine-no probs
20002761 R was a very sweet woman who liked to answer, "i don't know." but I got more specifics out of her and it was a good survey. She would like study summery and gave her name and address.
20002762 She was very nice. It went good.
20002764 went very well
20002765 went well, the resp. was very cooperative
20002766 R was very sweet lady--she did put me on hold a few times and once had to get her hubby a drink--she said she was happy to be part of a study for a college class 20002767 Very good interview. He was very nice.
20002768 R was mistrustful of the survey and very reluctant to start and very eager to finish once he got started 20002769 Respondent was oriental, was very difficult to understand at times but was able to keep repeating the questions so that she had a good idea of what was being asked before she answered the questions.
20002770 Good interview.
20002771 this is a refusal conversion-female was a tad hostile, she was not real comfortable giving out info. and remained so during the whole interview. Refused full name and address. Gave her the 800#. they are retired. Her husband kept passing her notes while we talked, things to ask me!!
20002772 Interview went well. R told me he worked part time, so that's what I entered. Later in the interview he told me that he was actually retired. So do w/ that what you will. I don't know if you want to change it...
20002773 Elderly gentleman who loved to talk! For the last 20 years, he has been participating with the university of michigan with a similiar survey!! They call him yearly for an update!
20002774 R was hesitant at first but eventually warmed up to the idea of doing the interview. She was very thoughtful and specific about all of her answers. Gave name and address.
20002775 Survey went well, this lady seemed very sad and depressed.
20002776 just moved here but took time to do survey
20002777 Good solid interview!
20002778 good but confusing ci, R seemed confused on some questions. Also note! She has worked for a doctors office for just 6 weeks, she worked at a nursing home for 18 years.
20002779 very friendly fellow had a little trouble deciding on many of the questions but he wouldn't give an answer until he was sure. was a little concerned that he would have to pay for this interview
20002780 excellent ci R would not give out anyone else's name and address for future reference 20002781 R gave an excellent survey but refused to give her name or any forwarding info. she said she was just to scared to give that information over the phone. I offered the 800 number but she declined.
20002782 She was a delightful person to interview!
20002783 very good interview. R was pleasant, gave thought to his responses & seemed interested. He said he is willing to participate in long range study - we could call again, but did not want to give out his last name or address (although he said he's sure we could "track it down").
20002784 They are presently building a new home and are presently living in a one room camper which has this phone number ringing at this camper. She said it will be hard to get ahold of them in 3-5 years.
20002786 went smoothly, very nice person
20002787 Oh, my goodness!!!!!! did this woman like to talk or what! I really did enjoy this interview though!!!!!!
20002788 went well, she's a widow so it was nice and short. she was very nice.
20002789 Very well. She was a very nice lady.
20002790 Female wants us to know that the mess that she has gotten her self into is not because she didn't know better. Lots of things went wrong in her life. Married her husband and he was not free to marry, they now live apart. Has lots of problems that were never worked out. Good interview.
20002791 very sweet older woman-kindly and gentle-very thoughtful with responses
20002792 very intelligent interesting man. Excellent interview
20002794 went okay in the beginning, but she got impatient during the last 20 minutes or so. At the end she was offended about me asking her address, and when I thanked her (profusely) she just hung up without saying goodbye.
20002795 Very good, long interview. R seemed thoroughly interested in interview and gave a lot of thought & explained her answers. She doesn't remember seeing the letter & is going to call 800 # to request this before she gives out her address.
20002796 R is a hoot!! she had me in stitches the whole time. She is more than honest with everything and gives all kinds of extra info: how you know if he's the one to marry, how to choose a boyfriend, how to keep a positive ink of. she thought some of the questions were stupid..but that's about it. She answered them all.

20002798 went smoothly until the part of giving me her address, she was reluctant as she said she didn't think she would like being on the phone for this period of time again, nice person though

20002799 the gentleman was wonderful--he told how his mom did survey studies from their home when he was a young man--he is planning to be there when we call back in 3 years

20002800 went very well.

20002801 he was a very nice gentleman to interview, very pleasant to talk with 20002802 very nice. She was surprised we got ahold of her because she's always gone. Thought a lot about her answers.

20002803 very good interview, nice lady. has 36 year old daughter and 2 grand children living with her.

20002804 R was chatty about questions and did not give names but did seem comfortable with study

20002805 went very well

20002806 Interview went well. He is older and told me right off the bat that he wanted to do it in 2 parts. He was very pleasant. He's from the south (& not used to the nebraska "accent") & couldn't understand me a couple of times. We worked through it, though.

20002807 Very arrogant person! I can understand why his wife divorced him!

20002808 very good, but long, all she wanted to do was talk, but that's ok

20002809 Very elderly gentleman who loved to talk

20002810 went well, she was a very nice lady. i had to repeat a couple of ??s for clarification, but overall it went very well.

20002811 went smoothly

20002812 very friendly woman. Thought her answers over, perhaps too much. But was honest with all questions

20002813 good to fair interview. R had a hard time on some questions selecting one of our answers. On these, I made notes of his statements.

20002814 R was nice and didn't seem to have too much of a problem with any questions. It was a little difficult to get specifics from him at times, but overall it was a good survey. Gave name and address.

