Permission is granted to use the material described above, subject to the conditions stated below:
1. All rights granted herein are non-exclusive, World rights for one edition in print format only.
2. This permission does not allow translation of the quoted material into languages other than English.
3. Acknowledgement will be made to author, journal and publisher, and correct copyright information will be displayed on all copies made.
4. Payment of the fee is due upon publication of your work or one year from the date of this invoice, whichever is earlier. Failure to remit within this time period will automatically void this permission.
5. This permission covers only the use specified above and specifically does not cover: digest or abridgement of the material, any reproduction/distribution in any format other than print, nor any subsidiary rights.
6. This permission does not cover any material which is credited to another source. If an original source is credited anywhere in the material, this permission is contingent upon obtaining permission from that source.
7. This permission is extended to cover publication or transcription in Braille, large-type editions or recordings for the blind (and other special editions for use by visually and/or learning impaired persons) by approved nonprofit organizations.

Please cite where first published and understand that permission to post is not permission to sell or distribute this article.