20002815 very talkative-quite cooperative-bitter about life-just went bankrupt

20002816 excellent ci once R would simply answer questions

20002817 went extremely well, the resp. was sweet and very cooperative and very much concerned with answering the questions correctly, if she didn't understand a ? she would be sure to have me repeat it

20002818 Another good interview!

20002819 Enjoyed the interview!

20002820 Had to make several calls to reach her, she is involved in real estate and never home, I did enjoy speaking with her.

20002821 very good interview, nice man

20002822 wonderful lady, enjoyed the study, she is the tobacco farmer, hubby not able to work, heart attack some years ago, electrical storm as we spoke and she did continue till completed

20002823 good grief. R is hard of hearing, and made me repeat almost everything 2 or 3 times. He's a nice guy, but a bit racial (talked about "wetbacks", etc.) i think he answered everything to the best of his ability.

20002824 excellent ci, R would not give a address

20002825 I don't know if he understood all questions about health & the last group on his attitude towards marriage. He understood English, but I repeated some questions 2 or 3 times. He also hesitated during these. I have doubts about his understanding them. I offered to have someone call who speaks Spanish but no

20002826 Survey went well but spouse may have been able to hear part of it. At the end he couldn't think of the zip code and she yelled it to him from the background. You will note, he indicated there was no outside influence on his answers however.

20002827 very cooperative

20002828 She was quite a talker, but very nice and polite. She had an opinion on everything.

20002829 excellent ci no problem

20002830 Very nice. Widowed. Has a lot of health problems

20002831 Good interview. He was very patient and cooperative.

20002832 nice lady, good interview, would not give me name and address, said we had it because she got letter, its ok to contact her again in the future as we have her name and address already.

20002833 excellent ci, R would like a summary of findings of the survey when it is complete

20002834 very nice lady, a retired elementary teacher, concerned person

20002835 This lady was very skeptical during the entire interview! I would categorize her as "strange".

20002836 Fine

20002837 lady was interested in study and was very happy not "hard" questions, such as ones that required math!!

20002838 R was a very sweet lady, she was interested in the study

20002839 R's interview was good. He spoke with an accent and forgot to ask him at the end when he originated from.

20002840 excellent ci no problems at all

20002841 went well

20002842 Did not understand the reason for asking for items on the yellow sheet. He also refused to give income items out also.

20002843 very good , nice lady, child kept interrupting, so it took a longer than need be.

20002844 went smoothly nice individual

20002845 went well

20002846 chose not to answer any income/ $$ questions, as well as what caused her divorce. But otherwise was very compliant.

20002847 very good nice lady. gave name and address.

20002848 Good interview. He seemed interested and gave thoughtful responses. Overall quality very good. He didn't want to commit to participating in long range study at this time, but will check out our website & will call if he changes his mind.

20002849 excellent ci no problems, opal was very nice and cooperative

20002850 Great lady and lots of fun to interview with. Born in italy and has lots of good values that have been lost in todays society. Lovely lady.

20002851 Wife is 71 husband is 76 need to change r she refused any identity questions. Very pleasant woman. Reminded me of my grandmother. Not interested in a follow-up interview.

sical address was correct on the letter we sent out, but not the address the post office uses. She gave me her correct address.. but she didn't give her last name or anything since we already had that right.

20002854 very good interview. R was friendly, willing to answer questions and seemed interested.

20002855 went very well, she was nice. since she's been married so many times, she couldn't remember the ages at end/beginning of all her marriages. said she would continue to be part of the study but she has terminal cancer and won't be around in three years. :(

20002856 R was a little out of sorts as was told interview be around 20 minutes..he did lighten up when we talked farming--as I know area where he lives

20002858 R was a nice woman, but a bit untrusting and it was sometimes difficult to get a specific answer out of her (i.e., "i'm happy" rather than "very happy"). She was offended by the sexual relationship question and didn't give her name or address.

20002859 went well, very nice guy, i enjoyed talking w/ him. he said that he didn't want to give out anybody's phone # in case he moved, but UNLess he's dead, he'll be in corpus christi (so we should be able to find him).

20002860 Wonderful person and she was so interested in the entire study herself.

20002861 R was very talkative and nice, she said that our questions are to unspecific. she asked for my last name, which she did not receive. She wouldn't answer the questions with the general responses. This survey should have only lasted about 25 minutes

20002862 the survey went well, the resp. was extremely candid in her responses but what i find almost frightening is the fact that her (former) husband was an emotionally abusive alcoholic that also seemed to have a bit of a problem w/ monogamy and he is the one that wanted and filed for the divorce, not her

20002866 interview went very smoothly r was worried that the one person she would normally give as a contact is moving soon but said she had lived most of her life in the south and we shouldn't have any trouble finding her 20002867 excellent ci pat was very cooperative, she's a widow and she just seemed kind of sad to me.

20002868 went well

20002869 Patient fellow. Enjoyable interview.

20002870 Hard to understand, dont know how valuable this interview was 20002871 overall quality good. In general r seemed to understand most of the questions. He gave his permission for us to contact him again by phone for the long-range study. He didn't want to give his last name or address; he said,"you have my phone number" and it's ok to contact him again by phone.

20002872 Very nice woman. She is a little sad right now because within the last year her husband passed away.

20002874 said she was a little bit concerned about being overheard. I think this is why she said "i don't know" to a couple questions like "if you had to do it all over again, would you marry someone else.." and some times she mumbled "not very happy."

20002876 Went very well, no problems!

20002877 was very quick and to the point, I think she didn't really want to get into it much. But I feel her answers were honest. She's depressed, as her husband passed away just 2 years ago.

20002878 good interview, R was 70 years old and slow to answer

20002880 Fine!

20002881 Respondent refused a numerous number of questions, she thought they were too broad and refused to make judgements on people, so survey might not be too much help!!!

20002882 pleasant gentleman chatted allot about his family of 9 and then his 6 children interesting man very happy to do the study

20002885 Fine!

20002886 they were both semi-retired from professional fields and working together very part time (sometimes one day a week) on a home business so some of the employment questions were difficult to answer as they didn't always apply

20002887 When we were going over the yellow sheet, respondent informed me that his zip code had recently changed along with his new address. The correct zip code is 46123.

20002888 went well and it also went very quick

20002889 He was a little hard of hearing, so I had to speak really slow and usually repeat things for him. It was a long interview.

20002890 man retired in 70,s on 2nd marriage , very cooperative

20002891 went smoothly, very nice individual and said he hoped this information would be of use to us

20002892 excellent ci, no problems

20002893 went well

20002894 very interesting lady even told of her heritage (ireland) very easy to do survey with, works full time in hospital has retired husband who has diabetes, now has parkinsons also a very courageous woman I'd say

20002895 Retired person, but I enjoyed the interview

20002896 a silly guy. had fun with the interview, but I feel he answered all the questions honestly.

20002897 Went very well!

20002898 Went good!

20002899 R would not give out her address as she said we already had it to mail her our letter, I gave her our 800 number to set her mind at ease. Good ci

20002900 It was a good interview

20002901 very frustrating -- mumbles and won't give a straight answer: "oh I suppose, I guess so", etc. So the results probably aren't the most scientific. In very poor health (raspy breathing, coughing, etc.) said he may not be alive when we call next time.

very optimistic about moving on and had credentials you wouldn't believe had been radio announcer, engineer and vice pres of elec. company etc.

20002905 Very laid back individual but a delight to interview. She has her master degree in sociology from the university of nebraska at omaha.

20002906 She was recently widowed. She asked me to say: for women who decide to be stay-at-home mothers, there is no income for them in case they become widows and are too young to get social security. Someone should definitely do something about that.

20002907 went well

20002908 It went very well.

20002909 This guy was very talkative and seemed to be full of knowledge or something else. Was able to complete the interview with him.

20002910 Nice lady. Divorced with two grown children. Had her own business for many years and is now a computer tech. Both children graduated from penn. State. Be sure that we do not use her address for anything else as she would not like that at all!

20002911 R was concerned with confidentiality but eventually was at ease with answering the questions. A very nice guy who answered thoughtfully & honestly.

20002913 Interview was o:k she could not remember if she had received our letter or not, she was 74 years old, living alone, and seemed to have a problem remembering things, did complete survey though.

20002914 fair to good ci, R's husband was listening on the phone throughout the interview, they are both methodist ministers and her husband helped answer questions R didn't know the answers to. They were both very nice and cooperative

20002915 very good- friendly and interested in the study

20002916 Partially completed interview, just finished last few minutes with her

20002917 It has been a very recent separation and he had no trouble discussing it wanted to comment that he feels companies today look out more and more for themselves. He could quit or be killed tomorrow & it wouldn't matter as much as equipment

20002918 very good interview, nice lady

20002919 Went fine

20002921 everything went great, R was very friendly.

20002922 She was very nice and cooperative

20002923 Respondent was very pleasant and good natured. He is a semi-retired architect, and owner of the business...and financially well off. Some questions of ours went back too far for him and he answered dk, too long ago, he said!

20002924 The last few minutes that I did went well-I'm sure the other interviewer had no problems as well. she was an upbeat older lady-nice to talk to

20002926 Oh, my goodness, this woman would not shut up during the interview, I had to continually, interrupt her to keep the survey going.

20002927 went very well--please send $10 and any info about the study you have.

20002928 She was cooperative

20002929 Good interview

20002930 went well, it was hard finishing the survey because she doesn't speak English very well. main language is japenese

20002931 R was very nice to interview..he will be moving soon and gave me his son's address and phone number as a future way to track him down. He is currently living with his best friend of 35 years.

20002932 elder female lives with her grandson and cares for her great-granddaughter. Very polite southern lady. Good interview 20002933 the survey was ungodly long . . . and that is really about all i can say.

20002934 very friendly - wonderful, enjoyable interview with a dear older lady

20002935 not very educated-had to repeat questions and give him time to think, but he was willing and cooperative-pretty nice guy

20002936 very talkative older lady-a real spark!

20002937 went smoothly, very nice individual to do survey with

20002938 Went good, she was very nice

20002939 Very talkative female, very frustrated her entire marriage with a no good husband.

20002940 Interview went well except on the question where it asked for age of the 1st marriage. She said her age was 13 and it wouldn't accept that answer.

20002941 he had a hearing problem, so on some questions he could not make out what I was saying. Ex. wifes (faithfulness) to you he could understand faithfulness and would say dk, but otherwise it was fine

20002942 went well, but refused relative's info

20002943 Very lonely old man, enjoyed the survey, said we can call him daily or weekly so he has someone to talk to, old age must not be what it should be.

20002944 He was in a hurry but he finished it. I didn't get an address or any info on the paper at the end because he said he'd rather not. Overall he was friendly.

20002945 Very difficult interview

20002946 Went very well--please send information on this study .

20002947 Al is a newly divorced male. He is a very lonely man. I could not get him to focus.

20002954 He was very nice. He originally said he'd give me a few minutes but ended up finishing the whole thing.

20002955 very pleasant lady. Widow for many years and is very busy with volunteer work. Said that she may move in the next year or so to a condo as the yard work is getting to be too much for her. Good interview with no problems

20002956 nice and kind lady. Very pleasant to do a interview with. Semi-retired and living on her husbands family farm. They are the only people to have ever lived and farmed there. They grow tobacco, but now for long she said, the government is putting a halt to that.

20002959 The interview went pretty smoothly. He had a hard time w/ the agree/disagree questions (would always say yes, no maybe), and was rather impatient at the end and practically hung up on me to get off the phone.

20002961 Female very nice. Wanted us to know that the only reason she participated in this is because her late husband was referred to unmc for cancer transplant treatment and they were very grateful to the uni. for the care and help they received. Very good interview

20002962 R gave a excellent interview, but says he has never received a letter with 2 dollars in it and he wants to receive the letter and money

20002963 She is widowed because her husband committed suicide several years ago when the children were small. She has a positive attitude and rearing the 3 children the best she is capable of doing.

20002964 Elderly woman, but she was happy to contribute to the survey, she doubts whether she will be around the next time we contact her. God willing. Sharp lady 20002965 Very good. A very cooperative & patient r.

20002966 no problems he inquired who would be seeing the info and if we would sell it to anyone. I reassured him no and offered website he seemed comfortable after that

20002967 good ci, R had a stroke and his memory wasn't that great, he told me his first wife had died and he'd remarried, then 99/100 of the way through the interview he remembers he's been married 3 times and had been divorced once 20002968 she had very interesting answers...

20002972 good ci , R was slow to answer many questions, changed his mind on responses otherwise no problems.

20002973 She did not "want to go through this again". She indicated she thought it was too long. She stays at home with a 44-yr. old daughter who has cerebral palsy.

20002977 very darling older gentleman a nice interview-pleasant and friendly

20002981 excellent ci no problems . R didn't know the address of her daughter 20002982 She said she would originally give me a few minutes but she ended up finishing it.

20002983 overall quality very good. R finished survey, but he almost refused in middle b/c of time - offered to cb, but he wanted "to get it over with." however, don't think this necessarily affected quality of his answers .

20002985 went very well--her husband was over 75 yrs old and has alzheimers disease--and the effects of the disease have been surfacing with him over the last two years.

20002986 What a great lady-such fun talking with her. She has been divorced for a long time and now she and her former husband are planning to be re-married. He finally grew up she said ! she is a teacher and said that she found some of our questions worded poorly.

20002989 Elderly lady, very nice and pleasant. Not too much going on in her life. Getting ready for a hip replacement. Was hesitant to give out information at first, but felt more comfortable as we went on.

20002990 went well, refused to give out last name , address, and relative's info

20002991 R was constantly interrupting me, said many of our questions were "loaded, skewed or slanted". he laughed a lot during the survey and says to make sure he gets his letter and 2 dollars . also wants the results of the survey.

20002992 wonderful lady went very well

20002993 R was hilarious and very nice. She was willing to do the survey and talked my ear off. She gave her name and address.

20002994 excellent ci no problems

20002995 very nice man interview went well

20002996 went very well

20002997 very pleasant went well

20002998 R was slow to respond to some questions, other wise no problems

20002999 R laughed a lot during the survey and changed her answers quite a few times, did seem to have a problem giving responses. She also had not received her letter and 2dollars as of this date.

20003000 It went very well

20003001 the survey went really well

20003002 went well, she hasn't worked at job for 5 years, but they still pay her because she was injured while working.

20003003 went great

20003004 went well

20003005 If went pretty fast and she was friendly

20003006 went well-cooperative and friendly-gave him bosr toll free #

20003007 He was such a nice gentleman, but he has had problems. His wife died of cancer a year ago and his son was killed in an accident, so he's not been in very good spirits. He wished me a good life.

20003008 went well, but refused relative's info

20003009 Went good. He had a good sense of humor

20003010 overall quality excellent. r gave very thoughtful responses. Note: r lives w/ daughter, son-in-law & grandchild, but she has her own phone # & dtr has her own phone #. determined that since this is r's primary #, there is only 1 adult in the hh at this #.

20003011 R is very depressed -- his significant other recently passed away, and he's not doing well with it. Often wonders whether anything is worthwhile man - very willing to be called back in the future - just not give someone else's info

20003013 went fine

20003014 excellent ci, no problems

20003015 Went good, however he didn't give any info at the end of the survey for the paper. Also at the end he said there was someone there that caused some concern

20003016 excellent ci, R was 74 years old and I had to repeat questions slowly, and re-read them to her several times

20003017 Interview went very well. Since she hadn't received letter, she was a little wary of giving out her address.

20003018 the survey went fine, but she didn't want me to write anything on paper so I didn't get her name and address

20003019 went well, she was a very nice elderly lady, i enjoyed talking with her. had to repeat a few questions because she couldn't quite hear me, but otherwise, no problems.

20003020 went ok, she refused some things in the survey. Both her and her husband are retired and for that she didn't want to give out her and her husband's personal earned income. refused to give out last name, address, and relative's info.

20003021 R gave a excellent survey, he was a real pleasure to talk to, very cooperative and helpful

20003023 the survey went well (in a manner of speaking) only in the sense that the resp. was very honest and extremely cooperative but it was the most disheartening survey that i have ever conducted b/c the resp. was "not too happy" w/ her marriage but this seemed to be a bit of an understatement.

20003024 pleasant, fun lady loving being retired interested in study

20003025 very helpful took his time to answer thoroughly and honestly

20003026 I think his wife may've been on another phone -- I heard whispering at some point (see other notes for pcis!!!). I believe he answered honestly but was really ticked off by the length of the survey. No name or address.

20003027 Very friendly, joking woman. Very honest and thoughtful with her answers. Declined giving a reference, stating: "if we're not here that means we're dead."

20003028 excellent ci no problems. R had not received our letter as of this date, and she would like the results of this survey when it is completed.

20003030 R was a nice guy who was quite willing to do the survey. He gave his name and address + a contact name. A good survey.

20003031 She was a really nice woman who seemed a little down about her life. I think it gave her a sense of purpose to be involved in an important study such as this. She spoke candidly and gave thought to her responses.

20003032 went well-took it slowly-she was older-very nice and easy to interview-cooperative and friendly

20003033 extremely good-natured guy fun to talk to no problems

20003034 no problems at all

20003035 Overall quality very good. Gave a lot of thought to answers. Had a problem understanding cs50e-was confused about what we were asking. On income ?'s, answered for both of them under her (cs140p2) & did not separate their joint income. See notes on screens, quite a few.

20003036 good/fair ci, I had to repeat questions and responses several times

20003037 very good interview. she did not want to give names or financial info. no address either.

20003038 fair to good ci. R refused a lot of questions and gave a lot of dont know responses. shr refused to give a name of a realitive or friend we could contact in 3 years. She was unemployed and was very bitter and I dont think she took the survey completely seriously.

20003039 went well

20003040 he was very nice, didn't mind answering any questions. had trouble with "ought not to" question. he said there were too many other things to consider and he couldn't answer it.

20003041 went very well--we need to check on his zip-code --he lives on an acreage and said they have changed it.

20003043 Elderly female was not very co-operative, no pleasant.

20003044 He was nice enough, but I don't think he was too interested in the survey. He was doing it , but he didn't like it too much. He was very uncomfortable giving out income and personal information to us also.

20003045 Very good he is hard of hearing so I had to speak loudly and we were disconnected once but overall, a good interview. Ve ry cooperative 20003046 Enjoyable interview. She might be hard to get ahold of if she moves though that sounds UNLikely. Her step-son is her other contact and he lives with his step-mother who has an UNListed # (we have it) and R did not know her address.

20003048 went very well, they were both very nice, he was very pleasant and amusing, really enjoyed talking w/ him.

20003050 went very well. her daughter is the youngest adult but she is mentally disabled, and the mother is only other adult in the household. and the mother refused relative's info

20003051 Good interview. Didn't want us to call her back in three yrs. when I told her we would need address, etc.

20003052 She was a really sweet older woman who seemed happy to give information about her life and her family. She also got really interested in the interview and seemed to genuinely care about the findings and results she contributed to.

20003053 Male was very pleasant and gave a very good interview he was great. He found out that he had cancer and that has caused some depression.

20003054 chatty mcgee... gave a speech on every question I asked, and gave way too much info, but was extremely honest with everything.

20003055 overall quality very good. R wasn't sure how to answer income ? because he's retired & chooses to live on a certain amount and this amount is what he chose to give as his answer.

20003056 Interview went pretty smooth. He had a hard time answering the agree/disagree questions, and didn't feel comfortable about giving out any income info or his address. He said we just caught him at a good time.

20003057 goodness gracious! R is hard of hearing, made me yell and repeat myself... but what a character. he had fun with the survey, but was very honest with all the answers. As for references, he only has his son, but husiastic about participating. Re: details on the job screens - recorded all info. provided by r.

20003061 R gave an excellent interview but would give her or no one else's address

20003062 very nice lady, very honest in all her answers

20003063 She was nice, but seemed a little unfocused. I believe she answered truthfully and took the interview seriously, but was probably a little tired of doing the interview.

20003064 went smoothly, nice person

20003065 it went very smooth no problems

20003067 Excellent ci no problems

20003068 excellent ci although R was slow to answer many questions he was very cooperative and eager to please

20003069 No problems

20003071 went well, refused last name, street address, relative's info

20003072 Very cooperative.

20003073 R was a fun interview. She enjoyed the survey and is willing to do a follow up. She said her granddaughter got the $2 bill for washing dishes and thought it was nice we sent out the letter and a token of appreciation.

20003074 went well, refused relative's address cause she don't see herself moving at all. She would like us to send her another letter with two dollar bill because she never got the first one.

20003075 Went fast as he was divorced. He was friendly.

20003076 it went okay he was very impatient toward the end so I didn't bother getting middle initials and all that stuff for the yellow sheet

20003077 she was skeptical about whether her input was important to our study since she was older and retired but I assured her that her data was just as important as anyone else. She was really nice and seemed interested in the study.

20003078 went great, I don't think there is anything he would not have told me. very open man

20003079 He was nice, but he said he usually doesn't do this kind of thing. He said it was nobody's business but that my questions weren't too bad. He was answering honestly about his opinions and said that he always speaks his mind to everyone.

20003080 The survey went very good. He was very friendly.

20003081 R was very talkative, polite gentleman, enjoyed the study

20003082 He was only concerned to say why they were having problems in their marriage, otherwise he spoke freely!!

20003083 It took forever but she was nice

20003084 excellent ci no problems

20003085 went well, did not want to give out relative's address cause he doesn't see himself moving at all 20003086 overall quality very good. R gave a lot of thought to her responses. Couldn't tell if she was nervous about her husband being there - but she said she spoke freely.

20003087 went very well-nice guy

20003088 overall quality very good. R interested in use/purpose of study - said it sounds like we'll sell info. to churches. Assured him we don't do this.

20003089 went very well

20003090 The interview went really well. She was a nice lady.

20003091 she felt she had answered enough questions, but no problems with the survey

20003092 She was terse and short and kept complaining. She said she couldn't understand why any of this stuff was important. She said she didn't want to be interviewed again, as they'll "be in the same boat as before."

20003093 it was difficult to convince him to participate, but he gave honest answers--got a little edgy toward the last couple questions, but I was able to get him to hang in there with me--no problems other than a couple refused responses

20003094 excellent survey no problems . she was somewhat slow to answer questions

20003095 excellent ci, R was very honest and cooperative and a pleasure to interview

20003097 it went very well

20003098 went very well

20003099 overall quality excellent. R gave very thoughtful responses and seemed to enjoy interview.

20003100 Good interview, although he sounded like he was in a hurry.

20003101 went well, was busy cleaning his barn but seemed interested and completed the survey in one sitting. very honest. soft-spoken, but I think he was able to speak his mind.

20003103 excellent ci, although R would give no address other than her own. she was very nice and told me I was a delight to talk to.

20003104 Very good interview. Nice chap.

20003105 R said he was concerned w/ someone overhearing. Wouldn't give specifics on jobs -- descriptions are vague. Overall, I think the survey was fine. Didn't get his name or address.

20003106 no problems

20003108 no problems

20003109 Interview went very smoothly. She was very cooperative and friendly.

20003110 She was in a big hurry through the entire interview. She kept asking how much we had left. However, I think she did think about her answers but was uncomfortable giving out income and other personal information.

20003111 went very well---please send some information on the study--she does not have a computer and would appreciate it.

20003112 Was married in 1980 and divorced now. Is getting married again this month.

20003113 went very well--please send information on this study.

20003115 interview went great, she did get laid off 2 weeks ago, and so some to her answers about her happiness reflected that.

20003116 went extremely well, i think the woman that i spoke was probably 1 of the most delightful rc's that any of us will ever have the opportunity to speak to... she was one of the happiest and most optimistic people i have ever spoken to + most people would have folded w/ the hand life had dealt her fe

20003118 went well

20003119 went very well.

20003120 all I had to do was complete the yellow sheet

20003121 R was interesting person to interview...a little cerebral at times but gave thoughtful responses to questions and is willing to do follow-up survey...not bad when she said she was tired of us calling after she had told us not to.

20003122 nice lady-they have been gone for three months. She calls herself a newly wed. This is her 3rd marriage. She does have stories to tell. She does not think that her life applies to some of our questions. Good interview. No problems

20003123 older lady went very well her daughter in last yr diag, with cancer and had adopted 2 children so was a little depressed from that.

20003124 Wouldnt give her name, address or any other information. She had trouble answering some of the questions. She said some of them were to vague. Was hesitant on some of the questions.

20003126 R said he'd be happy to do survey as long as he is still around to do it...his daughter will stay in the house and retain the current phone# should they retire to a condo.

20003127 went extremely well once we got into it, the resp. was very reluctant at first in part b/c (as she told me once we were already finished) she "doesn't normally do these sort of things" that and she was widowed and retired and did know what she would have to say as far as a survey on work and family

20003128 nice lady, seemed pleasant enough-seems that they are in a very high income bracket for maintenance workers at a general motor plant, but I just record what they tell me. No problems

20003129 very good interview - he was quite nice (this was a ci saved from station 4 hard drive 9/25)

20003130 went well R has a 92 yr old mother in law which he says causes problems

20003131 interview went well but husband has emphysema and unable to be very active and go places

20003133 great

20003134 went okay, it was rather depressing

20003135 fine

20003136 very nice lady but sad - just lost her husband in july and had to go back to work after retiring 9 years ago.

20003137 went fine

20003138 Already, interview partially completed, was in a hurry to finish interview, they had company and he wanted to get back to them

20003139 went extremely well, at the start of the interview the resp. said that she was on her way out and would be leaving shortly but she agreed to answer as many ?'s as we had time for before she had to go, and she ended up finishing the interview

20003140 very nice lady but didn't understand why her answers would help us at all and really didn't feel comfortable giving full name and address to us - survey was good though.

20003141 this was a very long frustrating interview, R told me the entire history of his life, which must have been a lot like a charles dickens novel. I had a very hard time getting him to respond to the general statements. good to fair ci

20003142 went extremely well, the resp. was delightful, for a person of any age she was incredibly lively and upbeat and had a very positive outlook on life . . . i hope that i am doing that well when i get to be her age

20003143 no problems, but really eager to end survey

20003144 This went very slowly. R kept interrupting, explaining his answers, etc. good ci. R refused to give his address

20003145 went very well

20003146 At zip code question, wife pulled phone out of husband's hands and hung up! Called back later and similar thing happened. Counted as ci, just entered refused for zip and dk for speak freely question

20003147 went very well.

20003148 went very well.

20003149 kind of rushed but survey was good

20003150 Excellent ci no problems at all

20003151 I added a few texts throughout the survey, she is a manic depressant so the questions concerning how she sometimes feels, (often, sometimes, never) were kind of hard to answer but they are accurate, she was a very nice and informative woman

20003152 rather suspicious in the beginning about confidentiality but I still talked him into it - he's 74, widow and no kids so didn't feel he should judge others in some cases and wanted to answer neutral so I did as don't know. good interview overall

20003153 went very well.

20003155 good, but a difficult man to deal with.

20003156 went well--she only refused the income question-all other questions answered; also she told us she would rather we send any information to her work address instead of her home address----so the address she gave to us is her work address.

20003157 R was divorced , wanted to talk abt it but was very pleasant

20003158 very cooperative, pleasant

20003160 didn't know how to answer the question: could you support yourself and anybody you would be responsible for? Because both him and his wife are retired, otherwise no problems

20003161 excellent ci no problems

20003163 no problems

20003164 no problems

20003165 super interview - very nice lady

20003166 went smoothly

20003167 did not do the whole survey with her so I really can not comment on it. She was polite but not too cooperative and refused her name and address. Survey is completed

20003168 Went great, he just feels uncomfortable about giving his name and address out.

20003169 divorced but very pleasant interview

20003170 went smoothly however wife is the respondent age 74 not husband who is 79 yrs of age so I had to reverse some of questions in survey to get correct answers

20003173 was getting frustrated with length of interview - I almost lost him.
 no problems
 20003174 R gave a excellent ci no problems at all. He would not give anyone's address but his own 20003175 R gave a good interview but answered a lot of questions with I dont knows. Otherwise no problems 20003176 Wow what a sweetheart! She had been married twice, and divorced twice! A real gem and she loved to share information!
 20003177 very nice lady - she returned my call from message left - good interview.
 20003178 very nice lady, made for a good interview. Soft spoken . she and her husband are retired. She had been a pastor for years and is still active in the church.
 20003179 went smoothly but would not give address or references 20003180 seemed pretty nice-was a little hesitant to finish, said she did not have a lot of time, but guessed she could do a little of it, ended finishing it for me.
 can't tell much about the survey with her.
 20003181 Finished the last few minutes of the survey, R was very nice
 20003182 excellent ci for a refusal rc
 20003183 no problems at all
 20003184 It went well and quite fast. He did not want to give out address information because he is moving in 2 months. He did not want to give out references so we could get his new address either.
 20003185 went smoothly, very nice person to do survey with 20003186 it went well. she was interested in the study since she'd been thru a bad divorce. she refused address info 20003187 lady was injured in a plane crash so unable to wk anymore in a wheel chair some times, hubby takes care of her but seemed honest and pleasant sd this accident brought closer together 20003188 strange guy - ended up ok but sounded frustrated with questions in the beginning
 20003189 no problems
 20003190 good interview - very nice lady - she thought it took too long though
 20003191 Good interview
 20003192 went well, the resp. was very cooperative
 20003193 no problems at all very nice man
 20003194 Good interview
 20003195 Good interview. I think we caught her at a good time.
 20003196 fine
 20003197 went smoothly but would not give her address or references, says she gets to much junk mail etc now.
 20003198 Interview went very well once I got him on the phone. His wife really wanted to do the interview bad, but they were both very friendly people.
 They want the results of the study.
 20003199 good survey - just going through divorce this year so said kind of a strange time to ans. these questions - very nice lady
 20003200 went smoothly, very nice person
 20003201 very cooperative and patient
 20003202 went really well, she was 69 years old and she was flying through the ?'s not that she wasn't taking the time to consider her responses but i think her comprehension of the questions was better than people 1/2 her age that i have spoken to 20003203 went smoothly until giving name address and references
 20003204 fine, but didn't get address
 20003205 went extremely well, the resp. was very cooperative and highly energetic for being 65 and widowed, she also had a very positive outlook on life 20003206 good interview - called us back to make sure we were who we said but not comfortable giving address 20003207 Excellent ci. R has had a severe stroke and he says he will be dead from heart disease within 1-2 years 20003208 this was an extreme challenge!!!! what a character!! i did get the interview, like pulling hen's teeth , but we got throw it. He thought the questions were pretty stupid, his words, in other words, how can you compare apples to oranges.!!!he did not take it very seriously.
 20003209 went well
 20003210 went well and at the end of the survey the resp. said that he had "enjoyed"

Created Variables for Adult Panel, Offspring, and Cross-Section/Comparison

FAMINC6B

Two separate family income variables were created for the original panel respondents interviewed in 2000. The variable FAMINC6A was created to match the variable created in previous waves. The variable FAMINC6B was created due to the addition of income categories in 1997 and 2000.

FAMINC6A

A combination of three items was used to construct this variable for each wave of data. The few individuals who said their income was less than $20,000 but who wouldn't specify further, were assigned the value of $12,500; the individuals indicating incomes of $20,000 or above who did not specify further were assigned the value of $27,500. The midpoint of each interval listed in the questions was used to assign dollar value. For the last five intervals (10-14), $65,000 was used. This provided the same categories that were used in previous analyses.

FAMINC6B

The same combination used to create FAMINC6A was used to create FAMINC6B; however, the last five intervals (10-14) were not combined into one category. The midpoint of each of the 14 intervals listed in the question was used to assign dollar value. For the last interval, $105,000 was used.

Wife's Income (adult panel):

WIFINC6A

WIFEINC6B

Wife's percentage of family income was multiplied by family income. Items S596, Sexr6, Mar6, and S597 were combined to create a married female's income variable for the original panel respondents. Two separate figures were calculated, one for each of the income variables.

Personal Earned Income (cross section, comparison sample, offspring panel):

RINCOME1 RINCOME2 SINCOME1 SINCOME2 OFFINCOM SPOFFINC

The data collected for the new cross section in 2000 and the offspring data collected in 2000 asked a slightly different income question. Rather than computing a total family income, personal earned incomes for the respondent and their spouse were calculated. Two separate income variables were created for the new cross section and COMPARISON sample. The variables RINCOME1 and SINCOME1 were created to match the categories created in previous waves. The variables RINCOME2 and SINCOME2 were created due to the addition of income categories in 1997 and 2000. The variables OFFINCOM and SPOFFINC were created for the categories offered in the 2000 offspring survey.

RINCOME1, SINCOME1

A combination of three items was used to construct this variable for each wave of data. The few individuals who said their income was less than $20,000 but who wouldn't specify further, were assigned the value of $12,500; the individuals indicating incomes of $20,000 or above who did not specify further were assigned the value of $27,500. The midpoint of each interval listed in the questions was used to assign dollar value. For the last five intervals (10-14), $65,000 was used.

The midpoint of each of the 14 intervals listed in the question was used to assign dollar value. For the last interval, $105,000 was used.

OFFINCOM, SPOFFINC

The midpoint of each interval listed in the questions was used to assign dollar value for both the respondent's and their spouse's incomes. For the last wave, $60,000 was used.

LOGRMI6

LOGRMI

These indices of marital instability are based on 27 items asked of people who are married in 2000. These items were recoded, summed, and the resulting variable was logged to bring the distributional quality more in line with multiple regression assumptions. Higher scores indicate greater marital instability.

Marital/Cohabiting Partner Happiness (adult panel, cross section, comparison sample):

MARHAP6

MARHAP1

A summated scale using eleven items reflecting the amount of happiness with: 1) extent of understanding received from spouse/partner; 2) amount of love received; 3) extent of agreement about things; 4) sexual relationship; 5) spouse/partner as someone who takes care of things around the house; 6) spouse/partner as someone to do things with; 7) spouse's faithfulness; 8) evaluation of marriage/relationship as very happy, pretty happy, or not too happy; 9) compared to other marriages/relationships, respondent's is better, same, or not as good; 10) comparing the marriage/relationship to three years ago, is it getting better, staying the same or getting worse; and 11) strength of feelings of love the respondent has for spouse/partner. The scale has possible scores from 11 to 33. Items, except S535 and var129 were reverse coded so that a high score means greater happiness. Items S535 and var129 were also recoded so that the range of scores was from 1 to 3 to be consistent with the other items.

MARPROB6

MARPROB

A summated scale using 13 items indicating presence of marital/cohabiting problems because either or both spouses/partners: 1) gets angry easily; 2) gets easily hurt; 3) is jealous; 4) is domineering; 5) is critical; 6) is moody; 7) won't talk to the other; 8) has sexual relationships with other; 9) has irritating habits; 10) is not home enough; 11) spends money foolishly; 12) drinks or uses drugs; and 13) has been trouble with the law.

INTRACT6

Marital/Cohabiting Disagreement (adult panel, cross section, comparison):

DISAGRE6                      DISAGREE

A summated scale of four items: 1) disagreements over share of housework done by respondent; 2) frequency of disagreements with spouse/partner; 3) number of serious quarrels with spouse/partner within the last two months; and 4) arguments involving physical abuse.

Scale values range from 0 to 12. Higher scores indicate greater disagreement. Because of outliers, S441 and var101 were recoded: 2 thru 87 = 1. Variables S434, S442, var83, and var102 were reverse coded to be consistent with the other two items. To create this scale, a regression equation was developed, based on scales created in 1980, 1983, and 1992, and then the created scale was rounded.

Sex Roles (adult panel, cross section, comparison):

SEXROLE6

SEXROLES

A summated scale using seven items: 1) wife's most important task: caring for children; 2) husband should earn higher pay than wife; 3) husband shouldn't worry if wife gone overnight in connection with job; 4) if wife works full-time, husband should help with housework; 5) if jobs scarce, wife shouldn't work; 6) working mothers can have just as good of a relationship with kids; and 7) even if wife works, husband should be main breadwinner. Response categories for E206, E207, E210, and E212 were recoded to reflect that higher scores indicate more traditional values.

Because items had a number of "Don't Knows", the scale was constructed by adding the value of the items for which there was an answer and weighting that total for the number of items with "Don't Know" information: for example, a score of 20 on 6 items would be weighted as  $SEXROLE5 = 20 (7/6)$ . The scale was then rounded.

Q: intro2

You may remember we interviewed you four years ago about your opinions of work and family life. In November, we sent a letter about calling you again to do another interview. We are contacting all the people we talked to last time to find out any changes since 1997.

All of your answers to our questions will be kept completely confidential, and you do not have to answer any questions you prefer not to. The interview will take between 30-60 minutes.
